POULIN'S WIFE HYSTERICAL AS SISTER FAINTS

Weeps When Husband Loses Witness.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Poulin's emotions showed themselves early this morning when the latter's sister, Mrs. Elisabeth Senrecht, fainted in the courthouse corridor. She was on her way to testify for Harry Poulin, charged with the paternity of Mrs. Augusta H. Tiernan's third child.

Mrs. Poulin forgot her sister to think of her husband's case. Poulin forgot his case to think of his sister-in-law.

As Mrs. Senrecht collapsed unconscious at her side, Mrs. Poulin, with spontaneous loyalty, screamed in a frenzy of despair;

"Now she can't testify for Harry, and she had so much to say, so much to say for him, and——"

But the sentence ended in a wild cry. For the first time since the beginning of the trial the wife of the defendant broke down and became hysterical.

Yields to Emotions.

Gossipy neighbors, the 'other women' complacency, the hisses of the jury, the darts of the cross-examination, the ordeal of the courtroom—these had tried to make the nervously indifferent woman yield to her emotions. And she had licked them all.

But this morning, when she saw that an important witness, essential in establishing certain alibis for Harry Poulin, might be too ill to take the stand, something snapped, and she grew frantic, repeating, inarticulately: "O, we could have helped us!"

In the emergency Harry Poulin forgot the law books piled on the tables upstairs, forgot the witnesses waiting to testify, forgot the judge waiting to hear the case, forgot that he was defendant. He brushed aside the men and women gathered about the unconscious woman. After he had revived her, he got her to a cab and to the office of a physician.

It was not until they met in the courtroom some minutes later that the Poulins remembered the things they had forgotten. Mrs. Poulin, still slightly hysterical, was beseeching the attorneys to "Try to have 'Billy' testify, for she can do so much for Harry," and at the same time was worried that "Billy" had even been drawn into the case.

Suffered Nervous Breakdown.

Mrs. Senrecht, it was learned, suffered a nervous breakdown last winter due to overwork in Indianapolis, where she is in charge of a large department in a store. She was recuperating at Michigan City when she was summoned to South Bend to take charge of the Poulin home during the trial. In the days preceding the trial she was the "buffer state" between a brutally curious public and the retiring Mrs. Poulin. She has protected her sister from the world.

And this morning, by her testimony, she was to have protected Harry Poulin from Mrs. Tiernan's paternity charge. Mrs. Senrecht, the defense alleges, was present at the Poulin home on Sunday, Feb. 20, 1921, and heard Mrs. Tiernan make a statement regarding the relations existing that day between Prof. Tiernan and herself. This is during the time, according to Mrs. Tiernan's testimony, that she and her husband were not living as husband and wife.

It is expected that Mrs. Senrecht will be too ill to take the stand Monday morning. Nor has it yet been decided whether Harry Poulin will testify in his own defense. Various contradictory rumors have been tossed back and forth. Neither he nor his attorneys today would indicate definitely regarding the matter, but it is anticipated that Monday morning will see Harry Poulin on the stand.

Fireworks Expected Monday.

And the fireworks which have sputtered in weary lassitude during the past two days are expected to flare up with a renewed blaze.

The session this morning was occupied with the testimony of several more members of Harry Poulin's family. Where yesterday's witnesses sought to establish an alibi for Poulin on the Wednesday and Friday evenings during Lent of 1921, today's witnesses concerned themselves with their knowledge of Harry's activities during Mrs. Poulin's trip to Chicago.

Mrs. Poulin, it is declared, left South Bend for Chicago Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 8, 1921. Mrs. Tiernan, according to her testimony, was with Poulin at his home on the evenings of Tuesday, Feb. 8; Thursday, Aug. 11, and on

HENRY B. CLARKE, BANKER, A SUICIDE

Death on Coast Follows Wife's by Year.

HENRY B. CLARKE.

Henry B. Clarke, who retired over a year ago as vice president of the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings bank committed suicide yesterday when he cut his throat with a jagged fragment of a bottle in an orange grove at Redlands, Cal.

The banker gave up his position in Chicago to take his wife to California because of her poor health. The climate on the Pacific coast, however, failed to bring about the desired effect, and Mrs. Clarke died in Redlands in September, 1921.

Married in 1910.

The Clarkes were married in Chicago in 1910. Mrs. Clarke was Miss Lulu Lovina Le Sage, a schoolday sweetheart of the banker. The marriage followed a year after his divorce from Mrs. Harriet R. Clarke.

Mr. Clarke, born in Chicago in 1867, received his education at St. Ignatius' college, and began his banking career at the age of 17 as a messenger in the employ of the Hibernian Banking association.

His Rise Steady.

His rise was a steady one, as he worked his way to the position of vice president and director. After serving in this capacity for some time, he became connected with the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings bank, of which he was vice president at the time of his retirement.

Mr. Clarke's home was in Highland park. He was a member of the Exmoor Country club.

McFadden, who had been talking with Sergt Michael Mullen, walked down State street and met Pennington. He stopped the colored man and started questioning him. Pennington, drew a revolver and shot the police man. McFadden returned the fire, dropping Pennington.

8 KILLED IN ARMY AIR MANEUVERS

Six Die in Mineola Plane; Two at Baltimore.

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Six persons were killed when the big Martin bomber which had starred in the war games at the flying field at Mineola, L. I., crashed to earth late tonight.

The airplane carried five passengers besides its pilot, First Lieut. Raymond E. Davis of the regular army.

The names of the passengers had not been learned when the news was first flashed from Mineola.

As soon as the big ship hit the ground it burst into flames, and it is assumed that all on board were burned to death. Marks of identification may have been lost.

The machine was a twin motor bomber and the largest used in the maneuvers.

25,000 See Fatal Plunge.

The accident occurred in the sight of 25,000 persons, whose view of what happened was illuminated by powerful searchlights and parachute flames which made the field almost as bright as day.

At the time of the accident the war maneuvers had been completed and several airplanes that had participated were taking up passengers on trial flights.

10,000 See Two Flyers Killed.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 23.—Lieut. Patton of Pasadena, Cal., and Lieut. Hansen of Church Ferry, N. D., both of the United States marine corps, Quantico, Va., were killed this afternoon at Logan field when their machine went into a tail spin and dropped about 500 feet to the ground. Ten thousand spectators witnessed the accident.

Lieut. Patton was piloting the plane and Lieut. Hansen was in the gunner's cockpit firing toy balloons at a big army dirigible when their plane went into a tail spin.

EDGAR L. OFFLIGHTER, conspiracy to defraud.

THOMAS J. HICKEY, conspiracy to defraud.

THOMAS FITZGERALD, conspiracy to defraud.

HENRY W. KAUP, conspiracy to defraud.

Sixteen new indictments, one of them naming Louis Piquett, Lundin-Thompson city prosecutor, are reported the latest fuel in the fire under the alleged school board grafters.

Added to these indictments are impending a dozen or more to come tomorrow. In these may be found the names of an alderman or two. And while the special grand jury thus is uncovering more evidence each day of grabbing in the expenditure of $100,000,000 which the taxpayers have in the last three years placed in the hands of the board of education, the Chicago Teachers' federation last night called upon Mayor Thompson for the dismissal of those indicted.

Indictments charging direct fraud against Piquett and Edwin S. Davis, former president of the board and still a member in spite of the true bills against him, are said to have followed evidence of the most sensational sort.

Piquett Bill Jolts City Hall.

The indictment of Louis Piquett, though not unexpected, is a severe jolt to the city hall and strikes home to the mayor's official family. Piquett, as a reward for valiant work in the mayor's behalf at the polling places, was appoined city prosecutor as soon as he was admittted to the bar.

He had been bartender, waiter and west side political hanger-on up to the time Mayor Thompson was elected, after which he was rewarded with a city hall clerkship. He removed to the lower north side, became a power in Twenty-first ward politics and became chief clerk in the office of Harry B. Miller, then city prosecutor. He was twice suspended under charges but each time was able to obtain reinstatement. On obtaining a license to practice law he was given Miller's $6,000 a year job.

Questioned by Grand Jury.

Early in July Piquett's name was connected with charges of shortweighting of coal sold the city and school board. He was repeatedly questioned by assistant state's attorneys, but the July grand jury adjourned without any indictments.

The present special grand jury went into coal deals of the school board thoroughly. It was charged by James E. Wilson, manager of the Chest Creek Coal company, that Piquett exacted 50 cents per ton on coal delivered by them to the school board.

Under oath and having signed an immunity waiver, Piquett denied this to Blame Placed by Jurors for Mine Atrocity

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Marion, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Williamson county's special farmer grand jury has done its part to remove the blot placed upon the county and the state by the Herrin massacre of June 22.

In a report filed today with Judge D. T. Hartwell, the grand jury returned six new indictments for murder and thirteen for assault to commit murder. Hugh Willis of Herrin, member of the state executive board of the Illinois Mine Workers' union, and Will Davis, secretary treasurer of the Herrin district union, are named in the murder bills. Willis also is indicted for assault to murder.

These are the first important officials of the union reached by the investigation. Willis was on the state policy committee for the miners in Cleveland, although technically on recess.

Town Clerk Indicted.

Four others indicted for murder today are Enos Yates, town clerk of West Marion township, miner, who refused to testify before the grand jury, James Taylor, Alex Ray, and Charles Thomas, miners.

Those indicted for assault to murder, besides Willis, are A. L. Stivers of Carterville, former constable and supervisor; David Williams, Ed Williams, Rollo Cravens, O. Price, Lew Corbin, Charles Hamock, Gerald Bernard, Moody Fox, McKinley Beasley, Herbert Stokes, and Cline Gent.

Although technically on recess until Oct. 23, the grand jury has really concluded its labors. The total result is forty-four murder indictments, fifty-eight for conspiracy to murder, fifty-eight for rioting, and fifty-four for assault to murder. All indicted men in jail or out on bonds will be arraigned in Circuit court tomorrow.

This will keep the County court grinding all winter. The first trial will begin about the middle of October under present plans.

See Retribution's Shadow.

Williamson county's rebels are beginning to think that something might happen to them after all.

In its formal report the grand jury declares that the rioting and murders at the Southern Illinois Coal company mine were the result of a conspiracy. This conspiracy, it is said, originated among the mine union officials. Willis is said to have been the man who guaranteed that "the union would pay" for the guns and ammunition commandeered from local hardware stores before the march on the mine began.

The report incorporates a telegram which John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, sent to State Senator William Sneed, concerning the "outlaws" at work in the strip mine. They were to be treated as common strikebreakers, Mr. Lewis advised Mr. Sneed, who is president of the Herrin subdistrict union.

Telegram—Then Attack.

Following this telegram, the grand jury reports, the preparation for the attack on the mine began.

The grand jury made no attempt to determine the equities in the contest between the miners and the strikebreakers, but declared that it was "foolhardy" for W. J. Lester and his associates to attempt to operate a nonunion mine in this district.

The story of the battle at the mine, the surrender of the nonunion men and their massacre is told in graphic restrained terms in the report. All questions as to fact may be regarded as settled, for the grand jury heard 300 witnesses and worked for three weeks to get the truth of this situation.

After telling of the threatening situation at the mine for four or five days preceding the tragedy, the report

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Sept. 23.—The Turk was invited tonight to come back to Europe, from which he was bodily kicked out by allied troops in 1918. The invitation was extended by the allies themselves through an ironic turn of fate, and "Great Britain, France, and Italy will take advantage of this opportunity to declare that they look with favor upon the desire of Turkey to recover Thrace up to the Maritza river, and Adrianople."

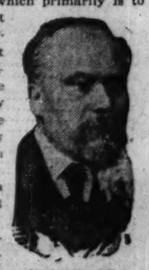
LORD CURZON.

The allies telegraphed the Turkish nationalist government at Smyrna tonight, proposing an early peace conference at Venice or elsewhere.

The joint allied proposal was signed by Premier Poincare of France, Lord Curzon, foreign minister of Great Britain, and Count Sforza, Italian ambassador, who have been meeting here for three days to formulate the peace proposals.

Ask League Rule of Straits.

It is the great war between the allies and Turkey which primarily is to be liquidated at the Venice conference, the recent Turkish campaign against the Greeks being only a side issue. Since the Sevres treaty has never been ratified, the original armistice with the Turks is still operative.



M. POINCARE.

The allies informed the Turkish nationalist assembly in the peace note that the Dandanelles, the Sea of Marmora, and the Bosphorus must be neutralized under the auspices of the league of nations. The chief idea of placing the straits under the league is that greater international responsibility and authority will be vested in it and America and other states not now members will be forced to deal directly with the league and therefore find it to their advantage to become members. It is expected by league advocates to give the Geneva organization great prestige.

Lord Curzon warmly urged using the league to supervise the neutrality of the straits, because the British probably will exercise more control thereby on account of their dominant position in the league than through a new guarantee committee.

Meet Kemal's Demands.

The allies were forced to lay down some essential conditions for a peace treaty in their note, because Kemal did bluntly informed France that he would not consider granting an armistice to the Greeks unless he was given guarantees for the return of Constantinople and Thrace.

In promising to return Thrace, however, the allies made it contingent upon the Turkish troops respecting the neutral zones on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles by refraining from any attempt to cross the straits during the peace negotiations. The allies promise to secure the withdrawal of Greek troops in Thrace behind the lines to be fixed by allied, Turkish, and Greek military authorities.

The allies repeated the old promise to return Constantinople to the Turks as soon as peace is concluded, and promised to support Turkey's admission to the league of nations.

Reverses World War Result.

The note telegraphed to Smyrna tonight marks the reversal of the great allied victory over Turkey, closing a weeks new world war. The allies keep their hands on the straits and some mandated territories, but the restoration of the Ottoman empire as the leader of all Mohammedan peoples has begun. Most important, Turkey returns to Europe.

The Turkish nationalist movement, the climax to a month's campaign against the Greeks, has turned defeat in the world war into victory and increased the Turkish prestige tremendously in the near east, as well as setting an example for the allies' other former enemies.

The allied note does not mention admitting Russia to the peace conference to participate in the discussion of the control of the straits.

ALLIES' PEACE NOTE

PARIS, Sept. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—Following is the text of the allies' joint note to Mustapha Kemal Pasha:

"The three allied governments ask the government of the National grand assembly to be good enough to let them know if it is disposed to send without delay representatives with full powers to a meeting to be held at Venice or elsewhere and to which will be invited also, with the representatives of Turkey, plenipotentiaries of Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Roumania, Jugo-Slavia, and Greece.

"This meeting will take place as soon as necessary arrangements are made by the governments concerned. The object of this meeting will be to negotiate and consolidate a final treaty of peace between Turkey, Greece, and the allied powers.

Invite Turks Back to Europe.

"The three governments take this opportunity to declare that they view with favor the desire of Turkey to recover Thrace as far as the river Maritza and including Adrianople.

"On condition that the Angora government does not send armies during the peace negotiations into zones the provisional neutrality of which has been proclaimed by the allied governments, the three governments will willingly support at the conference attribution of these frontiers to Turkey, it being understood that steps will be taken in common agreement in the treaty to safeguard the interests of Turkey and her neighbors; to demilitarize, with a view to the maintenance of peace, in certain zones to be fixed; to obtain a peaceful and orderly reestablishment of Turkey's authority, and finally to assure effectively under the league of nations maintenance of the freedom of the Dardanelles, the Sea of Marmora, and the Bosporus, as well as protection of religious and racial minorities.

Admit Turk to League.

"For the rest, the three allied governments will willingly support the admission of Turkey to the league of nations. They are in agreement in reaffirming their assurance, given in March last, that they will withdraw their troops from Constantinople as soon as the treaty of peace has entered into force.

The three allied governments will use their influence to procure before the opening of the conference the retirement of the Greek forces to a line to be fixed by the allied generals in agreement with the Greek and Turkish military authorities.

"In return for this intervention the government of Angora will undertake not to send troops, either before or during the peace conference, into the zones of neutrality which have been previously declared, and not to cross the straits or the Sea of Marmora. In order to fix the above mentioned line, a meeting might immediately take place between Kemal Pasha and the allied generals at Mudania.

"The allied governments are convinced that their appeal will be listened to and that they will be able to collaborate with the Turkish government and their allies to establish peace, for which the whole civilized world is longing.

LLOYD GEORGE TELLS WHY BRITISH YIELD TO TURK

LONDON, Sept. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—The policy of Great Britain in the near east is to establish the freedom of the Dardanelles under supervision of the league of nations, declared Prime Minister Lloyd George in a statement at a conference with the newspapermen this afternoon. His statement follows:

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

"I should like at the very outset to make it clear that any action we have taken during the last few days has nothing to do with the merits or demerits of the dispute between the Greeks and the Turks.

"Whatever settlement is effected of either Anatolia or Thrace, that is a matter for determination by a conference between the allies and the belligerents, and any steps we have taken to strengthen the military and naval forces in the Dardanelles and the Bosporus have nothing whatever to do with any consideration of that kind.

"Our action has been dictated by two supreme considerations. One is our anxiety as to the freedom of the seas between the Mediterranean and the Black sea. That is the first and primary consideration in directing our actions. What happened in the late war has demonstrated clearly to the British empire how vital the freedom of these various seas is to the security of the empire, to the protection of our commerce, and to humanity in its broadest aspects.

Caused Collapse of Russia.

"The closing of the straits against us by a power which owed probably more to Great Britain, and certainly to Great Britain and France together, than to any other power in the world was an act of perfidy which cost us dearly. It was directly responsible for the collapse of our most powerful ally in that quarter of the globe and was also responsible for the defeat of Roumania.

"These two disasters had the effect of prolonging the war at least two years and adding enormously to the loss of life and to the devastation and destruction which it will take many years, if not a whole generation, to repair. It is an essential condition of world peace that there shall be an effective guarantee for the freedom of those seas in the future. If peace were signed without the achievement of that object it would be equivalent to a defeat in that part of the world.

"With that object in view the allies prepared as the first condition of the armistice with Turkey signed Oct. 30, 1918, the opening of the Dardanelles and the Bosporus and securing access to the Black sea by allied occupation of the Dardanelles and the Bosporus ports. We therefore regard the freedom of these seas as of vital British interest and vital European interest.

Fears War in Europe.

"Therefore the first thing we had in mind in any steps we have taken in the last few days has been to insure that nothing be done to menace the freedom of those seas and the world-wide interest of civilization. In doing this I would point out that we were taking no separate action, but simply carrying out the policy agreed upon by all the allies in October, 1918. We have not departed one iota from the position we took then, and in doing so we have not betrayed the trust which the British empire as a whole vested in us.

"The second object we had in making any preparation was to prevent this exceptionally horrible war from spreading into Europe.

"I am not going to apportion the blame between the Greeks and the Turks. The time has not come for that, and it is not necessary that we do so in order to explain or defend our policy. I merely deal with the fact that one of the greatest commercial cities in the world has been practically devastated and there have been massacres which in their horror are almost without example, even in that area.

Danger of New Massacres.

"If any army which could not be restrained by its chiefs from perpetrating those outrages were permitted to cross into Europe, to occupy Constantinople, where you have a population of hundreds of thousands of Armenians and Greeks, and some thousands of European nationals, we have every reason to fear there would be repetition of those horrible incidents.

"If it spread into Thrace, where there is so much inflammable material, rivalries of Turks, Greeks, Hungarians, and Serbians, there is no knowing what might happen. You might have a conflagration which would spread with a fury which could not easily be extinguished or arrested.

"There are many dangerous elements in that quarter of the world, and if you have a serious conflict of antagonistic races, maddened by the rooted hatred of centuries breaking out, you would have once more war in Europe, and it must not be forgotten that the great war of 1914 began in the Balkans.

Impartial to Turk and Greek.

"We, therefore, have regarded it as a matter of paramount importance to the interests of European peace that war in Asia Minor should not spread into Europe. We have therefore taken steps to strengthen our position in the Dardanelles and on the Bosporus with a view of achieving two objects, which I have indicated: First, that of securing the freedom of the straights, and, second, that of preventing this prairie fire which devastated Asia from crossing the narrow seas and lighting the dry tinder in the Balkans.

"In this respect we have been quite impartial as between the Greeks and the Turks. The Greeks, when they occupied the southeastern corner of Asia Minor, complained that we were allowing Turkish bandits to organize under the protection of our flag in the Chanak area. And once they entered that zone with a view of dispersing the bandits. We warned them off and they had to leave.

"A few weeks ago the Greeks threatened to march on Constantinople. They brought up a division of troops from Asia Minor in order to cross the Tchatalja lines and enter the Turkish capital. It would have been from a military point of view a formidable counterstroke to the Turkish menace in Smyrna. But in order to do so they would have to cross the neutral zone and enter territory which was occupied by the allies.

Warned Greeks to Desist.

"The French occupied the Tchatalja lines, but our general was the commander in chief of the allied forces. He warned the Greeks, in terms identical with those used to Mustapha Kemal Pasha in the Chanak area—namely:

MUSTAPHA KEMAL PASHA.

that he could not permit them to enter the eneutral zone.

"We do not wish to hold Gallipoli and Chanak in the interests of Great Britain alone. We do not consider that Great Britain alone should have the sole responsibility there. We believe those important shores should be held under the auspices of the league of nations in the interests of all nations alike.

"I again repeat what we just heard from Sir Charles Harington, that the proclamation he issued to the Greeks was identical with that issued to Mustapha Kemal. Therefore, so far as the neutral zone is concerned, we have been impartial in our attitude toward the Greeks and Turks. We have acted in the interest of peace, in order to remove the danger of having war spread in Europe. The same motives are inspiring our actions today.

Essential to Hold Straits.

"It is suggested that we are provoking a conflict by staying at Chanak. It is essential, in the opinion of our military advisers, to hold Chanak, in order to secure the freedom of the straits for unarmed vessels. Armed ships could pass and repass whatever happened in Chanak. Peaceable merchantmen could pass, and, therefore, in the opinion of our military advisers, it is essential that Chanak be held in order to secure the real freedom of the straits for the purpose of peaceable intercourse between the Mediterranean and the Black seas.

"For Roumania, a distinguished Roumanian told me the other day, the straits are a matter of life and death to his country. That is exactly true for Russia also. In the interests of the commerce of the world it is fundamental that the straits should be free from the possibility of such interference with their freedom as produced the disastrous results in 1914 and in subsequent years.

Cites Statement of Foe.

"There is a correspondent at Constantinople who, for reasons which are not material to investigate at the present moment, is not a witness particularly friendly to myself but whom I would quote on the importance of preventing the Kemalist army from crossing into Europe until peace has been established. I mean Gen. Maurice. He said a couple of days ago:

"The nervousness among the Christian population, already considerable, has been much increased and their exodus is taking place. I can not too strongly represent that in the present temper of the Mohammedans the evacuation of Ismid or Chanak at this juncture might have a sequence which would make the fire of Smyrna pale.

"That is one reason why we think that it would be a peril of the darkest kind if we permitted the army which has left Smyrna a heap of blackened ruins to cross over into Europe until a permanent peace has been established and until the conditions of that peace are clearly defined.

"Turk Can Have Constantinople."

"We do not go back on anything we have said about Constantinople remaining Turkish. We are not putting up any fight about the sovereignty of eastern Thrace, but peace must first of all be established and its conditions must be known.

"May I just say in conclusion that we are not departing in anything we are doing from the agreed policy of the allies. This policy, which I enunciated to you about the straits, was agreed to in 1918. There was a good deal more that was agreed to, which circumstances render it now impossible for us, or, conceivably for the whole of the allies, to carry out to the limit which would be desired. In 1918 the allies took into account the condition of the minorities in Asia Minor who, in the early days of the war, had been subjected to outrages of a very terrible character.

"The massacres in Asia Minor in 1914 and 1915 were responsible for the death of something like one and one-half millions of the Christian population. That is generally accepted. There was no provocation; there was no insurrection; there was no uprising against Turkish rule. It was purely wanton and cold blooded, and the allies, considering the position, in 1918 felt they were under the obligation to see that there should be no recurrence of these terrors.

U. S. Slated to Run Armenia.

"The original idea was that America should undertake the mandate for Armenia; that France should undertake the mandate for Cilicia, where there is a mixed population: that Italy could undertake the mandate for Adalia and the surrounding territories; and that the Greeks could undertake the mandate for southeastern Anatolia and the vilayet of Smyrna.

"For various reasons, that has been found impossible. America was not prepared to undertake any responsibility for Armenia; the French government did not feel that it could continue to accept the responsibility for Cilicia; the Italians withdrew from southeastern Anatolia and the Greeks exchanged Mr. Venizelos for King Constantine.

"I do not wish to make any comment on that; the sequel, I believe, is the severest criticism of that choice. But, these events taken all together have made it impossible to carry out the original intention to secure protection for these various minorities by placing them under the control of powers, who would undertake, each in its separate sphere, the defense and security of these minorities.

Wants Real Guarantees in Straits.

"But freedom of the straits remains. That is of vital interest to us as a maritime and commercial power and to civilization throughout the world. That we can maintain, and the fight that we are putting up at the present moment is the fight to insure that, whatever happens at the peace conference, we shall not abandon the policy of securing the freedom of the straits.

"I do not mean securing them by clauses in a treaty which would depend upon the caprice of any government there might be in Constantinople. We had the promise before 1914 that the straits would be free, but German intrigue overcame not merely the sympathies which Turkey may have had with either France or England but overcame the real Turkish interests, and the straits were closed. Their security, therefore, must be of a very reliable and effective character. That is why we are taking the step which we have already taken, and we shall do our best to secure an immediate conference between all the powers concerned in order to establish permanent peace.

Only Looking for Peace.

"Peace is our purpose; peace is our object. That is what we are looking for. We regard war as a calamity, and it is because we regard it as a calamity that we are taking the most effective means of averting it. The appeal which we made to Australia and New Zealand was addressed to them because they had a very special interest in the defense of Gallipoli. They made a great sacrifice of thousands of their heroic sons in order to achieve that freedom of the straits, and we felt that when freedom was challenged they had the right to associate themselves with us in any action we took to maintain what it had cost them so much to achieve.

"I want to make it quite clear that we do not want a second Gibraltar in the Dardanelles. We want the league of nations to keep the straits open for all nations."

TURKS MOVE UP ARMIES TO EDGE OF STRAITS ZONE

Kemal Stands on Demand for European Lands.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SMYRNA, Sept. 23, via Saloniki.—Mustapha Kemal Pasha has not changed his decision to insist on the restoration of Turkish power in Europe despite the hasty preparations of the British for the defense of Constantinople and the Dardanelles.

The main body of Kemalist troops who defeated the Greek army is marching northward to make liaison with the northern army at the line of demarkation of the neutral zones. His only terms are immediate evacuation by the allies of Constantinople and the neutral zone.

Turkish officers who left Smyrna today laughingly told American naval officers that they would see them in Constantinople in ten days. Kemal is remaining in Smyrna a few days longer before proceeding to the north front. He was in conference with Fethi Bey on Friday. He still holds out hope of a parley with the allies immediately, but will not cease concentrations while awaiting allied action.

Smyrna Still Smoldering.

Smyrna is still smoldering after the fire started a week ago. Smoke from the Gary Tobacco company's warehouse in the center of town is a landmark miles out to sea.

The refugee situation is being somewhat eased. Several thousand have been evacuated in the last week, and it is hoped to send 15,000 out in the next twenty-four hours. The first bread ration was given out today. Until now raw barley was the only available food.

The U. S. S. Litchfield arrived this morning and brought fifty tons of foodstuffs. Near east relief workers chartered a vessel for transporting flour. The municipality is urgently seeking foods of all sorts and has ordered 3,000 tons of flour for the population and refugees, which will probably arrive within ten days.

The port will open until Oct. 1 for all refugees who care to leave, save males between 18 and 45 years old. These are being sent into the interior.

Turk Aids U. S. Business Men.

Three thousand tons of American cargo, chiefly tobacco, is awaiting transportation. American business men report that the Turks are facilitating their operations in every way. The only shipping company operating as an American firm is the Griswold-Archbold company. This firm has requested a shipping board boat to call at Smyrna as soon as possible. It will probably arrive Friday.

The Standard Oil and Anglo-Asiatic Oil companies' plants near Smyrna are safe.

The condition of the refugees is pitiful. Under the stern of the U. S. S. Lawrence a small boatload has been hanging for five days. They are fortunate, for they are able to get water and food. A sailing boat which was loaded with refugees the day after the fire is still in port, and its human cargo has received water and food only three times since the conflagration.

Turks Bombard Greek Islands.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—Turkish airplanes have bombarded the Greek islands of Chios and Mytilene off the Asia Minor coast in the Aegean.

The French are removing their troops from the Tchatalja line.

The British are withdrawing their forces from the neutral zone of Ismid and transferring them to Chanak to strengthen the positions on the bank of the Dardanelles.

More British Forces on Way.

MALTA, Sept. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—Further military detachments for the reinforcement of the British forces in the Dardanelles are expected to leave soon for Constantinople. Units of the second destroyer flotilla of the Atlantic fleet are on their way to the straits.

Greeks in Gloom as British Hedge on War with Turk

ATHENS, Sept. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—Greece, in the grip of a great national peril, is beginning to fear that it must ride alone. It counted on Great Britain's military assistance to prevent the Turks from invading Thrace, but even that hope is fading rapidly.

With economic distress increasing and the prospect of a Turkish army marching through Thrace, and perhaps even to the Hellenic peninsula, the Greek people as a whole seem in no gracious mood. They whisper together in the Athenian cafés and speculate darkly as to the future.

To add to Greece's troubles, announcement was made of the discovery of a plot to return former Premier Venizelos to power. Several persons have been arrested and the authorities are conducting house to house searches.

Fear Attack on Athens.

One representative Greek said today: "What is to prevent Mustapha Kemal Pasha from marching to Athens itself and signing the peace here? Could our disorganized and poorly equipped army halt him?"

An optimist replied:

"Greece will die to the last man rather than let the Turk invade Greece proper."

The newspapers agree, irrespective of whether they are of Constantine party, or of the Venizelos group, that Greece is isolated. They demand the unification of public opinion.

It is understood that the government has decided to proclaim martial law a few days before the convocation of parliament, which is scheduled to meet only after the organization of the new army for Thrace. This army will be composed of younger men. The class of 1923 will exclude men of Mussulman origin.

Reports of a ministerial upheaval have been officially denied. Owing to the difficulties of agreeing on suitable appointees Thrace is still without a governor and Constantinople without a Greek high commissioner.

Conservative opinion in Athens is unanimous in the necessity of an early convocation of an international conference on near eastern affairs.

Athens Arrests Alleged Plotters.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—M. Grivas, who was an under secretary of state in the Venizelos cabinet, was arrested on a charge of plotting against the state and the present régime, according to an Athens dispatch to the Exchange telegraph today. Dr. Korylos, a former university professor, also was arrested on a similar charge, the dispatch stated.

FAILS TO STOP AUTO FOR CAR; FINED

Because he failed to stop his automobile truck ten feet behind a street car discharging passengers, George Cebs, 3544 West Lake street, a fruit dealer, was fined $50 and costs yesterday by Judge Asa Adams in the speeders' court. His defense was that he thought it would be "all right to pass a street car slowly."

DAUGHERTY'S INJUNCTION BATTERY

Scene snapped in Judge Wilkerson's courtroom yesterday during the reading of the rail injunction. At the left with hand to chin is District Attorney Charles F. Clyne, behind him is Oliver E. Pagan, indictment expert of the department of justice; the large figure in the center is Blackburn Esterline, assistant to the solicitor general, and beside him is A. A. McLaughlin, special assistant to the attorney general, representing the railway administration. At the extreme right is seen John Maynard Harlan, who was a spectator. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

STRIKE PLOT WRIT UPHELD BY WILKERSON

Rules Basic Rights Are Not Abridged.

In an exhaustive opinion, buttressed with many Supreme court decisions, Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday sustained all of the drastic provisions of the Daugherty injunction restraining striking railroad shopmen throughout the country from committing any acts which might be interpreted as interfering with the movement of mails or interstate commerce.

At the same time the court denied the motion entered by Attorney Donald H. Richberg, counsel for Bert M. Jewell and John Scott, president and secretary, respectively, of the railway employes' department of the American Federation of Labor, for dismissal of the temporary injunction granted Sept. 1 on the petition of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty.

Plot Not Disproved.

Not one scintilla of evidence, the court held, had been presented by the defendants to refute or deny the abundant proof produced by the government of a nation-wide sabotage plot to destroy commerce.

In ruling that any acts committed in furtherance of this alleged conspiracy, whether lawful or unlawful in themselves, might be restrained, the court upheld those provisions of the temporary injunction declared by the strikers to be an abridgment of their constitutional rights of free speech, writing, and assemblage.

The result of the decision is that the temporary injunction, affecting some 270 union heads and about 400,000 strikers, will remain in force until Judge Wilkerson issues a preliminary order. This preliminary order will remain in force pending hearings on the government's petition to make the injunction permanent.

Months for Hearing.

These hearings probably would occupy months, as the government cannot present its evidence in affidavit form as in the case of the temporary injunction, but must call hundreds of witnesses to testify in support of the charges of a widespread conspiracy.

Judge Wilkerson announced he will hear arguments of counsel at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning as to the form the preliminary order is to take. Under the rules of procedure both sides are entitled to submit proposed drafts.

Counsel for the government will urge the adoption of the proposed draft submitted by Attorney General Daugherty on Thursday, which is just as drastic as the first one with the exception that the union is permitted to spend its funds and hold meetings so long as neither is done in furtherance of the strike.

Richberg to Take Appeal.

Mr. Richberg, who announced he intends to take an appeal as soon as the preliminary order is issued, stated last night he will not submit any form of order to the court tomorrow, as the court's views and those of counsel for the defense are so widely at variance as to make this step useless. He will confine his efforts to opposing the new Daugherty draft.

"The court has held that the defendants are responsible for lawless acts committed mostly, as the court stated, by parties not known because of the admitted combination to carry on a strike," Mr. Richberg said. "It has been the contention of the defendants that the issuance of an injunction in conformity with the attorney general's demands would be a violation of the most fundamental and important of constitutional rights and that it would be an exercise of power which has been expressly denied the District court by an act of congress.

Roads May Still Persuade.

"As I understand Judge Wilkerson's decision, a striker may not persuade another man from going to work, but the railroads may still persuade men to go to work.

"If the opinion of the court is found to authorize an order conforming to the demands of the attorney general, the exact form of the order is of minor importance. The question of major importance is to ascertain how quickly the defendants can perfect an appeal and obtain a review by the Circuit Court of Appeals of any decree which the District court may enter founded on the opinion read today."

Statement by Daugherty.

From his home in Columbus, O., Attorney General Daugherty issued a statement heralding the decision as a complete victory for the government. It was authorized by telephone, through Blackburn Esterline, assistant solicitor general, the following statement:

"The decision was a complete and clear cut victory for the government. It settles the law with respect to strikes which affect the transportation of passengers and property in interstate commerce and the mails. The government will see to it that any decree entered in pursuance of the decision shall be adhered to. It will also see to it that, as quickly as possible, the railway companies shall comply with the acts to regulate commerce, and any decision or orders of the interstate commerce commission with respect to service or equipment, as well as all decisions of the railroad labor board relating to wages or working conditions. It is unnecessary to say anything further at this time."

On Constitutional Rights.

In regard to the provisions of the injunction which the defendants complained of as curtailing constitutional rights, Judge Wilkerson said:

"It is asserted by the defendants to permit some of the acts against which the complainant seeks an injunction is to deprive them of fundamental rights guaranteed by the constitution. This contention has been answered by what has been said with reference to the unlawful purpose of the conspiracy.

Rights Not Absolute.

"A cardinal error of defendants' position,' to use the language of the supreme court, lies in the assumption that the right is so absolute that it may be exercised under any circumstances and without any qualification; whereas, in truth, like all other rights that exist in civilized society, it must be exercised with reasonable regard for the conflicting rights of others.'

"The record in this case shows that the so-called peaceable and lawful acts are so interwoven with the whole plan of intimidation and obstruction that to go through the formality of enjoining the commission of assaults and other acts of violence and leave the defendants free to pursue the open and ostensibly peaceful part of their program would be an idle ceremony."

Richberg Asks of Scope.

"Do I understand the court to mean that all acts can be enjoined, paralyzing all activities of the union?" asked Attorney Richberg when the court had finished reading his opinion.

"All acts which might be interpreted as encouraging the acts complained of," replied Judge Wilkerson.

"If I understand the court correctly," Mr. Richberg continued, "this strike was not an unlawful conspiracy in its inception, but that it became so as it broadened out."

"The question as to the inception of the strike was not brought up," the court said. "This bill prayed for relief from a situation as it existed at that time."

Judge Reviews Bill.

In the preamble of his opinion, Judge Wilkerson reviewed the bill of complaint filed by the government and the vast amount of documentary evidence introduced in support of Attorney General Daugherty's contention that a nation-wide plot existed to wreck trains, intimidate workmen and cripple rolling stock.

"In disposing of this motion," the opinion reads, "it may be well at the outset to emphasize what this case is not. It is not a case between an employer and employés, or between employers and employés, or between persons employed and persons seeking employment, involving or growing out of a dispute concerning terms or conditions of employment. It is not a private bill to enjoin indirect injury, as one caused by a secondary boycott, to the property of the complainant.

"It is, to use the language of Circuit Judge Baker, 'in the public interest by the government as parans patriae to enjoin an unlawful conspiracy or combination in restraint of trade.' It is the conspiracy which is inflicting the public injury for which redress is sought.

"The right of the United States to maintain a bill like this under its general equity jurisdiction is no longer open to debate. In the Debs case the court held that the national government is charged with the duty of keeping the highways of interstate commerce, including railroads, free from obstruction."

Refers to Clayton Act.

Judge Wilkerson quoted various authorities to refute the contention of the defense that the power of the courts to deal with combinations such as Attorney General Daugherty charges exists has been curtailed by certain provisions of the Clayton act.

"The law is clear," the court continued, "that if the dominating primary purpose of the combination is to restrain trade, or to do things unlawful in themselves and which by reason of their inherent nature operate to restrain trade, the purpose of the combination is unlawful, and that purpose may not be carried out, even by means that otherwise would be legal.

"In cases of this kind the proof is of necessity largely circumstantial. Acts must be taken in their relation to each other. Men must be presumed to intend the natural consequences of their acts. Proclamations of non-participation and exhortations to keep the peace cannot relieve from responsibility for a series of acts so interrelated and interwoven that they bear on their face proof of design and plan."

Fail to Answer Charges.

Judge Wilkerson referred to the fact that not one of the defendants answered the government's bill of complaint.

"Two have filed motions to dismiss," he said, "and have presented affidavits which leave a large number of averments of the bill unchallenged on the record. The fact that the defendants have been acting in combination is not denied.

"On the contrary, the defendants themselves have produced evidence of the closest association and coöperation on the part of the defendant organizations. That the officers of the unions gave directions concerning the strike from the outset is likewise admitted. The only material question really in dispute on the record is the responsibility in law of the defendants for the large number of unlawful acts shown to have been committed, the most of them by unknown parties.

Called Reign of Terror.

"Notwithstanding the warnings against acts of violence set out in the instructions of June 27, 1922, there began throughout the country a series of depredations which rapidly developed, on some portions, into a veritable reign of terror. Railroad bridges were dynamited, spikes were removed from rails, obstructions were placed upon railroad tracks, bombs were exploded on tracks and in railroad yards and hurled at moving trains.

"Regardless of the instructions that no injury must be inflicted upon property, there was sabotage on a large scale. Engines, cars and equipment were tampered with, and innumerable acts of malicious mischief committed which endangered the lives of both passengers and those operating trains.

"These unlawful acts are shown to have been on such a large scale and in point of time and place so connected with the admitted conduct of the strike, that it is impossible on the record here to view them in any other light than as done in furtherance of a common purpose and as part of a common plan.

"This record does not permit the conclusion that those who are at the head of this combination did not actually know that these things were being done, and that they were the direct result of the methods by which the strike was being conducted. And if they did not actually know, they were charged with such knowledge."

Judge Wilkerson quoted two communications sent out by the strike leaders on Aug. 28, urging the men to continue to fight this "industrial war" with other methods than "kid gloves" and "soft talk."

"These defendants will not be permitted, upon the record here, to deny responsibility for these unlawful acts," the court continued. "They will not be permitted to continue acts which, even though they may be peaceable and lawful in themselves, it has been demonstrated, are only a part of a program of unlawful conduct and are done for the accomplishment of an unlawful purpose.

"Defendants assert," the court continued, "as a ground against the granting of the relief sought by the complainant, that the strike was a defensive measure against a plot of the railway companies to destroy the unions. The argument seems to be that the defendants are justified in inflicting upon the public any injury which it may be proper for them to inflict upon their adversaries in this conflict.

Finds No Misrepresentation.

"It must be remembered, however, that this is a suit brought for the benefit of the public. Restraint of trade may not be adopted as a weapon in industrial warfare. The court must act upon the case now before it and give its aid to the removal of the obstructions to commerce which are found to exist.

Judge Wilkerson then referred to the motion presented by Attorney Richberg to dismiss the bill on three grounds, the first two attacking the sufficiency of the bill and the third charging that the relief sought "was obtained for ulterior and unlawful purposes upon misrepresentation and suppression of matters of fact and law, the disclosure of which was required by good faith."

"During the hearing, which has lasted almost two weeks," the court resumed, "the defendants have neither offered nor suggested a scintilla of proof tending to establish this averment in the motion to dismiss. The restraining order was entered after a hearing at which both the averments of the bill and the questions of law involved were fully and fairly presented.

"It follows, therefore, that the motion to dismiss the bill must be denied."

EDITOR GETS DELAY.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 23.—Hearing of the charges of contempt of court against G. V. Sanders, editor of the Memphis Press, today was postponed until Oct. 16 in United States District court. The charges against Sanders originated in the publication of an editorial on strike injunctions issued by the federal court here.

COUNTERFEITERS' $500,000 PLOT IS BARED; NAB PLANT

Fake $20 Notes Fooled Many Bankers.

With the seizure of more than $200,000 in counterfeit federal reserve bank notes and arrest of one man late yesterday in a house on the west side, Capt. Thomas I. Porter, chief of the secret service in Chicago, announced that he had uncovered the "biggest counterfeiting operations" in his thirty-seven years in the federal service.

With the bogus money, which was so nearly undetectible that since July 1 last it has passed inspection of bank officials, the secret service men seized a complete counterfeiting outfit—presses, such as are used in the treasury department, and several thousand negatives and plates.

Bigger Seizure Impends.

Capt. Porter stated that he expects to seize in the next twenty-four hours at least $300,000 more of the counterfeit notes and added that the total may be considerably more than half a million dollars.

"This thing," he said, "has the largest proportions of any counterfeiting proposition I have run across in my thirty-seven years in the secret service. Nothing I find in it will surprise me."

The man arrested is Joseph Kovick. No address was given for him; no information as to his connection with the scheme. But it was assumed that he was taken in the house at the time the government agents made the raid which resulted in capture of $200,000 in notes and the counterfeiting outfit.

All of $20 Denomination.

All the money was in $20 denomination. It was practically perfect—as near so as any counterfeit money ever has been known to be, Capt. Porter declared. And while it passed the inspection of bank officials, ordinarily able to detect even expert counterfeit money, government experts immediately pronounced it "bad."

Capt. Porter received a "tip" that large scale counterfeiting operations were in progress about July 1 last. He at once assigned Secret Service Agent George H. Harris to the case. Harris in his investigation is said to have practically "disappeared" from the federal building immediately following the assignment.

He did not return again to his post until several days ago. Late yesterday afternoon he suddenly left the federal building with a squad of other agents. They returned with Kovic under arrest and with the counterfeiting paraphernalia on a small auto truck.

TWO OR THREE TIMES THE HEAT IN ANY STOVE, RANGE, OR FURNACE.

New Device Burns 96% Air and 4% Kerosene; Better than City Gas.

A wonderful new invention that burns common coal oil in any stove, range, or furnace and gives two or three times the heat of coal or wood at one-half the cost, has just been perfected by the Standard Oil Burner Co., Dept. 39, 318 N. 2d-st., St. Louis, Mo. This simple and inexpensive device will go in any stove, range, or furnace, and does away with all the drudgery connected with tending ordinary fires. To introduce this wonderful burner the manufacturers will send one fully guaranteed to the first user in each community on thirty day trial at special price. They also want agents to whom they can refer new customers. Write them today for free booklet.—Adv.

'COURSE YOU HAD THAT EXTRA HOUR OF SLEEP TODAY?

DID you see a peevish party standing around the streets this morning, looking as if he had no place to go and wasn't even going there? If you did, here's the answer: That was the fellow who forgot that daylight saving time ended for Chicago this morning. Clocks were supposed to have been set back an hour last night. The peevish party—and there were quite a number of him—neglected to turn back his clock, with the result he was up an hour ahead of the time he had set for himself this morning. But it happens only once a year, and peevish parties soon lose their peeve.

Chicago is now back on central standard time.

SHOPMEN LOCK WITH ERIE OVER CONTRACT WORK

Two Eastern Roads Put on Embargo.

Failure of the Erie management to reach a settlement with its striking shopmen, after an all day conference in New York, development of a like situation at Indianapolis between Big Four railroad representatives and shop crafts leaders, and establishment by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and Lehigh Valley railroads of embargoes on westbound freight, were two outstanding developments today in the railroad strike situation.

The primary cause of the embargoes was said to be that heavy imports of the last few weeks, when overseas cargoes were rushed to New York to escape paying the higher duties of the new tariff act, had piled up an abnormal volume of freight to be moved west.

Another contributing cause, according to information obtainable in railroad circles, was that motive power is short because of the shopmen's walkout.

The Erie management announced in New York that failure to reach a settlement with the shopmen yesterday did not mean a breaking off of negotiations, as the conference will be resumed Monday.

While neither side issued official statements, it was understood that the committee of shopcrafts chairmen and the Erie officials still were deadlocked on the grievance the strikers hold against a continuation of the contract system by the Erie, but were not far apart on all other terms of the settlement proposed by the committee. While neither side would commit themselves to a prediction, both strongly intimated that settlement ultimately would be reached, dispatches stated.

Efforts of the leaders of the shop craft unions and the Erie management to bring about a settlement of the strike began Friday night in New York with a conference attended by Bert M. Jewell, national strike leader.

Signalmen to Ask Raise.

Increases in pay affecting members of the railroad signalmen's organization on forty-two railroads and subsidiaries will be sought before the United States railroad labor board tomorrow by D. W. Helt, president of the union. The union is asking for a virtual return of wartime wages and working conditions.

At present the average rate of pay for the different classes ranges between $6.40 and $3.76 a day. The wartime rate of pay, as announced in decision No. 2, as of July 20, 1920—but later reduced—ranged between $7.04 and $4.72.

In addition to a plea for higher wages, it is understood that the union will also ask for return of the eight hour day, with time and one-half for overtime. The men now receive overtime after the ninth hour.

French Seamen's Strike Spreads to Bordeaux

BORDEAUX, Sept. 23.—The strike of seamen has spread from Marseilles to this port. The crew and personnel of the French steamship Lutetia quit today rather than accept the modification of the eight hour law recently decreed.

RUSSIANS AGAIN DEMAND SEAT IN STRAITS PARLEY

Soviets' Foreign Chief Warns Allies.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MOSCOW, Sept. 23. — Russia is alarmed over the near eastern situation and fears a new era of bloodshed and a new catastrophe for Europe as a result of Great Britain's uncompromising attitude. Russia cannot permit a Dardanelles solution without its participation, and it will take measures to safeguard its interests.

These direct statements, containing a broad hint to Great Britain and a warning to Roumania and Jugo-Slavia to keep their hands out of the Balkan caldron, were made by Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs Karakhan in reply to THE TRIBUNE'S request for a full explanation of Russia's attitude. I pressed the foreign minister to enlarge that part of his statement.

"Definitely, Russia considers the situation serious for all of Europe, and I repeat that Russia cannot permit any solution of the Dardanelles question without its participation," he said. "Any decision detrimental to our interests will result in steps to safeguard our rights. Conditions will determine our course.

Recalls Secret Treaty.

"Does that not mean war?" I asked him.

"Those steps may be determined later, but I assure you they will not be of warlike character," he replied.

After blaming England for the imminent war, he recalled that Great Britain, as well as the other allies, had signed a secret treaty, giving Russia Constantinople and the Dardanelles.

"The Dardanelles are most vital for Russia," he added, "but Russia believes in national integrity and has never claimed the treaty's execution. But the powers must remember that Russian interests are the greatest and Russia will act accordingly. A solution without Russia is no solution. Our treaty with Turkey provides for the freedom of the Dardanelles. We do not want warcraft of any nations to pass through the straits.

"Europeans Must Leave Straits."

"Great Britain's appeal to Roumania and Jugo-Slavia is serious. I hope Roumania and Jugo-Slavia have sense enough not to meddle, especially Roumania."

Prepare to Move Troops.

RIGA, Sept. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—It is reported on apparently good authority that the soviet Russian council for labor and defense has been ordered to prepare the maximum quantity of rolling stock available for the transportation of troops and munitions. A portion of the freight cars intended for the Petrograd, Reval and Riga trade has already been diverted, it is declared.

STATES ADVISED OF U. S. POLICIES REGARDING FUEL

Limitation of Federal Act Explained.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—C. E. Spens of Chicago, federal distributor, in a telegram to governors and state fuel administrators, outlined the policy he will follow in administering the federal fuel distribution and price control law, and appealed for early advices as to the situation in each state and the measures taken or contemplated to meet the emergency.

Mr. Spens made it clear that the federal government could exert its influence on distribution and restrain extortion only as far as concerns coal moving in interstate commerce.

Announcement also was made of the organization of the federal fuel distributor.

Mr. Spens Outlines Policy.

Mr. Spens' telegram to the governors and state fuel administrators follows:

"The federal act signed yesterday by the President provides that it shall be the duty of the federal fuel distributor, among other things, to ascertain in which parts of the United States there shall be a shortage of coal and the extent of such shortage; the fields of production and principal markets to which such production is to be transported and distributed; the prices normally and usually charged for such coal and whether current prices considering the costs of production and distribution are just and reasonable; the nature and location of consumers, and what persons, regions, or community should receive priority in transportation and distribution, and the degree thereof.

"The federal government can exert its influence on distribution and restrain extortion only so far as concerns coal that may be transported from one state to another.

Where U. S. Lacks Jurisdiction.

"It has no jurisdiction as to:

"1. Coal produced and sold within the state of its production.

"2. Retail or wholesale margins or handling coal within these states.

"Responsibility as to these features must rest with the state authorities and if profiteering in coal is to be prevented, except as to coal that may be moved across state lines at extortionate prices, the proper remedy must be applied by state authorities.

"It appears necessary that state organizations or agencies be created in states where they do not now exist that will invite coöperation, that will prevent stocking of coal beyond current necessities and that will establish reasonable margin for retailers and wholesalers. The major responsibility for the price at which the coal is sold to the consumers by the wholesalers or retailers within the state must rest with the state authorities.

"We shall depend on the judgment of the state authorities in each state as to whether or not the aid of the federal government is desired or necessary as to interstate coal."

Coal Output Is Large.

Normal production at the anthracite mines during the present week, Sept. 18-23, has brought the total output of all coal, anthracite and bituminous, up to about 11,650,000 net tons, according to the weekly report of the geological survey. This is still somewhat below the amount required to meet current consumption and lake shipments and at the same time to rebuild consumers' stocks.

The total output of anthracite during the first week after the strike was 1,064,000 net tons and during the present week, the second following the strike, it was about 1,850,000 net tons.

Production of bituminous coal in the last week is estimated at from 9,600,000 to 9,900,000 tons, a slight increase over the week preceding. Loadings on Monday, Sept. 18, were 37,330 cars, the highest since the close of the strike.

New Death Inquiry

EARL WENDEL.

Watseka, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Edward L. Heikes, son of Sheriff George P. Heikes of Iroquois county and himself a deputy sheriff, was held to the grand jury today on a manslaughter charge in connection with the shooting to death on Sept. 12 of Earl Wendel, 1400 Diversey parkway, Chicago, a University of Illinois senior.

Heikes' bond, fixed at $5,000, was signed by F. P. Martin, a local banker. Assistant Attorney General Charles Mansfield assisted State's Attorney Elmer A. Taylor at the hearing.

The grand jury action followed a "whitewashing" of Heikes by a coroner's jury. The American Legion, of which Wendel was a member, was aroused and the youth's father, Henry Wendel, superintendent of Lincoln park boathouses, secured a warrant for Heikes' arrest charging manslaughter.

$100 FOR "PRICE FORM"

Backing up Ald. John H. Lyle's charges of price fixing among coal dealers, Russell J. Poole, secretary of the council living costs committee, yesterday offered a $100 reward for a report form which, he charged, is now being used by retailers in the "making" of uniform prices in Chicago.

Mr. Poole exhibited a half of a form mailed out weekly by the retail coal bureau in former years to members of the Chicago Coal Merchants' association, according to information which, he asserted, was given him by "a millionaire coal dealer."

"I am offering this reward in the belief that the form will materially bolster up the case against coal dealers, which is now in the state's attorney's hands," Mr. Poole said. "I will pay the $100 either for the new form which I understand is being used, or for the other half of the old form, which is very similar to the one now being used."

"The association claims that the coal bureau went out of existence in 1921, but I am informed that an organization has taken its place and is carrying on its work.

Urges Public to Hold Back.

"The scheme is simple. Coal dealers fill out the form weekly, designating their firm by number, known only to the secretary of the central organization. If they are charging too little they are called on the telephone and told to raise their prices in conformity with that of other dealers or face a shutoff in their supply by the mine owners, who are in combination with the association."

BUY LITTLE COAL NOW; IT WILL BE CHEAPER: FORD

Prices Will Tumble Later, He Says.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 23.—Henry Ford, in a newspaper interview late today, advised the people of the country to "buy as little coal as possible now," declaring "coal prices are tumbling."

Mr. Ford granted the interview shortly after his return from southern Ohio, where he arranged for an uninterrupted movement of coal to his Detroit industries.

"Tell the people of the whole world if you can," Mr. Ford said to his interviewer, "that if they would save money they should not buy coal in any great amount now. Tell them to buy only enough to get along. For coal prices are tumbling and they will go much lower. They will have opportunity later on to get their winter's coal much more cheaply."

Coal Moving North.

Mr. Ford, in company with his son, Edsel, president of the Ford Motor company, spent three days along the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad, the manufacturer's property, and saw hundreds of thousands of tons of coal moving northward, he said. They arranged for an emple supply of fuel for the Ford plants for the next sixty days, he announced.

"There is enough coal above ground to run the country for a long time," Mr. Ford said. "The high prices were made because the supply was held back from the market. But the price is falling rapidly. We bought 500 cars of coal in Toledo for $5 a ton. That, of course, includes the freight rate from the mines to Toledo.

Buys at $3 a Ton.

"At Cincinnati Edsel arranged for a sixty day supply of coal for approximately $3 a ton at the mines. And that is $2 a ton less than what the brokers paid for it. The brokers have held their coal so long that their profits have been wiped out and now they must unload at any price. Before spring comes you'll see coal sell for a good deal below $3 a ton."

Asked as to his opinion regarding the anthracite situation, Mr. Ford said:

"We saw a good deal of that moving north, too. The price of that will be falling pretty quick—at least, it ought to."

Four Hours Makes You an Aviator in This Plane

Dayton, O., Sept. 23.—Perfection of a new "safety" airplane which can be flown by a person after four hours' training was announced today by the Dayton Wright Airplane company.

Mechanism of the plane has been so simplified, the manufacturers assert, that the ship will guide itself after being taken into the air.

Kenneth Lane, a Dayton youth, spent four hours in the plane with an instructor. Then he ascended alone in the plane and not only resorted to straight flying but accomplished "stunts" which experienced aviators hitherto have been able to perform only after long training, the company announcement said.

Col. V. E. Clark, designer for the Dayton Wright company, is given credit for making changes in the controls of the ship which have brought about the simplified flying system. An old plane was converted and equipped with new mechanism.

Woman Chokes to Death on Meat When at Supper

While eating steak at supper last night Mrs. Anna Juranis, 33 years old, 8374 Birkhoff street, choked to death on a piece of it. Her husband, Antonio seated across the table, attempted to save her by removing the meat, but failed. The body was removed to the John Eudikus morgue, 4615 South State street.

Fail to Abolish Wine at Closing Session.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—After making it unlawful for divorced persons who are members of the Episcopal church to remarry, whether by an Episcopal clergyman, the civil courts, or by a clergyman of any other church; approving the ordination of Congregational clergymen by Episcopal bishops while allowing the ministers to continue in the Congregational church; declining to fully enter the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America; and after defeating four measures to give women a legal standing in the councils of the church, the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church, which has been in session here since Sept. 6, adjourned today to meet in 1925 in New Orleans.

The amendment to the canon of marriage and divorce, which was passed late last evening, had been previously passed by the house of bishops and is effective at once.

Grant Aspirations Recalled.

"That puts a stop to the aspirations of the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant to marry a divorcée," said one of the deputies who expressed pleasure at the passage of the law.

Concerning the use of fermented wine the bishops declined to act, but referred the resolution presented by the diocese of Los Angles asking permission to use the "fruit of the vine" to a commission to report at the next general convention. The bishop who presented the findings of the house of bishops on the subject, being asked as to its significance, replied:

"O, it is simply passing the buck."

Robert H. Gardiner of Gardiner, Me., secretary of the world conference on faith and order, said the defeat of the resolution to enter the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America came from certain wealthy laymen who were offended by the report on the steel strike.

Says Report Is Confused.

"This report," he said, "was put out by the Interchurch World movement and not by the federal council, but the papers failed to differentiate between the two."

Mr. Gardiner deplored also the failure of the legislation in behalf of women.

"There are women in the church of the finest type, educated and deeply religious, who want a larger share in the tasks of the church. We have lost them and we will lose more of these women by our conservatism."

Closing Sessions Simple.

The reading of the pastoral letter was the final service of the convention. The bishops taking part appeared in their episcopal robes. The religious ceremony was simple. The pastoral letter was read by the Rt. Rev. Charles Fiske, bishop coadjutor of central New York. The Rt. Rev. William Cabell Brow, bishop of Virginia, and chairman of the house of bishops, officiated, and the Rt. Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle acted in his capacity as presiding bishop of the church.

The pastoral letter said:

"Service: It is the lesson which many of the members of this church have special opportunity to apply to industrial life. Were great corporations to realize that they are, and must be, primarily corporations for public service rather than for private profit, it would be easier to reply to agitators who threaten their peace and prosperity.

"And labor: The unions will be as cordially hated as the most unpopular of industrial trusts if they neglect the call to serve while insisting on the right to have. Efficiency in production, honesty in labor, better work as well as better wages—this must be the program, if industrial justice is also demanded."

Chief Results of Conclave.

Among accomplishments of the convention were:

Recognition of the ministry of healing.

Revision of the prayer book.

Declaring for prohibition enforcement and free speech.

Declaration for the rights of labor in industrial controversies.

Approval of a church program involving the expenditure of approximately $21,000,000 in three years.

Condemnation of holding raffles or other "gambling" devices in churches.

ARM OF THE LAW ACROSS THE SEAS

Children of slain Chicago man giving testimony which may send the alleged slayer, now in Italy, to prison for life. From left to right: Assistant State's Attorneys Thomas Reilly and John Sbarbaro, Detective Michael Mullen and Policeman John Lannon, who investigated the murder, and the son and daughter of the victim, William Stabile, 13, and Libretta Stabile, 15 years.

BOOZE AUTOIST, HEIR TO WEALTH, GETS JAIL TERM

San Jose, Cal., Sept. 23.—Phillip C. Valentine, whose father was the late J. C. Valentine, millionaire head of the Wells-Fargo & Co. express, was under sentence of one to five years in the state penitentiary today as a result of pleading guilty to a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated. His plea for probation was denied.

Valentine's car is alleged to have struck one in which George Boyer and Miss Miriam Donald, a school teacher, were riding. Miss Donald suffered a broken leg.

CHILDREN HERE MAY SEND MAN TO ITALIAN PRISON

Say Fugitive Killed Their Father.

Read by the prosecutor for the crown in a crowded Italian courtroom, the testimony of a murdered man's children, heard yesterday in Chicago in the quiet chambers of Chief Justice McKinley, may close the prison gates for life on Tony Caponnigro, who is awaiting trial in a jail in Italy, or it may mean his exoneration on a charge of murdering Flore Stabile in Chicago in April, 1921.

Under the terms of the treaty between this country and Italy, an Italian citizen taking refuge in flight to his native land cannot be extradited, but his own courts will apprehend him and try him for the crime committed in the country from which he fled.

Roomer Is Suspected.

Stabile was shot and killed on April 3, 1921, in his home at 447 South Clark street. Investigation by Sergt. Michael Mullen and Officer John Lannan led them to believe the murder was committed by Caponigro, a roomer. Caponigro, however, had escaped to Italy.

A letter from Caponigro's wife in Italy addressed to her husband in Chicago gave the officers the information they desired. They know where Caponigro would go and notified the Italian authorities. Caponigro was arrested as he crossed the doorsill of his Italian home.

Children Tell Story.

Libretta Stabile, 16 years old, and William Stabile, 13 years old, children of the slain man, were brought before the court yesterday and told the story of their father's death. Stabile and Caponigro, it seemed, had quarreled over a woman. They had also had arguments over money received in a private wine selling enterprise. They came to blows; there were shots; Caponigro ran out on the street, leaving Stabile dying of bullet wounds on the floor.

A certified copy of the children's testimony, that of Sergt. Mullen and Officer Lannan, and two other witnesses who heard the shots and saw Caponigro in flight, will be sent to Italy.

H. Stern Estate $65,000; Travers Leon's Is $200,000

Property valued at $265,000 was disposed of in the will of the late Henry Stern, retired capitalist, and the late Travers Leon, filed yesterday.

Mr. Stern, who died July 18, divided his $65,000 estate between two daughters, Mrs. Cora S. Hirsch, 1706 East 56th street, and Mrs. Gertrude S. Florsheim, 4729 Woodlawn avenue, wife of Milton Florsheim of Florsheim Shoe company.

BABE RUTH FANS OUT ON MEMORY TEST OVER BABY

Wife Says He's Wrong on Date of Girl's Birth.

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Dorothy Ruth, 16 months old, is likely enough the daughter of George Herman [Babe] Ruth, erstwhile home run king, and Mrs. Ruth, but there are startling discrepancies in the statements today of Ruth in Cleveland and Mrs. Ruth in the family suite at Hotel Ansonia here, regarding the time and place of the child's birth.

Mrs. Ruth declared the child was born to her at St. Vincent's hospital on June 7, 1921. St. Vincent's is a Catholic hospital.

Babe Ruth, in the clubhouse at Dunn field, Cleveland, this afternoon said his daughter would be 2 years old next Feb. 2, and that she was born at Presbyterian hospital, New York. Ruth is a Catholic.

Says She Ought to Know.

Mrs. Ruth said she was, naturally, in a way to know just where and when the child was born. She said Dorothy's father was very careless about dates. She could not account for his having muffed the name of the hospital.

Some of Ruth's teammates thought the slugger at least should be able to recall whether Dorothy's birth occurred during the baseball season or the winter months.

Told that the date he named and that given by Mrs. Ruth as that of Dorothy's advent were more than four months apart, the Bambino said he guessed he might have been mistaken. Informed that Mrs. Ruth had fixed June 7 as the day, Ruth said:

"I guess she knows."

Bambina Enjoys Fame.

Dorothy, where and whenever she came into the world so unexpectedly that she weighed by 40 ounces and for four months had to be nurtured in an incubator, posed for photographers today in Mrs. Ruth's arms, said "mamma" and "dad" nicely, insisted on kissing interviewers, and fairly reveled in the ado about her. She has a retroussé nose like the Sultan of Swat That Was, a crown of light yellow ringlets, and sixteen teeth —"one for every month," as Mrs. Ruth said.

According to Mrs. Ruth, three earlier babies, two girls and a boy, born to her and Babe, died in their infancy.

JUDGE JACOBS' EX-WIFE SUES; REUNION SEEN

Rumors of a possible reconciliation between Municipal Judge Lawrence B. Jacobs and his former wife, Mrs. Irene Cartwright, gained strength yesterday when it became known that Mrs. Cartwright had filed suit for divorce in Superior court from Howard S. Cartwright, supervisor of license inspectors in the health department.

Mrs. Cartwright, in a bill filed by Attorney Frank Teed, seeks her freedom on the ground that Cartwright had neglected to obtain a divorce from his first wife before marrying her. The couple was married on March 8, 1821, nine days, it is alleged, before Cartwright was divorced by Mrs. Minerva Cartwright, and less than three months after Mrs. Cartwright was divorced by Judge Jacobs.

WIFE HYSTERICAL AS SISTER FAINTS AT POULIN TRIAL

Breaks Down When Mate Loses "Alibi" Witness.

either Monday, Aug. 15, or Tuesday, Aug. 16.

Sister Tells of Visit.

Regarding the first date, Aug. 9, Harry's sister, Mrs. Loretta McCaffery, has some definite recollections. She and her husband were then living in Chicago but spent their vacation the first two weeks of August in South Bend with her mother. The defense brought Mrs. McCaffery down to Aug. 9.

Q.—Did Mrs. Poulin leave for Chicago Tuesday, Aug. 9? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Were you at your mother's house at dinner that night? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Who was there? A.—My father, mother, my brother Harry, my husband, I think our little baby, and myself.

Q.—What time was dinner? A.—6:30.

Q.—What time did Harry come? A.—Between 6:15 and 6:30.

Invited to Stay There.

Q.—How did Harry happen to be there? A.—He was invited by my mother to stay at our home while his wife was in Chicago.

Q.—What occurred later? A.—Just spent the evening talking.

Q.—Anything said about Harry sleeping there? A.—Mother said he could have his regular room.

Q.—Did Harry return there for the night? A.—Yes, sir.

Prof. and Mrs. Tiernan, who had been flirting with each other, now smiled over the testimony.

Wednesday, Aug. 10, Mrs. McCaffery testified was a half holiday and Harry spent the afternoon fishing with Dr. Stonecipher and returned home at 8:30. She recalled telephoning the Adler residence to inquire about the health of Mr. Adler and was informed that he was not expected to live. They all retired at 10:45, she said.

Said Harry Went Fishing.

Regarding Thursday, Aug. 11, one of Mrs. Tiernan's "compromising dates," Mrs. McCaffery said: "Mr. Adler died early that morning and the store was closed all day. My husband and Harry left the house about 1:30 and went fishing."

Q.—When did they return? A.—I didn't see them return.

Q.—Did you see them that evening? A.—My mother and I were at a party at Mrs. Hankey's, my aunt. Mr. McCaffery called for us at 10. He said he had let Harry off at his home at 9:15.

Q.—When you returned home did you see Harry? A.—I can't say that I did.

Monday, Aug. 15, the McCafferys left South Bend for Chicago on the 2:50 train.

Why She Remembered Dates.

On cross-examination Prosecutor Floyd O. Jellison asked the witness how she remembered so accurately "the days, the hours, and almost the minutes" of her association with her brother during his vacation visit.

"Because it was the first time that Harry had returned home to live since his marriage fifteen years ago," she replied.

Joseph McCaffery, husband of Mrs. Loretta McCaffery, next testified that he had been fishing at Willow lake with Poulin on the afternoon of Aug. 11, had taken him home to change his clothes and had heard him say he was going to the Adler home to "Sit up with the deceased Mr. Adler."

John Anderson, a business associate of Poulin at the Adler store, testified that he had attended the wake Thursday night, Aug. 15.

"I was there," he said, "between 9 and 10. Harry Poulin came at 9:30." Questioned regarding Monday night, Aug. 15, Anderson told how he had called for Harry at 8 at the home of his brother, Joseph Poulin. He stated that he and Harry had attended the Blackstone theater in South Bend alone and had returned to Joseph Poulin's at 10.

Anderson remembers that he drove his fiancée, Miss Leah Hankey, Harry Poulin and Harry's mother home from the party. Both Harry and his mother, the witness declared, got out at Mrs. Poulin's home shortly after 10.

Stress Anderson's Testimony.

The defense stressed Anderson's statement that he had spent the night of Wednesday, Aug. 17, at Harry Poulin's home. It was one or two nights preceeding, Mrs. Tiernan is uncertain which, that she declares she had a meeting with Harry Poulin in the children's bedroom.

Q.—Where were you on the evening of Aug. 17? A.—I attended a party at the Tiernan home.

Q.—What did you do after the party? A.—I stayed all night with Harry Poulin.

Q.—Was everything in good shape at the Poulins? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Where did you sleep that night? A.—I believe I slept in the children's bedroom.

Room in Good Order.

Q.—Was it in neat appearance? A.—Yes, it was in good order.

A question as to whether or not the "Victrola looked as if it had been played" was ruled out because it was "not understandable."

Anderson further testified that he frequently drove Harry Poulin home from the store in his machine, "and when Miss Hankey and Mrs. Tiernan happened to be downtown shopping we would take them along."

"Where did you sit?" Prosecutor Jellison asked. "In the front seat," was the answer.

Q.—Who sat with you? A.—Miss Hankey.

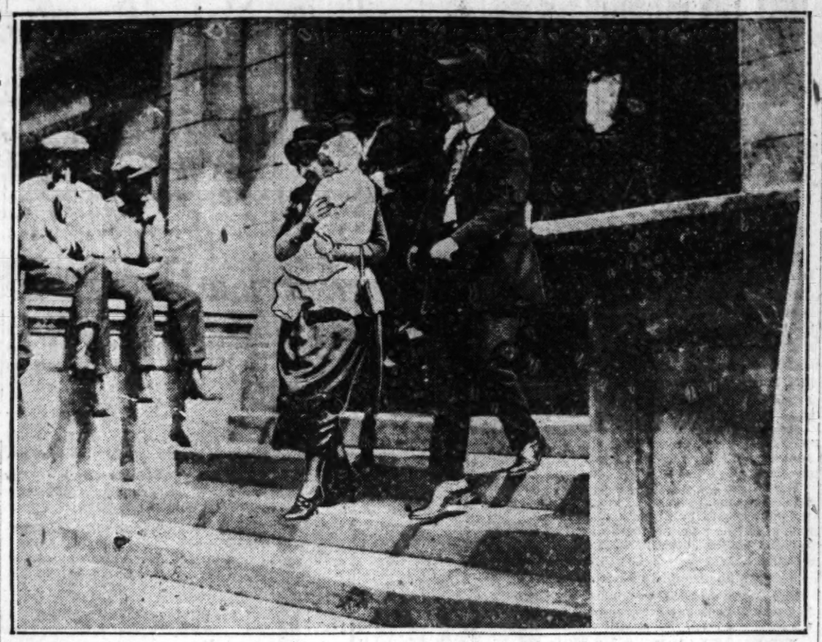
Q.—Where did Harry Poulin sit? A.—On the back seat.

Q.—Who was with him? A.—Mrs. Tiernan.

Anderson admitted that he often took his passengers for a little spin before going home, but denied that he had ever been out more than twenty minutes.

"It was not unusual," Mr. Jellison asked, "for Poulin and Mrs. Tiernan to be alone on the back seat, was it? A.—I didn't think anything of it.

TIERNANS, UNITED, LEAVE COURT



Mrs. Augusta Tiernan, with her baby, Billy, "exhibit A" in South Bend's famous paternity case, leaving the city hall with her husband, Prof. John P. Tiernan, where they are attempting to prove Harry Poulin, dashing haberdasher, is father of the child. [Photo by W. T. Vincent.]

POLICE SEEK ELOPERS.

Police yesterday were asked to search for Elizabeth Wrichs, 17, and Richard Runyon, 20, of Nashville, Tenn., who are believed to have eloped to Chicago.

BLOOD TEST MAY DECIDE FATHER OF TIERNAN BABE

San Francisco, Sept. 23.—Dr. Albert Abrams of San Francisco, who has evolved a system whereby he claims he can establish the parentage of an infant through vibratory blood tests, may be called into the trial in South Bend, Ind., of Harry Poulin, haberdasher, charged with being the father of a child of Mrs. Augusta Tiernan, according to an announcement today from Dr. Abrams' offices here. Dr. Abrams left for Chicago today to open a school for instruction in his system.

Tiernan Admits Inquiry.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 23.—Prof. John P. Tiernan this afternoon admitted that he had corresponded with Dr. Albert Abrams of San Francisco, regarding the taking of blood tests to prove that the third child of Mrs. Tiernan was the son of Harry Poulin and not of himself.

Musically the most beautiful Piano the world has ever known

The Mason & Hamlin Piano

THE Mason & Hamlin Piano costs more than any other; and yet those competent to judge declare that its worth far exceeds its price, for into it are built the things that are beyond the measure of money. Like the old Cremona violins its enduring beauty of tone gives it a unique place among instruments of its kind.

Harold Bauer, master musician, writes: "It is the most superbly beautiful instrument that I know;" Pablo Casals, known as the greatest living musician who draws the bow, calls it "unequalled in its artistic appeal;" Rosa Raisa, the great soprano, proclaims it "absolutely the most perfect piano;" and similar opinions are expressed by hundreds of other musicians.

We invite you to play and hear this remarkable piano. On sale and exhibition in Chicago only at the music rooms of the

AUSTRIA WAITS FOR SOMEBODY ELSE TO SAVE IT

It Expects Something to Drop Soon.

BY OTIS SWIFT.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

VIENNA, Sept. 23.—The Austrian problem has remained largely in status quo. Tension has relaxed somewhat here in the hope that something might come of Dr. Seipel's tour of Europe, or that the league of nations would do something to help Austria.

If no way is found out of the situation trouble will certainly come here this winter, possibly within even a few weeks, for the situation is constantly growing worse.

Question in Any Event.

If, however, the situation is momentarily alleviated by a loan, waiving of reparations and food claims, permission for economic union with some neighbor (for the possibility of common customs frontiers with Italy is not entirely dead, although moribund), the question arises whether Austria can eventually pull through, or whether a revision of Versailles will be necessary before middle Europe is sound again.

Austrians say they could. They say that if credits could be advanced to put their money on a sound basis Austria could become a manufacturing unit that, operating on the middle European market, could exchange goods for foodstuffs. They say that with rotation of crops they could also do a great deal more toward feeding their own people. They want the chance to do this.

But Austria has no natural assets beyond good iron, salt, and timber. It would have to import tremendous amounts of raw material for its manufactures. Its people are naturally lazy, pleasure loving, and those I have talked with do not seem good business men. They have had big advances from the powers since the war, but these advances have not prevented them from making a mess of their finances. The farmers could produce more, but they do not.

Czechs Hard Competitors.

Furthermore, Austria would, under present circumstances, have to compete against customs boundaries. It would also have to compete against the industrious Czecho-Slovaks, who are working hard to become a greater manufacturing nation. Northern Italy is tending more toward industrialism. Even if Austria could reconstruct its finances, it would have a difficult path ahead as a trading nation.

A political unity with one of its neighbors seems almost impossible. Austria is too big and too much of a focal point for Europe to allow any one nation to absorb it. Germany may some day be strong enough to defy western Europe and absorb Austria, but it is not in position to do so now.

The suggestion has been made recently that the Austro-Hungarian empire might be revived. Austria, Hungary, Czecho-Slovakia, and much of Jugo-Slavia form a geographic unit in the drainage basin of the Danube. The river gives a common stream of trade. Vienna is the geographic and historic center. It is the natural dispensing point of politic and commercial affairs. It is the center of things.

Nationalism in Way.

But Versailles loosened a torrent of racial, political, nationalist aspirations in this corner of Europe. The new succession states are all (with the exception of Jugo-Slavia, where the Serbs dominate) nationally conscious to an intense degree. The old aristocracy has been submerged, and these countries are now being run by a new bourgeoisie, each member of which has something to gain by his particular little slice being a nation. Each nation strives for dominance, with Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia in the lead. Geographic considerations have drawn the little entente together, but each member of the little entente has its own business game to play.

To re-create the Austro-Hungarian empire as a politic unit would require a head. Vienna has no longer the financial or moral force for this. Vienna has lost caste in the eyes of its former subjects. It is too threadbare, and they are not afraid of it any more. Vienna held these heterogeneous peoples together by the sword, and the sword is broken.

"Keep Out!" Youngstown Message to W. Z. Foster

Youngstown, O., Sept. 23.—William Z. Foster, arrested recently in Michigan with alleged Communists, will be "sent out of town" if he tries to fill a speaking date here Oct. 2 to raise funds for his companions, Mayor Reese today told Wallace C. Metcalf, local secretary of the American Civil Liberties union, who urged that Foster be permitted to speak.

STOCK DENIES ENGAGEMENT OF DAUGHTER, VERA

Back in Chicago after a three months' tour of European countries, Frederick A. Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra gave his opinions of the condition of music across the sea, at Orchestra hall yesterday. He also took occasion to neny an engagement between his 20 year old daughter, Vera, and Ralph L. Hoy of Brainerdsville, N. Y., reported to have been the result of a romance at the University of Michigan last year.

"Both my daughter and Mr. Hoy are young," Mr. Stock said. "She has her musical education to finish. She agrees with me that that is more important at present than an affair of the heart. I have nothing against Mr. Hoy, but I wish to be assured that he is the man for her."

Miss Vera and Mrs. Stock accompanied the orchestra conductor on the European tour. They are at a summer resort at present.

Mr. Stock will leave for Pittsfield, Mass., Tuesday, to be present at a festival given by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, formerly of Chicago. After engaging some soloists in New York, he will return to Chicago, to conduct rehearsals for the season which starts Oct. 13 and 14.

Bandits Rob Canadian Bank of $7,000; Shoot Preacher

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 23.—One man was wounded and $7,000 in currency and a number of Victory bonds were obtained in the robbery of the Melita, Manitoba, branch of the Union Bank of Canada early today. The Rev. Thomas Beveridge, editor of a newspaper, surprised the bandits. He was told to "keep away," and when he refused four shots were fired at him, the fourth wounding him slightly.

G. A. R. VETERANS ROUSED BY SLAP AT ABE LINCOLN

Resent Resolution Adopted by Confederates.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Something of the old "difference of opinion" which sent the men of the north and south into the field against each other sixty years ago may be re-echoed here, it was learned tonight, when the fifty-sixth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic opens officially Monday morning.

Union Veterans Aroused.

The veterans of the Union army are aroused, it is said, over the action of the confederate veterans, who, at their national gathering in Richmond, Va., last June, adopted resolutions asserting that Abraham Lincoln personally conceived and impelled the war of the rebellion.

It is expected that some of the G. A. R. men will bring up this matter at a business session next Thursday and attempt to force resolutions condemning the action of the southerners before the encampment, although leaders of the organization say it probably will be ignored.

Repudiates the Resolution.

Gaylord Davidson of Charleston, W. Va., himself a confederate veteran, has attempted to secure a hearing on the subject before business sessions of the G. A. R., to repudiate, in part at least, the resolution concerning Lincoln.

He explains that the resolution was adopted when the convention hall of the confedereate veterans was practically deserted and that it does not represent the views of the majority.

It was expected that Mr. Davidson will be here once again to present his plea before the G. A. R. business session.

RICH MERCHANT KILLS HIMSELF IN OAK PARK HOME

John Svoboda, 59 years old, wealthy owner of a dry goods store at 22d street and California avenue, committed suicide yesterday in his home, 342 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, by shooting himself with a revolver. His wife was in another room at the time.

Mrs. Svoboda heard the shot and found her husband's body on the floor. She summoned Dr. E. W. Kidd, the family physician, but it was too late.

WARSHIP BRINGS HUGHES TO N. Y. IN RECORD TIME

Impressed by Rio Exposition.

New York, Sept. 23.—Secretary of State Hughes returned aboard the battleship Maryland today from Rio de Janeiro, where he attended the opening of the Brazilian centennial exposition, and a few hours after disembarking boarded a train for Washington.

He declined to discuss the situation in the near east. It was learned, however, that on the voyage from Rio he was in constant communication with the state department, keeping abreast with developments abroad.

Glad to Get Back.

He said the trip had greatly benefited him, and that he had enjoyed it, but would be glad to get back to his desk. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hughes. They were met by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hughes Jr., and a number of naval officers.

On the voyage from Rio the Maryland weathered two severe storms, but made the trip in ten days, seventeen hours and twenty-two minutes, breaking the record of ten days and twenty-two hours, made by the American Legion. Secretary and Mrs. Hughes, according to Admiral Hilary P. Jones, who also was aboard the Maryland, are admirable sailors. During several hours of a hurricane off Bermuda, they stood on the bridge, watching the storm.

Secretary and Mrs. Hughes found a great deal of amusement in the pets the Maryland's crew gathered in Brazil.

"In fact," said Admiral Jones, "we have a menagerie aboard. There are something like 45 monkeys, about 50 parrots and a like number of canaries, parakeets and love birds, not to mention the flock of goats."

Impressed by Exposition.

Secretary and Mrs. Hughes were deeply impressed with the beauties of Rio and of the marvels of the exposition. The United States building, Secretary Hughes said, would be a credit to our government. He added he was sure that the exposition would be a great success.

Rear Admiral Vogelgesang, who accompanied Secretary Hughes to Rio, remained aboard the battleship Nevada to await the commission of American naval officers to be sent there for the purpose of supervising the reorganization of the Brazilian navy.

Woman Drives Car of Men Who Rob Minnesota Bank

Savage, Minn., Sept. 23.—Bandits who robbed the First State Bank of Savage of $16,500 in cash and Liberty bonds today fled in an automobile driven by a woman, according to persons who pursued the bandit car as far as Rosemount, where the trail was lost.

THE REAL AMERICAN SOUL.

The United States may expect to be defamed occasionally in Europe and can accept it as a consequence of international misunderstandings. Depreciation frequently is offset by appreciation. If America finds a snarling, caustic critic in Kipling, whom it admires as a writer, it also finds a stanch advocate in J. St. Loe Strachey of the Spectator. There are pro-Americans in England as well as Yankophobes.

What provokes resentment is the defaming of America by pale, parlor Americans who would, if they could, raise a generation of young Americans in mistaken ideas of their country, its purposes, and achievements. Some of these defamers are instructors and publicists. They are trying to influence public opinion. The dispersion of the Greeks by the Turks has given them another opportunity and they denounce the United States for its betrayal of humanity.

They say Americans have done a shabby thing, a soulless thing. They pulled out of Europe and left it flat in its troubles. Uncle Sam is the great criminal of the universe, they say. They say he is a money-grubber with a case hardened soul which cannot be touched by the appeal of humanity. Frequently these vaporings, although they madden sane Americans, get only an irritated counterblast of denial, whereas probably they ought to be answered occasionally by an assertive review of American acts.

Since the treaty of peace at Versailles there has not been a war on the two American continents. The only great geographical divisions occupied by the human race which have not had wars since the world vowed it had enough of war are the two divisions in which the United States is the greatest nation, numerically and in potential force.

The only great fleet in these waters is the American fleet. The only nation on these continents which could raise and support an overwhelming army is the American nation. The only nation which could undertake to carry out a policy of aggression against liberty and resources elsewhere is the United States.

Almost the first act of America after the war was to fairly wreck its army. Its next was to propose a pro rata reduction of its naval power and forego the advantages which its wealth gave it in naval building to avoid the perils of such challenging competition. It asked Japan to respect the rights of the Chinese and Siberians. It gave away its equities in German islands in the Pacific. It assured Japan that it would not stick guns on American Pacific possessions under the nose of Japan.

By word and act it proved that what it wanted was peace in international relations. It did not ask for a square foot of territory in any part of the world. It did not even get the expenses of the American army on the Rhine for which both allies and Germans asked. It taxed itself to feed Russia. Its relief agents went from the Arctic to the tropics. Wherever there was a wail of misery the American dollar rolled to do what it could to help.

Here on the American continents mixed races with many questions in conflict have lived in peace. Our own frontier touches a kindred breed to the north and there is no fort on that line. On the south it touches a land of reds, blacks, and whites, and mixtures of the three. To the south we have varying degrees of civilization, from that of blacks in the jungle to that of highly cultured Latins.

The United States has tried not to offend the culture of the one or impose upon the savagery of the other. The pale Americans, seeking to defame their nation, have found nothing worse than our intervention in Haiti, where a few port city blacks, trained in French culture, form an outline for the jungle depths of superstition, cruelty, and ignorance.

If the pale Americans were not so mentally perverted they would be insisting that the United States thoroughly extinguish barbarism here and set up school houses, but it suits their temperament to find America imposing upon liberty.

There was a serious cause of war in South America between Chile and Peru, and the United States tried to find a way in diplomacy to avoid the use of armies, and we believe has succeeded by conferences in Washington.

The United States has ruled Porto Rico gently. It has dealt with Mexico in generous toleration and with patient encouragement. It has endured provocations which would have started an imperialistic nation on a campaign of conquest and grabbing of resources. It has remained in the Philippines against its own good and merely because it has been unable to answer the moral question relating to Filipino welfare in the future if American protection were withdrawn.

It realizes the gravity of its troubles with Japan and has tried in every way to bring them to an amicable solution. In the United States there has been no imperialism. From it there has been no overrunning of helpless people and no desire except for the common good.

In Europe and Asia since the peace there has been the war Poland started against Russia and the war Russia carried to Poland in return. There has been the Italian attack on Jugo-Slavia at Fiume. There has been the war of the Spanish against the Berbers. There has been the handling of the Arabs by the British. There has been the Egyptian insurrection and the Indian revolt. There have been the aggressions of the Japanese against the Chinese and Siberians. There has been the invasion of Hungary by Roumania. There have been the threats of the French to send their army to the Rhine. There has been the starving of Austria. There has been the attack of the Greeks against the Turks, and the expulsion of the Greeks by the Turks from Asia Minor.

Wherever in Europe or Asia nations were strong, or thought they were strong, there have been invasion of territory, war, and destruction. Where the United States is strong and persuasive there is peace.

On the continents where the powerful nations of the league control there have been massacre, looting, and actual threats against white civilization.

Is the United States, upon the plain record of these facts, in moral default to the world? Only a pale American would say so.

POWER IN THE WASTE PLACES.

In congress the house of representatives is the voice of representative government. Its membership is determined, or supposed to be, by population. It is elected every two years and supposed, therefore, to be responsible and responsive. The house of representatives does not legislate. It has become less than a debating society. It is a body controlled by a few men who deliver it to whatever the senate decides. Money bills must originate with it, but even they get their final shape in the senate.

The senate is designedly a check against too much democracy. It is not astonishing that our experimental forefathers thought of checks. This senatorial check was based on state sovereignty. Rhode Island entered the first senate with as much dignity as New York, Delaware with as much power as Pennsylvania or Massachusetts, but the contrasts then were not what they are now.

In any attempt at an equipoise between two legislative or administrative bodies the power naturally tends to leave the one which is larger numerically and settle in the one which is smaller. The larger body tends towards discussion. The smaller takes to action.

There is, furthermore, a drift towards limitation of franchise in thickly settled areas. There seems to be a fear of democracy when masses become great in one locality. There are evidences of that in the limitation of the representation of New York City in the state legislature and in the proposed restriction of Chicago. There is also the proposed restriction of Cook county on the state supreme bench. The recent change in the state constitution to be submitted in December limits Cook county to two judges on a bench of nine.

The gradual concentration of power in the United States senate has actually transferred power from the thickly settled portions of the country to the sparsely settled. Frequently it is easier for a man to retain power and, hence, continuance in office in a small state than in a large one. Organization control is more easily maintained in the small state. Seniority in the senate thus is attained by the small state man and in the senate tradition of organization he goes to the head of committees.

The following classification of states shows how the senate personnel is recruited:

OVER 2,000,000.		BELOW 2,000,000.

		Arkansas	1,752,204
		Kansas	1,769,257
		Mississippi	1,790,618
		Louisiana	1,798,509

States, each with a considerably less population than Chicago, have fifty-four senators in the supreme legislative body of the nation, where the power resides. They represent roughly 25,000,000 people. States which have each over 2,000,000 population and represent a total of about 80,000,000 people, have forty-two senators. Not only that, but taking the important committeeships of the senate, the chairmanships of nine are in the hands of small state men and of five in the control of the populous states.

The great mass of the country does not run the country. A rural political aristocracy runs what we regard as a great democracy. If power were centered in the house of representatives, it might be otherwise, but, with the house functioning as a debating society and the senate as a body of decision and action, the American republic has evolved a check upon democracy which is almost a stop upon it, which has its sources of power in the semi-waste places of the nation and gets its authority from a decided minority living quite apart from the swirl of real American activity.

WAGES AND PROSPERITY.

A notable upward movement in wages during the month from Aug. 15 to Sept. 15 is revealed in a compilation made by the National Industrial Conference board. It is interesting as a sidelight upon labor troubles and upon the law of supply and demand.

According to this compilation wages in general ceased to drop about four months ago, when business began to pick up. In the month from April 15 to May 15 there were 54 reductions and 9 increases of pay in establishments representing all lines of industry in all sections of the country. That was the last notable decrease. In the succeeding month there were 23 reductions and 26 increases, in the next month 25 reductions and 21 increases, and in the month from July 15 to Aug. 15, 7 reductions and 8 increases.

The balance for three months was about equal, but the greater number of changes in the first two of these three months reveals a very unsettled condition, though labor as a whole did not lose. In the month of Aug. 15 to Sept. 15, however, there were only 4 reductions against 119 increases. That is a notable movement in favor of labor, and incidentally in favor of all prosperity, which is based upon the production and sale of commodities and dependent upon a market in which the purchasing power of labor is a tremendous factor.

How was this change for the better in the general wage scale of the country brought about? Largely by the law of supply and demand. Certainly not by strikes. It was influenced largely by the 20 per cent raise in wages authorized by the United States Steel corporation, which runs an open shop. That was not a philanthropic move. It was due primarily to the shortage of common labor, attributable in large part to the restrictive immigration laws which shut out cheap European labor. But it was followed by increases in wages paid in forty-seven metal trades. Others increased their wage scales because their need of labor, due to improving markets, made it necessary and possible. It was a natural economic development, in no way due to organization.

The greatest strikes in the period did not bring about wage increases. The miners went back to work at their old scale. The textile workers returned at the scale operative last spring. The shopmen took a reduction.

Stronger than any organized force was the demand for commodities and the need of labor to produce them. That means prosperity.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

The autumnal equinox is the New Year's of the garden. It starts its new life when the thickets are beginning to show tongues of flame and when the leaves whirl down in every strong wind, when early twilight urges the shortening day to early candle light, when every clear, still night brings fear of frost to blacken the remaining bloom of summer, and when smoke curls up the chimney as the twilight comes.

The commuter's ticket registers New Year's when the days of autumn begin. That is the beginning of another roll of the seasons. The new garden is planned where the old one stands in its dried stalks. The traveler going down the lane may have approached the inevitability of the change with regret and have watched the dropping leaves as indicators of the loss of days, but there is zest ahead at the new turn of the road.

From now on increasingly the traveler wishes not to linger by the way, but to step out briskly. With each step he is circling back, and it is a small irony in his travel that as his expectation grows eager the clip travels most slowly along the edge of his ticket. The collector goes slowly through the snow, but with speeding feet as soon as wild roses are where red berries are now.

MODERN FANATICS.

The Anti-Saloon league is out to beat Anton J. Cermak for president of the county board. The fact that this office has no duties connected with liquor legislation or enforcement is no deterrent. Cermak is a "wet," and all "wets" must be annihilated.

Mr. Cermak's opponent, Charles S. Peterson, is making a strong play for the foreign born vote. With this divided, the Anti-Saloon league hopes to swing the election.

Either Mr. Cermak or Mr. Peterson must have superior claims to ability to run this particular office. Very likely it is Peterson. The Anti-Saloon league does not care. All wets must be beaten. All drys elected.

A dry, by the way, is any man who will take orders or make a deal with the league. The league joined the worst men in Illinois politics in organizing the last legislature.

The league is fanatic. Its ends justify its means in the eyes of its bosses.

CORN FOR THE STOVE.

Corn is peculiarly a symbol of the richness of American life. It sustained the Indians. It was carried in the pouches of the Long Knives when these deerskin clad whites invaded the wilderness and made their clearings. It, with the game, was the mainstay of the frontier. The game went. The bison, elk, and wild turkeys which filled the present corn belt were virtually exterminated, but the Indian corn took firmer root as the whites supplanted the reds.

It is peculiarly an American symbol of productivity and richness because the American, to his considerable astonishment, finds that he is almost alone in knowing how to use it. To him it means both poetry and wealth. He converts it into animal fats and lifts the mortgage. He converted it into hard liquor and lifted the roof. The range of its uses ran from hominy to mint juleps. Sweet corn makes August and September great months for the friend of the table.

Corn means pone and hoe cake; samp, with milk or fried; corn bread, and other dishes related to the primitive foundations of American life and continuing with all their zest into present times. Corn meal, pig sausage, and maple sirup robustly fortify the American against the rigors of his winter.

Many Americans properly are sentimental when they view, partly with the eye of Esau, great fields of corn standing green in the heat of July or yellow in the mists of October. In parts of the great corn country now the farmers find that they again may be forced to shovel fuel out of their yellow bins into their stoves in regions which produce no coal and may not be able to get any.

On the plains before transportation was good a primitive use of corn was as fuel, and economically a farmer is justified now when he can get more heat by putting the corn in the stove than by putting it into money and buying coal. Nevertheless sentiment, bowing to economy, is regretful that the yellow grain should serve such needs.

Editorial of the Day

THE FREEDOM OF LABOR.

[Free translation from Dziennik Zjednoczenia (The Polish Alliance Daily).]

For centuries he who was born as a serf was doomed to serfhood for life. He who happened to be the son of a tradesman could only follow his father's trade. No one was allowed to go outside of the narrow social sphere into which he had been brought by the chance of his birth. It took long continued, bloody struggles to bring around freedom of labor.

At last democracy was established. The former serfs became as free as their former masters. The ability and ambition of each individual opened for him a boundless career. Even the man ranking lowest in society was no longer debarred from rising by earnestly accumulating the required knowledge and skill. The highest position is no longer shut to him who enjoys and makes full use of the freedom of labor.

But just now a strange phenomenon interferes. This freedom of labor, which to former generations seemed an unattainable ideal, lost its charm for very large numbers of men. And these men are now striving to take this freedom away again from the individual. They want to subdue him to such an extent that he will no longer be free to choose the kind of work nor the employer he prefers. They lay down a new rule, which for the individual is to have all the force of a law: if one worker has his freedom to leave a certain employer, any other worker who will choose to work for that same employer risks being killed. In other words, the personal liberty to work as a man chooses is taken away from him by threats of his fellow workers.

What does this attitude mean? It revives serfhood and turns back progress. It imposes the tyranny of others, and quite usually of a few leaders, on the individual.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, of matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations, and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

HOW BEER DOES HARM.

SECRETARY DAVIS of the department of labor is quoted as follows: "Water does not agree with the stomach as well as does beer. Some of the men [those who handle white hot iron in a mill] feel that they can't drink water at that time. My pal tells me that his stomach rejects it, his throat seems to collapse as he gulps it.

"But beer he can drink, and it eases him. The alcohol in the beer is a blessing at this time. It soothes his laboring stomach until the water can get into his system and quench the man's thirst."

I have no doubt the secretary is a very fine gentleman, and a great secretary of labor, and perhaps, at one time, was something of a puddler, but what he does not know about physiology and hygiene is enough, and then some.

God made water for man to drink and man was built on the basis of water as his beverage, and not even a member of the President's cabinet can improve on God and God's works. Water can get into stomachs and stay there with satisfaction to all concerned where beer finds the "no admittance" sign.

Occasionally one finds an old souse whose stomach will stand beer better than water, but such don't live long. It's dollars to doughnuts that the honorable secretary's sousy old pal has been on the under side of a tombstone a long time.

A man handling molten iron in any sort of a foundry labors in a hot atmosphere and sweats a lot. Now, let us see what the physiology is. He pours out sweat because the heat of the air dilates the small blood vessels of his skin. The evaporation of the sweat holds his body temperature near 98, in spite of the heat of the air.

To supply the sweat, he needs water and a little salt. Since he is in air that is hotter than he is, he needs no fuel to keep up body heat. Furthermore, his comfort demands that his heat registering apparatus in his skin and in his central nervous system be shielded as much as possible. Since he must pass a large quantity of fluid through his stomach, the fluid must not irritate the stomach by being hot or cold, or otherwise irritating.

Water that is neither hot nor very cold just exactly fills these indications. Ice water feels cold in the mouth, but in the stomach it first contracts and then dilates the blood vessels. Dilated blood vessels mean increased thirst. Hot water sends blood to the skin and increases the sensation of heat.

What does beer do?

It increases thirst. The fellow who drinks a growler full will want another growler full in a short while. The alcohol sends blood to the skin and heat centers, and increases the feeling of heat. Beer contains a moderate food content, and the food elements are there as products not of the most wholesome kind. These products make for obesity.

When a man working in a hot place drinks beer to assuage a beer induced thirst, he will drink it by the bucket. When beer is drunk by the bucket, the drinker takes a big dose of alcohol and, incidentally, he fills himself up with fermentable food which he does not need, and which definitely harms him.

Mr. Secretary, learn this: Most of the old time sunstrokes were beer strokes. This was true in your old craft. Don't wish heat stroke and sun stroke back on your old comrades.

If you don't believe me, go to Secretary Hoover and ask him what the statistics in his department have to say on the subject.

COMMUNITY CAKE OF SOAP.

H. B. L. writes: "Please settle a dispute as to whether it is safe for a number of persons to use the same cake of soap.

"'A' claims that germs can't be washed off a cake of soap, and that face soap is not strong enough to kill germs or skin diseases.

"'B' claims that you cannot contract skin trouble or any germ, as the soap is strong enough to kill all disease."

REPLY.

Ordinary soap has no bactericidal action. Only one or two of the bactericidal soaps have any such power.

If there was any ground for the campaign against the community towel, there is as much ground for campaigning against the community cake of soap.

HOUSEWIVES, ATTENTION!

E. L. M. writes: "About chapped hands.

"For years I was troubled by bleeding skin on the back of my hands and cracked finger and thumb tips, which were all very painful. I made two discoveries.

"First, housework, even sifting ashes during the war, was not the cause, for my hands were worse when I did no housework, but boarded. Second, grease made them worse, if used in the daytime.

"Cure for my hands consisted, to the best of my belief, of wearing no gloves in warm weather, and of getting away from a smoky atmosphere [caused by the use of bituminous coal]. You may not be conscious that there is anything grimy in the atmosphere, but your bleeding hands will prove it.

"I can do any kind of housework for any length of time, and by defying Mrs. Grundy in the matter of gloves from early spring until late fall, and by wearing gloves that I can remove easily when in a hot steam or street car for any length of time, I have had no trouble at all with my hands for three years. Previously I had very painful hands in winter and spring for twenty-five years."

FOR A CHILD'S DIARRHEA.

L. E. C. writes: "Will you kindly relate in your column some cure for summer diarrhea? My little boy has been seriously troubled that way for over a week. We thought that this was caused by the teeth. He is 16 months old and is now getting several teeth."

REPLY.

Something in his diet has caused the trouble. When a child gets diarrhea, stop all food temporarily. Give plenty of boiled water. In resuming feeding, start with boiled milk. Return to full diet slowly.

In many cases it is advisable to give a dose of some laxative such as castor oil.

If the case is at all severe, have a physician direct you.

RUBBISH REMOVED.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—[Friend of the People.]—All the residents in South Spaulding avenue, on the east side of the street, between the L and West 21st street, are without garbage cans and they throw their garbage into the alley, usually against the fence on the Sawyer avenue side. We would like to have this garbage removed. J. E. D.

The garbage has been removed and the alley cleaned. CHARLES R. FRANCIS, Commissioner of Public Works.

SOLD FOR TAXES.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have paid my taxes for the last three years regularly and have my receipts for them. My place was sold for taxes last April and the man bought it and paid the tax, he said. I have the title for it. Can I get it back and what should I do to get it? J. H.

Ascertain by inquiry at the office of the county clerk how the mistake arose. If you have paid on the wrong description the only way to clear your own title is by redeeming from the sale, for which you should get an estimate from the county clerk.

OUTLAW THE STRIKE.

Fairfield, Ia., Sept. 18.—It is time public opinion was aroused and that something effective was done to cure the evil which is threatening to turn this country into a land of anarchy instead of law and order. In my opinion one of the most effective things that can be done is to outlaw the strike. Make it a criminal offense for an officer of an industrial organization to call a strike.

This would not interfere with the right of workmen to quit work if they wished to do so, but it would remove the official authority which is given when a strike is called and which is used to promote and encourage as well as to justify acts of violence—even murder. A strike does not mean simply to quit work. It means the tying up of an industry for the purpose of enforcing demands, and generally the only way this can be successfully accomplished is to forcibly prevent others from working and to create such a state of terror and sabotage that people will cry out in anguish for relief.

An act in restraint of trade is made a crime in the Sherman anti-trust law. Then why not an act to tie up an industry? Surely no one should have the right to force a workman to go to work or force him to quit working for another. In nine times out of ten violence is an essential part of a strike, and for this reason alone it should be outlawed. Especially so in essential industries, such as transportation, coal mining, and so forth, in which the public is the greatest sufferer, and means should be provided to settle such industrial disputes legally, the same as other disputes are settled.

WILLIAM LONDEN.

THE RISE AND FALL OF ARISTOCRACY.

Saxton, Mo., Sept. 16.—When the colonial patriots found out that the British government was upholding the aristocracy at their expense they fought that government through the revolutionary war and defeated it. We now know positively that the present most powerful aristocracy in the world's history has the backing of the government. With the well defined example of our forefathers before us, if the producing class does not whip this tyrannical aristocracy to a frazzle in a short time, I am the biggest old fool farmer in America. I am too wise to undertake to pick to pieces your sophistry and then undertake to answer it. But I can give you some "cold facts." O, so cold as to set your nerves to tingling.

It was the Jewish aristocracy that caused the death of Jesus. It was the Roman aristocracy that caused the "dark ages." It was the French aristocracy that caused the French revolution. It was the Russian aristocracy that caused the collapse of Russia. It was the British aristocracy that caused that government the loss of the American colonies and precipitated the revolutionary war.

Now if present events do not point to the fall of this aristocracy I am worse than a fool. Just at this time the last chapter of the British aristocracy is beginning to unfold to the world. They have carried their fraudulent and stealthy diplomacy to such an extent that they are hopelessly entangled in their own net. The British disaster is now in sight. The rule of the aristocracy has brought this whole world to ruin. The anarchists could not do worse than that. The aristocracy is nothing more than cultured or cultivated anarchists. They disregard all law, both divine and civil, except to make the common people obey their own selfish will.

R. N. WILTH.

BLAMING PROVINCIALISM FOR BUREAUCRACY.

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 18.—You do well, of course, to complain of the growth of bureaucracy at Washington and the rising tide of central government, but is not much of the reason for this to be laid at the door of our state provincialism, affecting the national representatives of the several communities as well as the electorate itself? Is not, indeed, our adhering to localism the thing that makes it hard for us to function nationally as smoothly and effectively as we ought?

Is it merely a coincidence that Senator La Follette voted against the war as the representative of a state which would not reelect him unless he so voted, or that he is wet in a state that is fairly dripping? Then there are the state machines and the factional fights with which one must have to do for decades and usually until one is past middle age, before he emerges, if he emerges at all, on the larger and unfamiliar national theater of action, set to learn in his declining years what can best be learned in youth. We have the men, plenty of them, but we do not provide them with an environment favorable to their development as statesmen. MALCOLM MACKINNON.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

THE BELLS OF SHANDON.

By Francis Mahony.

With deep affection and recollection
I often think of those Shandon bells,
Whose sounds so wild would in days of childhood
Fling round my cradle their magic spells.
On this I ponder, where'er I wander,
And thus grow fonder, sweet Cork, of thee;
With thy bells of Shandon
That sound so grand on
The pleasant waters of the River Lee.

I have heard bells chiming full many a clime in,
Tolling sublime in cathedral shrine;
While at a glib rate brass tongues would vibrate,
But all their music spoke naught like thine;
For memory dwelling on each proud swelling
Of thy belfry knelling its bold notes free
Made the bells of Shandon
Sound far more grand on
The pleasant waters of the River Lee.

I have heard bells tolling "old Adrian's mole" in,
Their thunder rolling from the Vatican,
And cymbals glorious, swinging uproarious,
In the gorgeous towers of Notre Dame;
But thy sounds are sweeter than the dome of Peter
Flings o'er the Tiber, pealing solemnly
O the bells of Shandon
Sound far more grand on
The pleasant waters of the River Lee.

There's a bell in Moscow, while in tower and kiosko
In St. Sophia the Turkman gets,
And loud in air calls men to prayer
From the tapering summit of tall minarets.
Such empty phantom I freely grant 'em,
But there's an anthem more dear to me;
'Tis the bells of Shandon
That sound so grand on
The pleasant waters of the River Lee.

BUNDESEN SEEKS TO WIDEN SCOPE OF HEALTH DRIVE

Results of Last 7 Weeks Spur Commissioner.

Seven weeks' trial of his novel methods of fighting gonorrhea and syphilis, champion killers in the disease realm, has convinced Health Commissioner Bundesen that he is "in the right track" and he has therefore decided to put into effect at once a new series of measures to control venereal diseases.

His platform, devised after many conferences with noted health authorities, contains the following as one of its principal planks:

"To encourage physical examination on the part of those contemplating marriage and to formulate an act making compulsory eugenic examinations prior to marriage."

For Single Moral Standard.

That plank alone, if carried into practice, will prevent thousands of deaths, blind babies, female operations, and cases of insanity in Chicago every year, Dr. Bundesen believes.

Another measure on which some health and educational authorities have frowned for years as "too radical" is contained in the following paragraph of the commissioner's two page outline of his plans:

"That proper instruction of the youth by qualified teachers be instituted and thus establish the true idea of a uniform single standard of morals for men and women."

Other steps described in his outline under the head of "measures for educational and moral prophylaxic" include writing and circulation of a booklet on educational and moral prophylaxis; lectures by the commissioner and his staff on venereal diseases, their prophylaxis, and their dangers; a conference between the commissioner, the chief of police, and the state's attorney, to devise means of a more general use of the injunction and abatement act; development of social service venereal disease work, and mental examination of all prostitutes detained by the health department.

Favors Michigan Law.

Another bizarre proposal in Illinois health circles is the recommendation that the provisions of the Michigan law relating to control of prostitutes and their male consorts be incorporated in a rule of the state department of health.

The proposed rule would permit judges to sentence prostitutes and their male companions to one year in the Bridewell, to fine them $1,000 or to both fine and imprison them. The commissioner names the following committee to discuss the feasability of this part of his platform with Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, director of the state department of health:

Dr. C. C. Pierce, assistant surgeon general, United States public health service; Edgar A. Jonas, first assistant state's attorney; John A. Bugee, Municipal judge; Dr. William A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE; Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the school board, and Commissioner Bundesen.

Other Steps Proposed.

Among other "next steps" contained in the plans for the intensive struggle with social diseases are the following:

Placarding of the premises on which either men or women are found spreading gonorrhea or syphilis and hospitalizing of the patients.

Reorganization of the venereal disease department of the Lawndale hospital to permit separation of female first offenders from old offenders and with a ward for men.

Reorganization of city venereal disease clinics on the basis of the municipal tuberculosis dispensaries, taking into consideration the districts in which most of the contagion is found.

Establishment of a health department venereal disease hearing board to establish blame or failure to report cases of syphilis and gonorrhea so that physicians, pharmacists, or nurses who disregard the law may be reported to the state doctor of registration and education with a recommendation that their license be revoked. This is directed in part at the lucrative practice of some physicians who, in inspecting states of brothels, have often given false certificates, according to Dr. Bidesen.

Place for Specialists.

Appoint ment of a committee of six to include a gynecologist, two laboratory technicians, and theree genito-urinary specialists to devise standards for determination of the state of infectivity for gonorrhea and syphilis as a basis for commitment and release from hospitals.

If possible this committee is to devise techniques for Wasserman tests, gonococcal smears, spirochetal identification, etc., the committee report to become administrative and court rule of the health department. All laboratories in Chicago are to be asked to adopt the standards set up by the health department.

8 MILLION YEAR OLD PIONEER IS TO RESIDE HERE

Eight million years ago a dinosaur crawled into a depression in a torrid equatorial belt in Alberta, Can., and died.

For eight million years his grave was undisturbed. His kind became extinct, glaciers swept down, mountains formed over his resting place.

When the old dinosaur—fifty feet long and thirty tons in weight—died the equator was due north of Chicago and the Mississippi waterways was an actuality, with the Gulf of Mexico stretching to the north pole, scientists say.

Last week, however, the elements had so worn down the mountain near Red Deer river, 125 miles west of Calgary, that the last layer of soil was swept away and the dinosaur bones were bared.

Prof. E. S. Riggs, associate curator of geology for the Field Museum of Natural History, with five companions, stumbled across the huge bones. Now they'll come to the museum here to be stared at by city folks.

Getting out the dinosaur bones—many of which weighed 2,500 pounds or more—was a tremendous task. It was necessary to build roads in some places.

MAY WRECK PLAN OF CLEMENCEAU TO VISIT AMERICA

PARIS, Sept. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—A political storm is gathering against former Premier Clemenceau to prevent him from going to the United States soon, on the ground that his countrymen have lost confidence in him and that he cannot now interpret French public opinion to a nation friendly to France.

GEORGES CLEMENCEAU.

Newspapers representing several parties published attacks upon him today based upon the recent accusations of Marshal Franchet d'Esperey, that Clemenceau stopped the former's offensive in southeastern Europe in the fall of 1918 and that Clemenceau took away from him the supreme command of the allied armies in the near east and transferred it to the English.

The present near eastern developments are closely related to these charges against Clemenceau.

FIGHT FIRE WITH FIRE, SLOGAN OF 'FIRED' MARSHALS

Ousted "Vets" Plan 4-11 Alarm for City Hall.

Five gray haired men, who together have given 166 years of service to Chicago's fire department and have risen to the rank of assistant fire marshal, cleaned out their lockers yesterday and unwillingly stepped out of the department.

"Insubordination" is what the formal charges filed with the civil service commission yesterday say. The five marshals, who declare they will fight the case to the Supreme court if necessary, reply that they were simply asked by Chief O'Connor for suggestions and "in good faith gave one that hurt."

Though "for publication," the marshals' talk concerning the suspension order was on the theory that a soft answer turns away wrath, privately they declared that a few 4-11 alarms will be turned in when they take the witness stand before the trial board.

Efficiency Marks Mystery.

"No one knows who marks the efficiency grades for promotions to lieutenancies," said Assistant Chief John C. McDonnell, who with Arthur R. Seyferlich, Jeremiah McAuliffe, James J. Costin, and John S. Smith, are the old timers suspended. "We passed a resolution asking that, as high ranking fire department officials, we be permitted to scan the grades and question the markers.

"Even if Chief O'Connor's health were 100 per cent he could not be expected to know the efficiency of all the candidates for this examination. We told the mayor, the chief, and the merit board that the method of marking the papers was a cause of gossip in the department. We can prove that by scores of witnesses."

May Bare "Dirty Mess."

There are strong indications that the investigation will develop into what the city hall leaders call "a dirty mess" before the trials of the men, scheduled to begin next Friday, are ended.

Ald. Arthur F. Albert, youthful but belligerent, started the ball rolling yesterday by announcing that he plans to call a special council meeting for early this week "to investigate not only the present fracas but the entire department."

"I want to find out," the "kid alderman" declared, "why certain aldermen who represent the city in fire apparatus purchases also represent fire apparatus concerns. I put a little fellow to work some time ago in an office where these contracts are handled and through him I learned a thing or two."

Calls McDonnell Agitator.

"The whole trouble with the fire department," Ald. Henry L. Fick, who was an alderman when Albert was a newsboy, declared, "is that McDonnell wants to be chief and he is wrecking the fire department trying to get the job. He's been trying to do it for years."

"I'm for McDonnell," Albert shot back as he continued his search of the aldermanic lounge for signatures with which to call a special council meeting. "He is honest. He is too honest for the fire department the way it is being run at present."

Business Manager John F. Cullerton, charged by the suspended marshals with being the instigator of the order, declared he was too busy yesterday to discuss their plight.

"A premilinary report of the fire department survey commission informs me that by respotting the stations and selling unnecessary property we can gave $387,000," he said.

DEATH NOTICES

IN MEMORIAM.

APPELL—Hulda Appell. In sad but loving memory of our dear mother and wife, who passed away one year ago today, Sept. 24, 1921.
Dear Mother, in loving memory we devote this line to thee.
Though we miss you very keenly, we know by God's grace we shall meet thee
Where there is no pain nor death.
LOVING HUSBAND, DAUGHTERS, AND SON-IN-LAW.

CAMPBELL—In loving memory of Roy Campbell, who fell asleep one year ago today, Sept. 24, 1921.
In his Father's arms he's sleeping,
Safely resting, free from pain,
Waiting for that glorious morning
When we all shall meet again.
And to us who knew and loved him,
The thought of meeting brings much joy.
Each setting sun is one day nearer
To that glad reunion with OUR BOY.
A FRIEND.

DE NORMANDIE—Blanchard De Normandie. In loving memory of my son who passed away one year ago today.
You are gone but not forgotten;
Nor will you ever be.
For as long as life and memory last
We will always think of thee.

INDICTMENT OF PIQUETTE AND 15 IN SCHOOL GRAB

More City Hall Cogs Hit as Teachers Act.

the grand jury although it was said the jury was in possession of documentary proof consisting of bank accounts and telegrams and letters demanding money.

Spain, Driscoll, and the other engineers indicted are said to have raised a $100,000 fund to obtain a salary increase, retroactive for six months, the money going to those responsible for obtaining the back pay.

Sentenced for Contempt.

Spain and Driscoll refused to answer questions by the grand jurors as to whom they had bribed and were sentenced to six months in jail for contempt. They obtained temporary release on a writ and are now in hiding.

Daniel Kinally and John Harvey, the others indicted for the first time, are alleged to have operated the short weight system of selling coal to the school board.

The action by the Teachers' federation was the outgrowth of a mass-meeting of teachers on Friday. A letter was sent to the mayor last night demanding that he remove Severinghaus and Davis from office. It was signed by Mary M. Abbe, president, and Frances E. Harden, corresponding secretary.

Robertson Can't Act, He Says.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the board of education, declared there was nothing he could do to bring about the removal from office of Davis and Severinghaus and the dismissal of Krengel, Sadler, and Offlighter, as demanded by the teachers at their mass-meeting.

"Whatever the law is, I'll follow it," he replied to questions as to his policy. "You flatter me when you suggest that the mayor would follow my recommendations. I haven't that much influence with him."

That was after it had been pointed out that the mayor has now in his possession the resignations of Trustees Severinghaus and Davis, secured at the time the mayor demanded resignations of all the trustees, and that it is within his power now to accept them and appoint other trustees in their places.

"Do What Is Right."

"I accepted appointment to the school board to administer school affairs, not to take part in school board politics," he insisted. "I'll do what is right. There is a splendid school board law that covers all such cases."

Efforts to find out just what the specific law was proved unavailing, but turned up an interesting point when Ralph Condee, attorney for the board, was questioned.

"We would probably be in contempt of court if we took action against the indicted employés while they are still under investigation by the grand jury," the attorney said. "A precedent has been set that prevents evidence being produced against them before a civil service commissison until that evidence has been presented by the state to a jury."

Dr. Robertson said, however, that if the Teachers' federation should prepare charges against the employés there would be no delay in hearing them.

Engineer's Lawyer Called.

Attorney Eugene L. McGarry, representing Spain, was summoned before Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley yesterday regarding a letter he had written the foreman of the grand jury.

Since obtaining their release from jail on a writ from the Supreme court, Spain and Driscoll have remained outside the jurisdiction of grand jury subpoenaes issued for them. McGarry's letter stated that if the grand jury would furnish him a list of the questions they wanted Spain to answer he would endeavor to have them answer by affidavit those questions of which he approved.

Doesn't Know Whereabouts.

McGarry told Judge McKinley he did not know the whereabouts of the two engineers, but believed he could communicate with them through relatives.

"Spain or no one else is strong enough or big enough to stop this investigation," McKinley told McGarry. "If he cannot be reached by a subpoena there are other methods. We are going to find out where he is and bring him back."

Besides intimating that every relative of the two missing engineers would be subpoenaed and forced to reveal their hiding place, Judge McKinley called attention to a statute containing a penalty of $1,000 fine or a year's imprisonment can be imposed upon any person who aids, advises, or assists a witness to evade service in a criminal case. This law may be invoked if the desired witnesses do not respond tomorrow, McKinley said.

BRITAIN'S PERIL GROWS

THE present unrest in the near east centers on the Mohammedan question. Most of the Mohammedans of the world find themselves lined up in two camps, those under the rule of England and those under the leadership of Moscow.

Most of the Mohammedans under British rule resent their subjugation and look on Russia as their deliverer.

The bolsheviki have succeeded in shaping the various races of central Asia into one compact Mohammedan whole, and with Turkey and Afghanistan they constitute the most formidable power England has encountered since the world war.

LANDIS AWARD BOOKLET GIVES BUILDING DATA

The citizens' committee to enforce the Landis award will release a new handbook tomorrow, setting forth the work of the committee in making the wage scales and working conditions of the award effective for the building trades mechanics and laborers. The book contains the names of 1,286 contractors of all classes, 417 architects, 87 engineers, and 28 Chicago offices of insurance companies.

Every branch of the building industry is represented in the contractors' list, from acoustical correction, brass and bronze work, carpentry, cut stone contracting, electrical work, general contracting, ornamental glass work to floor sanding, lathing, painting, and decorating, plumbing and sheet metal work.

In the book the architects and engineers recommend that a clause should be inserted in all contracts specifying "that all materials and appliances and labor shall be furnished under the terms and conditions of the award and recommendations of the arbiter, Judge Kenesaw M. Landis of Sept. 7, 1921."

Construction work totaling $87,000,000 is now being done under the Landis award, the committee reported.

54,000 CHILDREN UNDER MAKESHIFT SCHOOL HANDICAP

Conditions Worse than in Twenty-two Years.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Chicago public schools are in much worse shape today in supplying a seat to every pupil in a permanent, cleanly building for a full day than at any time in the last twenty-two years. It may even be for a longer period, but the records were not checked back of 1900.

In that period every school board has come much nearer than the present one in providing approved facilities for the children. This board has more children in make-shift accommodations than any previous board in the score and two years.

14,000 in Half Day Sessions.

There are in excess of 14,000 pupils in half day sessions. They probably have more than 19,000 in the "tin cans." These are the portable rooms, with tin roofs and tin sides, with their breezy floors in windy weather, and their hot interiors in warm. Then there are others attending the "relay sessions," so-called "double schools," and still others on the "extended day schedule." There are perhaps 20,000 in these latter classes. That is a total of 54,000 children who are being educated on some expedient, rather than on the regular system.

That estimate does not come from any school official or trustee. Their estimate is 40,000 or below. The exact figures should be available within a week and it is confidently believed they will reach much closer to 54,000 than to 40,000. These figures are comparable with 16,000 the year before Mayor Thompson was elected.

Political Reaction Feared.

These 40,000 to 54,000 pupils have parents who can vote and there is some evidence that the city administration is afraid that the fathers and mothers of these children will remember William Hale Thompson when he runs for office again. If they do, they can either elect or defeat him, provided they vote as a unit.

This fear may be the father of the city hall "tips," giving reasons for the lack of adequate school facilities. One of these reasons is the price of building. The answer is that the board did not hesitate to spend money lavishly for other things. To illustrate, President Davis spent $171.50 for storage of his auto in 1920, and for 1921 had the board appropriate $300. For auto supplies in 1920 he spent $674.43, and for supplies in 1921 he had the board appropriate $1,500. For press clippings, the president spent $74.49 in 1920, but for 1921 had the board appropriate $150. The business manager in 1920 spent $111.20 for auto storage, but in 1921 got $750 for that same purpose. For auto supplies in 1920 he spent $559.79, but for the next year asked, and received, $1,000. These only indicate their views on expenditures.

"Just as Good" Plea Fails.

Another "tip" is that the children in the relay sessions are "getting the same opportunities as those afforded other pupils."

The answer to this is: If that is true, why not put all of the children on the relay basis and close up nearly half of the schools and also forget the $23,000,000 building program?

This "just as good" argument is not supported by Superintendent of Schools Mortenson. He claims, and his claim has not yet been questioned, that the educational directors are giving the best facilities possible under present conditions. He admits that the double school is an expedient, but thinks it is the best expedient yet devised. He thinks so little of the portable schools that he recommended their construction be discontinued a year and a half ago.

Condemned by Reinberg.

The late Peter Reinberg, president of the board, in his last report said: "The use, however, of portable and rented buildings and the half day session idea are unsatisfactory expedients."

Ella Flagg Young, in her last report as superintendent of schools, made this comment: "The old cubical box is no longer accepted as a building good enough for a school."

JUDGE POSTPONES RULING IN SMALL INTEREST SUITS

State Denies It's 'Fishing' in Brundage Actions.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Carrollton, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Judge Norman L. Jones this afternoon took under advisement the civil suits brought by Attorney General Brundage against Gov. Small, Lieut. Gov. Sterling, State Auditor Russel, and William Ryan Jr., as ex-treasurers of the state, to recover interest on public funds.

Ten days are granted to the attorneys for the defense to file briefs of the voluminous oral arguments on demurrers to the state's bills that were concluded at 1 o'clock. Five days additional are assigned to the attorney general to file reply briefs. Judge Jones' decision is expected early in October.

"One definite result will come from this case whatever may be the decision," was the comment of ex-Senator L. Y. Sherman of counsel for the defense.

Will Learn Treasurer's Duties.

"Illinois will get for the first time in 100 years a legal adjudication of what are the real duties of a state treasurer and a determination of how far a legislature can go in prescribing the duties of a constitutional officer of the state."

Assistant Attorney General Clarence Boord argued the case for the state today. In reply to the defendants' contention, Mr. Boord said that the bill filed in each case is for an "accounting," and not for "discovery," and that it is not a "fishing expedition on the part of the attorney general," as was charged in yesterday's arguments by the defendants.

He also told the court that the bondsmen of the four ex-treasurers are brought into the case as proper defendants, but that it is not now the purpose of the state to attempt recovery from such bondsmen.

"That is an undertaking that might come subsequently if the treasurers are sued civilly on their bonds," he said. "What we seek here is an accounting from these men and such information as we know them to possess concerning state funds and the interest which they received."

Claims They Held Act Valid.

Mr. Boord made a particular point that Small, Ryan, Sterling, and Russel had recognized the validity of the state treasurers' act of 1908, inasmuch as each of them had paid into the treasury a part, at least, of the interest earnings in their respective terms.

Mr. Sherman closed the arguments with this assertion:

"The real reason that the state attempts this chancery proceeding is that the state is afraid to let these men go to trial before a jury to which they would be entitled in common law."

Waiving technical attacks on the constitutionality of the 1908 law, Mr. Sherman insisted that the legislature has no constitutional authority to prescribe in any way the method in which a state treasurer must handle the state's funds.

"It is none of the legislature's business," he said, "and it had no right to attempt to pass the alleged act of 1908. Once and for all we will get an opinion on this point."

Mr. Sherman filed a thirty-five page brief on this point. He intimated that the case will go to the Supreme court on this angle, whatever may be Judge Jones' decision on the demurrers.

THEIR MASCOT

P. J. Carr's "Boosters," a baseball club of employes of the county treasurer's office, and Anton J. Cermak's "Indians" clashed yesterday at Cermak park. The game was made the occasion for a meeting of all the candidates on the Democratic ticket, each of whom was presented to the crowd. In the picture (left to right) are shown Mr. Cermak, candidate for president of the county board; Edmund K. Jarecki, candidate for county judge; and Mr. Carr, who wants to remain on his job as county treasurer for four more years. Their mascot, they say, is symbolic of the Republican "goat" they will get in November.

SLAYER SITS ON THE JURY IN HIS OWN CASE, CLAIM

Supposed Murderer Now in Asylum.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 23.—The supposed slayer of William and Mary and Julius Balzer, recluse Cassell Prairie farmers, killed with a hammer on the night of Aug. 8, is apprehended and now is an inmate of the Mendota insane asylum suffering from an incurable mental malady, it was learned today through L. M. Shearer, special investigator for the attorney general's department.

The name of the alleged slayer, although known, is withheld by the authorities, who say that his evident insanity would prevent prosecution for the crime which shocked southern Wisconsin for its brutality.

Hammer Is Found.

The large bloodstained hammer supposed to have been used in the commission of the crime was recently found by Mr. Shearer on the farm of the insane man, a neighbor of the Balzers and a former blacksmith.

Similarity is noted between the wounds received by the victims of the maniac and the head of the hammer. Statements made by the man being held in the asylum to fellow inmates and to officers have convinced them of his guilt.

While in the asylum he is alleged to have attempted to intimidate another inmate with the statement that he would "use his hammer again" if he aroused his anger.

Juror on Own Case.

This alleged murderer served on the coroner's jury which returned a verdict of murder in the Balzer case and was particularly active in seeking the slayers while officers were investigating.

Mr. Shearer, who apprehended the man, went into the case as a finger print expert, after attempts to find a clew to the identity of the slayer had proved futile.

The Balzers were killed on their farm near Cassell Prairie, Wis., on the night of Aug. 8. Julius and Mary were found dead by neighbors while William, fatally injured, continued to live for several days unconscious and unable to tell who had committed the crime. He died without giving a clew.

Nab Women with 1,500 Pairs of Shoes; Claim Theft

Capt. Morgan Collins' office at the East Chicago avenue police station blossomed forth as a first class shoe store yesterday when 1,500 pairs of brogans, found in the possession of Mrs. Theresa Incandilla, 619 West Division street, and Mrs. Peter Gidinani, 1160 Larrabee street, were taken to the station. The women, arrested, said they bought the shoes from a peddler. A representative of a St. Louis shoe concern identified 400 pairs as having been stolen.

HIT BY BICYCLE; DIES.

Frank Barshaw, 9 years old, 3239 South Claremont avenue, died in St. Anthony's hospital yesterday of a skull fracture received late Friday night when he was struck by a bicycle at South Oakley avenue and West 33d street.

CAPTURE "BOND FAKER" IN COURT BUILDING CHASE

'Beauty in Distress' Puts 'Rescuer' in Cell.

Pursuing their quarry through the corridors and down the stairs of the Criminal court building, an assistant state's attorney and a deputy clerk captured an alleged "bond faker" as he was on the point of stepping into an automobile to make a getaway.

The captors were Dom Volini, assistant in charge of the bond department of the state's attorney's office, and John Lanehan, deputy in the office of the clerk of the Criminal court. Their prisoner gave his name at Rex S. Fargo, 4110 Drexel boulevard. They declared he had signed a fraudulent bond for $2,000.

The bond called for the release from the county jail of Miss Minnie Dolger, 3423 South Michigan avenue, and Fargo's capture furnished an explosive climax to a train of sensations laid by the girl.

Ignored Witness Summons.

Miss Dolger appeared before Judge Oscar M. Hebel yesterday morning in the tow of Sergt. Arthur Wachholtz. The sergeant explained that he had brought Miss Dolger as ordered by the judge, but he sighed and tenderly figured three parallel scratches on his cheek.

Miss Dolger had twice failed to appear as a state's witness against Arthur Boller, charged with stealing a diamond ring. Miss Dolger had been a co-defendant, but had pleaded guilty and been put on probation. Last Friday Judge Hebel issued a writ of attachment to secure her presence.

"I just changed my mind. I decided I didn't want anything more to do with the case," Miss Dolger stated yesterday.

"She said the police and the courts could take a jump in the lake, your honor," put in the sergeant.

Held in Contempt.

"We'll give you a chance to change your mind back again," the judge beamed. "You are held in contempt of court, and your bonds will be $2,000, pending a hearing on Monday."

Then Fargo came on the scene to schedule property at 4459 Dorchester avenue for Miss Dolger. He signed his name as Henry Seaman, 4479 Dorchester avenue, according to Mr. Lanehan, and said he wasn't exactly a friend of Miss Dolger, but he "knew her." Mr. Lanehan referred the bond to Mr. Volini. Fargo said never mind, he'd go right to some judge, and left. Mr. Volini discovered, he said, that Mr. Fargo was not Mr. Seaman, and the property belonged to some one else altogether.

Whereupon the hunt began, ending in Fargo's seizure. "Throw him in jail and we'll book him for perjury," was the edict of First Assistant State's Attorney Jonas. Fargo was taken to the East Chicago avenue station. "And there's another fellow, a professional bond runner," said Mr. Jonas. "He was with Fargo and we'll issue a warrant for him on Monday."

LYON & HEALY OFFERS THE

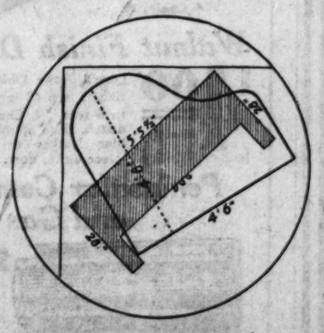
DAINTY BRAMBACH GRAND PIANOS for $635

HERE are instruments, the modern Brambach, which fill a long felt need. Price and quality join to win at once popular favor. Now every home can enjoy a grand. Dainty, graceful, they are exquisite in design. The tone is rich, full, and colorful. The scale is correct; the action, light and responsive. The cases are finished in lustrous mahogany. At $635 these grands are rare, timely values.

New Autumn Models Exclusively Styled

The new styles are now being shown. Be sure to see them. They illustrate the modern trend in piano architecture. They are exclusively styled in exquisite taste. The grand holds a supreme place in the musical world. Now it has been brought within the reach of all.

The size of the Brambach lends itself to beautiful tonal qualities. Furthermore, it shows that a grand piano can be designed for small homes and limited budgets. The sketch illustrates this. The shaded area represents the space needed by an upright piano. Contrast with it the outlines of the grand. It is plain that the Brambach takes no more space than an upright.



Comparative space requirements of an upright and the Brambach BabyGrand

The Brambach represents specialization. A firm, closely identified with piano making for generations, believed such a piano possible. The new product represents the success of their efforts and experience. It is an instrument fully guaranteed. It is endorsed by notable artists. On our terms of $50 down and the remainder in 30 months there is no reason why you may not own one tomorrow? Old piano or phonographs taken in exchange.

BLAME IS FIXED BY GRAND JURY IN MINE MURDERS

Officials on Both Sides Censured in Report.

details the part the adjutant general's office played in the face of this trouble. Lieut. Col. Hall, sent here to report on the need of troops, asked for soldiers several times, the grand jury finds, but each time the adjutant general refused to send them because the sheriff, Melvin Thaxton, holder of a union card, and candidate for county treasurer, did not join in the request.

"The adjutant general's office and the sheriff alternated in passing responsibility," the report states, "with neither taking decisive action to prevent disorders and protect property."

GRAND JURY'S REPORT

The text of the grand jury report follows:

"We the special grand jury of Williamson county empaneled to make an investigation of the crimes committed in and about the strip mine near and in Herrin on Wednesday and Thursday, June 21 and 22, 1922, and heedful of the instructions given by your honor to make a thorough investigation of the facts and circumstances, with a view of fixing the responsibility for the killing of some twenty-four persons and the wounding of many others, we beg to report that we have examined approximately 300 witnesses and from their testimony learned these conditions:

"About the middle of June of this year, after suspension of the coal industry as the result of a strike of the United Mine Workers of America, the Southern Illinois Coal company decided to operate a strip mine owned by it and located about midway between Marion and Herrin.

Miners Made No Objections.

"The miners' union apparently raised no objections to the uncovering of the coal by the use of steamshovels, but when the company began to ship coal there was bitter resentment on the part of the union miners.

"The coal company aggravated this resentment by employing armed guards and closing for the public use certain established highways traversing the mine property and treating as trespassers citizens attempting to use the accustomed highway.

"The flaunting of arms in a community devoted almost exclusively to mining was conducive to strife; it was a challenge certain to be accepted, and for four or five days preceding the tragedy it was known by the authorities that a conflict was inevitable.

State Realized Danger.

"The state administration undoubtedly realized the acute situation by sending to Williamson county Col. Hunter of the adjutant general's staff. This representative of the state government testified that he recognized upon his arrival in Marion the imminence of a conflict and immediately asked the adjutant general to send state troops to protect the property and conserve the peace.

"This request Col. Hunter renewed several times before the actual conflict, and was invariably asked by the adjutant general of Illinois if the sheriff of Williamson county had asked for troops. The adjutant general denied his authority to order them into Williamson county except upon the sheriff's request, which, as your honor knows, is not the law.

"Melvin Thaxton, the sheriff of Williamson county, is the holder of a card in the miners' union and a candidate for county treasurer at the forthcoming election.

Why Sheriff Hesitated.

"Either because of loyalty to the union or from fear of injuring his candidacy the sheriff would make no demand for troops nor did he take adequate measures to preserve the peace.

"From the evidence heard, the attack of June 21 upon the men employed at the strip mine was the result of a conspiracy which had several days in the perfecting, the object of which was the closing of the strip mine.

"Sheriff Thaxton could not have been unaware of the development of this plan.

"On Monday, June 19, State Senator W. A. Sneed, district president of the United Mine Workers of this district, received from John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, a telegram, as follows:

"'William Sneed, President, Sub-District 10, District 13, United Mine Workers of America, Herrin, Ill.: Your wire 18th. Steam Shovel Men's union was suspended from affiliation with American Federation of Labor some years ago. It was ordered suspended from the mining department of the A. F. of L. at the Atlantic City convention.

Outlaw Members as Strikebreakers.

"'We now find that this outlaw organization is permitting its members to act as strikebreakers at numerous pits in Ohio. This organization is furnishing steam shovel engineers to work under armed guards under no agreement which exists by and between this organization and the mining department or any branch of the A. F. of L. permitting them to work under such circumstances.

"'We have through representatives officially taken this question up with the officers of the steam shovel men's union and have failed to secure any satisfaction.

"'Representatives of our organization are justified in treating this crowd as an outlaw organization and in viewing its members in the same light as they do any other common strikebreaker. JOHN L. LEWIS.'

"A copy of this telegram was posted and read in various places. Following the publication of the telegram from President Lewis preparations for an attack upon the mine were made. The hardware stores in all the cities of Williamson county were searched for firearms. The weapons were either taken by force or upon a verbal assurance that the local would pay for them.

"The men working at the strip mine were evidently ignorant of being strikebreakers. The men operating the steam shovels were affiliated with a union, even though unrecognized by the A. F. of L.

Guards Driven to Cover.

"The guards were told they were to protect the valuable machinery and did not awake to the real danger until noon time of June 21, when bullets began to fly into the mine in such volume as to compel them to take refuge in the office, and later to seek safety under the steel railroad cars on the strip mine property.

Supt. McDowell telephoned a number of times to Col. Hunter for protection and was invariably informed by the latter that the sheriff could not be found. Finally Col. Hunter suggested a flag of truce, which, while displayed by the mine defenders, caused no abatement of the fire.

"In the evening of June 21, upon the return to Marion of Sheriff Thaxton, a conference was held between the sheriff, Col. Hunter, and officers of the miners' union, at which it was stated that the officials of the coal company were willing to discontinue the operation of the strip mine and the union officials were willing that the workmen employed therein should be permitted to depart in safety. The substance of this agreement was transmitted over the telephone to Supt. McDowell at the strip mine.

Firing Begins at Daybreak.

"Nevertheless, at the break of day the following morning firing began in a heavy volume from close proximity. The attacking party having crept up under cover of darkness, they were sufficiently close to permit of a parley and after a time a spokesman for the strip mine workers asked to speak to the leader.

"A long range conversation was held and it was agreed by a spokesman from the attacking party that safe conduct would be accorded the men if they laid down their arms and would march out with hands up.

"This was done and from behind the earth embankments created by the steam shovel operators came a great number of armed men and more from the surrounding hills until the forty-seven surrendering men were surrounded by many hundreds of men, mostly armed.

Brutal Killing of McDowell.

"The captive men were marched down the road toward Herrin in double file. After they had marched about one mile, Supt. McDowell, being cripled and unable to keep up with the procession, was taken aside by mmbers of the mob and shot to death.

The remainder of the captives were marched on the public road and were stopped at the power house of the Interurban railroad, about three miles for Herrin. Here a change in leadership took place and the man who had guaranteed the safety of the men who had surrendered was deposed and another leader installed.

"The new commander ordered the captive men to march into the woods adjacent to and around the power house. Here the new leader directed that only those in the crowd who had guns should follow into the woods and those who were unarmed should remain without.

When the Massacre Began.

"The surrendered men were then marched some 200 yards back of the power house, to the vicinity of a barbed wire fence, where they were told they would be given a chance to run for their lives, under fire.

"The firing began immediately, and thirteen of the forty-seven nonunion men were killed and most of the others severely wounded.

"The mob pursued those who had escaped, and two were hung to trees, six were tied together with a rope about their necks, and marched through the streets of Herrin to an adjacent farm, where they were shot by the mob and the throats of three were cut. One of the six survived.

"The atrocities and cruelties of the murderers are beyond the power of words to describe. A mob is always cowardly, but the savagery of this mob in its relentless brutality is almost unbelievable. The indignities heaped upon the dead did not end until their bodies were interred in unknown graves.

"On the first day of the attack on the mine two union miners were killed by the answering fire from the men in the strip mine, and another so seriously injured as to die subsequently from his wounds.

"It has been difficult for this grand jury to determine who fired the shots from the strip mine which caused the deaths of the union miners. When asked to present evidence to the grand jury which would tend to fix responsibility, counsel for the miners' union announced that they would lend no aid to the grand jury.

"The grand jury has made no attempt to determine the equities between the operators and the miners in the strike controversy. It has had but the sole thought of bringing to the bar of justice the persons who committed the crimes which have brought such universal criticism upon the people of Williamson county.

"Without discrimination, we feel keenly the horror of the tragedy. We protest, however, against the intimation that all the people of Williamson county are lawless and un-American. The development of the mining industry in Williamson county and the surrounding counties has tremendously increased the population within the last decade.

Shame for Other Counties.

"All of the adjoining counties contributed their quota of marauders, and the entire shame of the inhuman murders should not rest upon Williamson county alone.

"It is true the electorate of the county is responsible for those of its supine, weak and cowardly officials who permitted the disorders to grow from desultory rioting into a hideous massacre. Those evils can be corrected by the great majority of the population who believe in law and order asserting themselves and longer refusing to be intimidated by a disorderly minority.

"The grand jury, while not denying the right of private property and its lawful uses, cannot help but feel that the Southern Illinois Coal company, of which L. J. Lester is president, while perhaps within its legal rights, was either woefully ignorant of the danger of its operations or blindly determined to risk strife and conflict if profits could be made.

"It was foolhardy to attempt to operate a nonunion mine in the very heart of the miners' union, in view of the existing conditions.

How They Passed the Buck.

"The adjutant general's office and the sheriff's office alternated in passing responsibility, with neither taking decisive action to prevent disorders and protect property.

"The ease with which firearms were obtained causes the grand jury to believe that legislation should be enacted to regulate or prohibit the manufacture or indiscriminate sale of firearms.

"We condemn the laxity of the local police in the various cities wherein stores were looted for firearms without interference by them.

"We commend the state's attorney of Williamson county, Delos Duty, for his courage and fidelity to his oath of office, and we express our gratitude to the attorney general of Illinois and his efficient assistants whose aid has greatly facilitated the tremendous tasks confronting the grand jury.

"In concluding this report the grand jury begs leave to state that it has indicted some forty-four persons for murder, fifty-eight for conspiracy to commit murder, fifty-eight for rioting, and fifty-four for assault to murder, and your jury asks leave for a recess of thirty days for the purpose of completing its labors. The grand jury is deeply grateful to the many representative, law-abiding citizens of Williamson county, for their assistance and encouragement in its efforts to enforce the law fearlessly and impartially."

ILLINOIS PYTHIANS HOLD CONVENTION AT DECATUR THIS WEEK

Illinois Knights of Pythias will hold their fifty-third annual convention at Decatur on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of this week. The Pythian Sisters will hold their convention at the same time. The big attendance is expected on Wednesday, "Dokey day," according to Sol Scheffer, chairman of the grand lodge publicity committee. Special trains will carry Chicago Pythians to the convention city on that day.

R. ALLAN STEPHENS.

Under the system of promotion R. Allan Stephens of Danville, secretary of the Illinois Bar association, will be elected grand chancelor. The only contest will be for grand outer guard, the beginning of the officers' line. T. Fred Laramie and William Ratledge of Cook county, and Judge Perry L. Persons of Waukegan are the candidates.

A strong effort will be made to bring the next convention to Chicago, according to Mr. Scheffer. He reports that during the year there has been a large gain in membership and that there was a commendable response to appeals for the war relief fund which is used to aid disabled soldiers of the order. The Chicago delegates will back a move to build a hospital for disabled service men.

SON OF COLORED ALDERMAN TAKEN WITH WHITE GIRL

George E. Jackson, colored, son of Ald. R. R. Jackson of the Second ward, will appear before Municipal Judge William E. Morgan in the Court of Domestic Relations tomorrow to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for failure to pay his estranged wife $150 support money awarded her by court order.

Jackson was arrested last night by Keystone Detective agency operatives, who were accompanied by Mrs. Marie Jackson, in a house at 3619 Grand boulevard. Ald. Jackson furnished bonds for appearance of his son and the girl arrested with him, Leontine Manzada, a Spanish model.

Mrs. Jackson, who lives at 520 East Forty-second street, said she was married to Jackson last July and deserted by him in less than three months.

ILLINOIS LEGION MAY ASK HARDING TO PRESS BONUS

Convention Is Certain to Act on Issue.

More than 200 shouting delegates to the American Legion state convention at Rock Island departed from the La Salle street station yesterday afternoon and last night. Others will follow today.

All are going to the convention with two large ideas: one to register their disapproval of President Harding's judgment in vetoing the bonus bill, and the other to elect a Chicagoan state commander. Other problems and programs of the convention, such as Americanization, service offices, election of officers to honorary jobs, and picking the next convention city are all eclipsed by the interest in the two big questions—bonus and boss.

May Demand Action.

The word is going about that the convention will act on a resolution condemning the President's action. Zest was given to the movement yesterday when Hanford MacNider, national commander of the Legion, who visited in Chicago, gave out a statement announcing that the fight for the bonus had just begun.

"We have the nation behind us," he said. "We are going the limit. House and senate bills No. 1 at the next session will be for adjusted compensation and we are going to put it over."

County Hopes Raised.

The fight to elect a Cook county man to the office of state commander looks bright, according to the wiseacres. The two men most talked of for the position are Col. Frank Schwengel and Capt. Charles W. Schick. The former was a cannoneer in the world war, and Capt. Schick was in the navy. Col. Schwengel is with Advertising post and Capt. Schick, who is present senior vice commander of the state organization, is with the Navy post.

Talk of dissatisfaction with the present organization is going the rounds and there have been charges that the association has been mismanaged during the last year.

McCauley Silent on Charges.

State Commander William McCauley of Olney, the buck private who triumphed last year over four colonels, refused to discuss the matter yesterday, asserting that he will fight the battle on the floor of the convention and let the delegates make the decision as to how he has served the Legion.

The convention opens Monday morning.

1,000 WOMEN TO ACT AS TAGGERS IN COLLEGE DRIVE

More than 1,000 mothers, daughters, wives, and sisters in prominent Chicago families have announced their willingness to serve as "taggers" in the loop district alone, on Oct. 2, when the Dominican sisters will inaugurate the drive for $500,000 needed by Rosary college, River Forest, Mrs. Edward H. Grant, general chairman of the tag day committee, announced yesterday.

Prior to the day itself massmeetings are being held at the Hotel La Salle and in the vault room of the Continental and Commercial National bank, where the women are laying plans for raising the half million of dollars.

Sister Identifies Body of Man Taken from River

The body of John Chaloupka, 2434 South Trumbull avenue, was taken from the river at Loomis street yesterday by police. His sister, Mrs. Mary Maurek, 1931 Shelby street, said her brother, a stone mason, left his home Sunday night saying he was going to Argo. No marks of violence were found. His sister said she knew of no reason for suicide.

NEW LORADO TAFT WORK MOLDED IN 'QUARTZ CEMENT'

Finding the work of hewing his statue, "The Fountain of Time," out of marble too great for one man, Lorado Taft yesterday watched engineers mold different portions of the piece out of a quartz gravel cement.

A plaster model of the statue now stands in Washington park. The mixture is said to be handsomer and more durable than granite. The finished statue is expected to be ready in six weeks.

Quick Wit and Ruse Puts Trio of Bandits to Flight

Three men, all with revolvers, entering the offices of the Bennett-McGuire company, 366 West Adams street, yesterday, demanded of C. J. Michaelson, 3810 Direrssey parkway, that he open the safe. He told them he didn't know the combination. Walter Hoerth, in the balcony, heard the argument and yelled for others who weren't there. The ruse worked and the bandits fled.

PROMINENT MEN HEAD DRIVE BY SALVATION ARMY

Headquarters of the annual home service campaign of the Salvation Army were moved yesterday from 129 South La Salle street to the old offices of the State Council of Defense at 120 West Adams street. Organization work for the drive Oct. 16 to 31 will be started in earnest tomorrow.

Cyrus H. McCormick Jr., chairman of the executive committee for the campaign, has announced the membership of his committee as follows:

Lester Armour, E. J. Buffington, Joseph Byfield, John Burnham, A. C. Cronkrite, Lerow Cramer, Charles G. Dawes, Edward E. Gore, John F. Gilchrist, Edward Hines, H. H. Hettler, R. P. Lamont, Clayton Mark, J. J. Mitchell Jr., L. E. Myers, Nathan William MacChesney, Stuyvesant Peabody, Earl Reynolds, A. A. Sprague, John Timothy Stone, Averill Tilden, Oliver Temme, Charles H. Wacker, Lawrence Williams, C. W. Wrigley.

Mr. Mitchell is treasurer of the committee, and C. W. Wrigley and Lawrence Williams are vice chairmen. Mrs. Joseph Fish is chairman of the women's division of the campaign, which will also have offices at 120 West Adams street. A total of $498,000 will be sought to maintain the thirty-odd institutions of the Salvation Army in Chicago during 1923. None of the money raised will be spent outside of Chicago.

LEGION NOTES

The next meeting of the American Legion auxiliary will be held on Tuesday, at Grace church parish house, Oak Park. Guests are asked to bring their "white elephants" in the way of materials. They are to be sent to the ex-service men at Dunning, providing them with occupation during the winter months.

FINED ON PUNCH BOARD CHARGE.

Charged with operating a punchboard, Sam Paranos, 1139 Berwyn avenue, proprietor of a barber shop, was fined $25 yesterday in the Chicago avenue court.

And pie is only one of many items we could use to illustrate how much more you get for your money when you serve yourself here, at the North American Restaurant.

Imagine a piece of apple pie this size for only 15 cents. That's our price. Compare it with the piece you get at other dining places for the same price—or for twice our price. We bake our pies in big 10 inch tins. Here a cut of pie is a fifth of a big pie—not the sixth of a smaller pie customary in most dining places. Each piece is 6 inches across, 5½ inches from the point to the rim and from 1½ to 2½ inches thick. Here you often see two people sharing a piece of pie—you don't see that any other place.

And North American pies are not merely big. Every bit of them is real pie. They bulge with goodness and have a crust that melts in your mouth. And not even one ounce of "substitutes" or "fillers" are used in them—ever.

What is true of pies is likewise true of every item of North American food. Always the quality is the highest—the portions are big and the prices are surprisingly low.

Considering quality and taste of food and the size of portions the North American is the lowest priced dining place in Chicago.

BLOW SAFES IN CATHOLIC SCHOOL AND GET—$1.25!

Valuable Papers Ruined at St. Patrick's.

Only $1.25 was obtained by yeggmen who early yesterday broke into St. Patrick's academy, 122 South Des Plaines street, and blew two safes.

One of the safes belonged to the school, the other to Dr. J. Louis Browne, who has offices adjoining those of the academy. Papers and records in the safes were blown to pieces and scattered about the floors. There was no money in the physician's safe and in that of the school there was not more than $1.25, according to the Catholic brothers in charge.

Get Finger Prints of Robbers.

Police obtained finger prints of the cracksmen and were searching the bureau of identification for records of them.

Two men held up John McCrimmon, night clerk of the Richmore hotel, 18th street and Indiana avenue, and robbed the hotel register of $25.

Benjamin Herman, 3069 Milwaukee avenue, was held up near his garage at 3535 Belmont avenue and robbed of $200 by two men, one of whom was colored.

Ex-Policeman Held.

Joseph F. Connors, 6733 Stony Island avenue, former policeman at the Hyde Park station, and three others were held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge John F. Haas, in connection with the robbery of J. M. Felton, 1309 Indiana avenue, and Miss Josephine Balgar, 7952 Dorchester avenue, in Jackson park on Aug. 11. These held with Connors are Matthew Blainey, 4433 South Union avenue; Robert Nugest, 5300 South Union avenue, and "Sandy" O'Brien, 5312 Lowe avenue. Their bonds total $7,500.

Girls' Screams Save $2,000 in Jewels from Robbers

Lusty screams on the part of Misses Bernice and Elizabeth Mikkelson, 2716 Logan boulevard, early yesterday routed three bandits. The girls were returning from the theater with two men, who were putting the car in the garage. Miss Bernice wore jewels valued at $2,000.

Field Statue Ready for Unveiling

The statue to Eugene Field, children's poet, which is to grace Lincoln park, is in place and complete. It is shown shrouded in cloth. The unveiling is set for Oct. 5. The statue is allegorical in design.

'DICK' MATCHES WIT WITH 'DIP' AND WINS OUT

Sergts. Byrne and O'Brien of the detective bureau had been set to look for pickpockets who have been preying on State street shoppers. They found Stella Lawson and Birdie Cohen, who have been arrested before, charged with being light fingered.

Birdie and Stella screamed, thereby drawing a crowd, to which they appealed for protection from "these two fresh flirts." The crowd looked angrily at the cops and trouble might have occurred only for the wit of Byrne.

"Watch your pockets," he shouted, "there are other dips on the street."

The crowd scattered.

DRIVER LASHES HORSE IN ZION; GIVEN 10 LASHES

A taste of his own medicine was meted out to C. O. Eels, a farmer of Wadsworth, who was selling cucumbers from his horse-drawn wagon in Zion City yesterday.

The horse, tired, failed to make the desired speed. Eels lashed the animal with a whip until the blood came. He was arrested by Policeman Arthur F. Mole and haled before Justice W. E. Schmalfuss.

"Ten lashes from your own whip," declared the magistrate.

He handed the whip to Police Chief Theodore Becker, who administered the blows, far from light, upon Eels.

FEW ALIEN KEYS CAN FIT U. S. DOOR UNDER THIS LAW

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—New legislation restricting immigration almost to the point of exclusion was outlined today by Representative Johnson [Wash.], chairman of the house immigration committee, in a statement of plans for the next session.

He suggested many changes in the existing law which he will endeavor to have congress approve at the next session. He expressed the opinion that the country "seems to want complete suspension of immigration," but contended that this was impracticable.

Measures urged by Mr. Johnson for tightening up the present law included the following:

"Reduce the percentage figure to 2 per cent or even to 1½ per cent, thus lowering the total number of admissibles from countries entitled to large quotas.

"Treat immediate families as units, admitting the husband, wife, or children of citizens of the United States and aliens permanently domiciled here.

"Perfect the illiteracy test by providing authority for the exclusion of the mentally inferior and the emotionally unstable classes.

"Provide for more thorough physical examination of immigrants by authorizing the modern bibod test, which will exclude aliens afflicted with diseases otherwise not readily detected.

"Limit all immigration to persons eligible to citizenship, once and for all time disposing of difficulties which have arisen by reason of the heavy colonization on our Pacific slope of unassimilable alien races."

Elaborating on this last suggestion Mr. Johnson said:

"The policy of denying citizenship to the yellow and brown peoples is applauded by students and thinkers, both here and abroad, who appreciate the fact that because physical assimilation of oriental peoples is impossible their incorporation into the body politic is impracticable and unwise.

"If they cannot, and should not, be made citizens, does it not follow that their admission to our country should be strictly and absolutely limited?"

FILE DEEDS FOR NEW LAKE SHORE ATHLETIC CLUB

The filing of deeds of purchase yesterday for the property at Chestnut street and Lake Shore drive, facing Lake Michigan, 158 feet on Lake Shore drive, assures the future of the new Lake Shore Athletic club. Deeds were passed from Arthur R. Jones Jr. and Emmett A. Thomas, the consideration being $362,000.

It also was announced that Col. Thomas R. Gowenlock had been selected as chairman of the organization committee. He will be in general charge of the club headquarters.

FOX, 76, AND GARY'S SISTER WED IN EVANSTON

Edward Fox, 76 years old, and his bride, formerly Mrs. Ella Ellis, 73 years old, sister of Elbert H. Gary, steel king, left Evanston yesterday for an extended "honeymoon" on the Pacific coast. They will reside at the home of Mr. Fox in Albany, Ore., it was announced.

The couple were married on Friday in the bride's home, 2309 Sherman avenue, by the Rev. Hugh Elmer Brown, pastor of the First Congregational church, Evanston, after a courtship of four days duration. Mr. Fox came to Evanston and ran across Mrs. Ellis, with whom he had attended college. He asked her to marry him and she set the date.

They intend to return to Evanston at frequent periods, they said. The wedding was private and attended by only a few intimate friends and relatives.

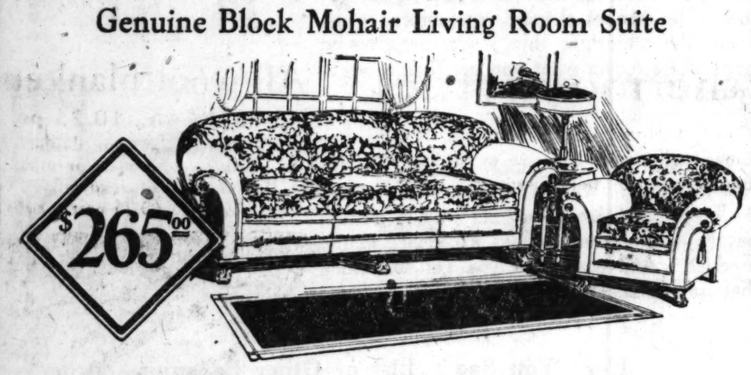
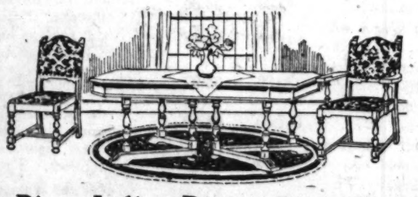
Genuine Block Mohair Living Room Suite



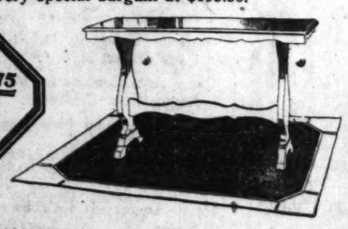
Chicago's Greatest Bargains in GOOD FURNITURE

THE Living Room Suite illustrated above is covered in a very high grade of Mohair of exquisite richness and beauty, which will keep its fine appearance through years of service. On the arms and sides the Mohair is in plain color, while that of the seats and backs is blocked in with a most attractive design in charmingly harmonious tints and colors. The graceful lines of this suite represent the very height of good taste and elegance. The frame is a fine example of Chippendale design, known for its beautiful carving, and is finished in brown mahogany. Suite consists of Sofa and Chair, with loose, spring-filled cushions, spring backs and spring arms. This is without doubt one of the greatest offerings we have ever made at so low a price.



7-Piece Italian Dining Room Suite

AN exclusive Rusnak design, suitable for the most discriminating homes. The lowness of the price is due to our large contract for the factory output. The Table has a 45 x 60 solid walnut top, with 6-foot extension. The finish is a very attractive, two-toned, high-lighted effect. The five Side Chairs and Arm Chair are perfectly matched with the Table, with seats and backs covered in high grade tapestry of our own selection, in harmonious Italian tints. This suite is one in which we take special pride, and is a very special bargain at $193.50.



Italian Davenport Table

Elegantly designed, finished in brown Mahogany, this Davenport Table will add grace and charm to any living room or library. Size 20x60. The price, $19.75, is set very low for quick selling and to add to our good will.

The Closer You Study

OAK PARK BOULEVARD ADDITION

The More You See Its Real Value!

For the benefit of those who were unable to visit this great property last Sunday we mention a few of the reasons why you should invest in Oak Park Boulevard Addition:

Wonderful Transportation: 1—I. C. R. R. on Property (18 minutes to Downtown). 2—C., B. & Q. Ry., 3 blocks, 60 trains daily (20 minutes to the loop, 8¾c Fare). 3—26th Street Surface Cars one block. 4—22d Street Surface Cars 4 blocks. 5—Douglas Park "L" Walking Distance.

Location: Intersection of two great streets, Oak Park Blvd. & 26th St. | Improvements: Water, sewer, walks, gas and electricity.

Consider These Points: Transportation and location is what makes real estate values. Study the wonderful transportation to Oak Park Boulevard Addition. Then look at the location—a built-up neighborhood at the intersection of two of our best known streets—Oak Park Boulevard and 26th Street. With State and Madison Streets as the pivotal point, Oak Park Boulevard Addition is as close to the heart of things as Oak Park, 75th and Halsted, Rogers Park. Not much farther out than Wilson Avenue, 63d and Halsted, or Jackson, Washington or Garfield Parks. Those who bought property in these districts a few years ago made fortunes—a similar opportunity is offered you today in OAK PARK BOULEVARD ADDITION. It is much closer than Evanston, Park Ridge, La Grange and Hinsdale and the big outstanding fact is THAT YOU CAN AFFORD TO BUY IN OAK PARK BOULEVARD ADDITION, where prices in the other locations are practically prohibitive.

Sixty Pretty Bungalows Already Built on This Property:

Oak Park Boulevard Addition is near churches of all denominations; plenty of good stores in a fine business district are within three blocks.

Sale Starts at 9 A. M.

Come Out Sunday—Take Douglas Park Branch of Metropolitan "L" to Lombard Avenue (end of line), where our autos will meet you and take you to the property.

Auto Route: Washington Boulevard, Jackson Boulevard or 22d Street to Oak Park Boulevard, then south to our office at Oak Park Boulevard and 26th Street.

SLAYERS OF PAIR UNKNOWN, SAYS RECTOR'S WIDOW

Denies She Was Jealous of Murdered Singer.

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. Frances N. Hall, gray haired widow of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, denied today that she knew who had killed her husband and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, a member of his congregation, and had left their bodies in a field, a week ago last Thursday night. It was the first interview she had given to reporters.

The clergyman's widow also denied that she knew what could have been the motive for the murders. She said she had not been jealous of Mrs. Mills and had not harbored any cause for vengeance, and that she did not know of anybody who possessed any reason to kill either her husband or the choir singer.

Her Actions Related.

In a prepared statement which Mrs. Hall issued over her signature, the widow gave a detailed account of her movements on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday—from the day before the murder until the day the bodies were found lying side by side under an apple tree on an abandoned farm.

Mrs. Hall concluded this document with the statement that she and the rector, who was about fourteen years younger than herself, had been happy together, and that her confidence in him remained "boundless and unshaken."

Before making her statements Mrs. Hall had been taken to the prosecutor's office for questioning for the first time since the investigation began. Two detectives and Prosecutor Stricker questioned her for two hours and a quarter. At the end it was apparent that the officials were completely mystified.

Mystery Still Clouded.

Despite statements that an arrest might be expected any moment, it has been apparent for several days that the authorities have been unable to solve the mystery.

It was learned today that the choir of Dr. Hall's church—the fashionable Protestant Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist—had been a hotbed of trouble for a long time before the murder. Mrs. Mills was the cause of it all, it was rumored. She had pushed herself forward until she practically ran the choir, although there was a regular paid choir leader, and she had been opposed for some time by a faction which resented her increasing influence over the rector and the conduct of church affairs.

IN COURT ON BUNDESEN CHARGE.

Two men and one woman, inmates of the Belmont hotel, 706 West Madison street, on an alleged disorderly house, which the health department placarded with social disease signs, appeared in Morals court yesterday and obtained a continuance until Sept. 29 following their arrest Friday night.

FOR FIFTY YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Axel M. Erickson.

Mr. and Mrs. Axel M. Erickson, 5949 Sangamon street, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Friday night at a reception held at the Swedish Mission church, Carpenter and 59th streets. There were 600 guests. A purse of gold was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Erickson, who are pioneer members of this church and residents of Chicago since 1888. There are seven children and twenty-seven grandchildren.

TORPEDO PLANES TO TEST SKILL ON BATTLESHIPS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—A full scale experiment in airplane torpedo attack will be staged off the Virginia Capes during the coming week when squadrons of torpero planes will launch torpedoes against battleships of the Atlantic fleet.

The torpedo plane attack upon the battleships is the first practice to be held of its kind and considerable interest is attached to the results that will develop from the practice. It is not expected that the torpedo attack will represent the highest development of this new and practically untried method of naval and aerial tactics, but it is known that the torpedo plane, having arrived at a stage of development which can no longer be termed experimental, is ready for more advanced tests to fit it for the place which it is designed to take in naval development.

The torpedo plane practice is scheduled to take place on Tuesday next, due east of Cape Henry light when the battleships, which will act as targets for the naval planes, will steam in formation on a course unknown to the pilots of the torpedo plane squadrons. The planes will leave their base in Hampton Roads with torpedoes slung in readiness and will proceed to the supposed location of the fleet, where the attack will be made. Scouting planes from the air craft fleet will participate in the maneuvers, as will also destroyers. These latter will also aid in the search for and recovery of torpedoes after launching.

Eighteen planes will comprise the attacking squadrons of air craft.

LAUNCH DRIVE TO LIMIT TAG DAYS TO THREE YEARLY

Charity Leaders Demand City Law Be Enforced.

Plans for a drive for thousands of signatures to a petition to members of the city council to limit the number of tag days to three a year, as provided by ordinance, have been evolved by a committee of women which met with Ald. A. O. Anderson, chairman of the aldermanic tag day subcommittee. Tag days in Chicago have reached the level of indiscriminate begging, according to leaders in the movement.

Ald. Anderson explained that the ordinance specifies that three tag days are to be held annually—one for the aged and adult charities, another for the Children's Benefit league, and a third for the Chicago Federated Charities. All organizations eligible to participate in tag days are asked to affiliate with these organizations.

Among the women who protested against the number of tag days which the council, by order and in violation of the ordinance, has been permitting, were Miss L. Ellen Babcock, Mrs. George Kiessling, Mrs. A. H. Brumback, Mrs. Joseph Fish, Mrs. Herbert Sheldon, Mrs. J. G. Hale, Mrs. Charles Frankenthal, and Mrs. F. V. Lawrence.

Will Ask Investigation.

Ald. Anderson announced that, at the first fall session of the city council he will introduce a resolution directing a council investigation of the use of funds collected by more than twenty-five organizations at tag days this year. The total collected is not known, but is estimated variously at from $150,000 to $300,000.

The ordinance providing for three tag days a year worked well for a few months. Then an order for a tag day by an organization not affiliated with the three associations of charities formed under the ordinance slipped through the council. Mayor Thompson did not veto it. The city law department did not call attention to the fact that it was a violation of the tag day ordinance.

Since the first violation of the ordinance it has been trampled upon as many as three times at a single council meeting. At least fifty-three tag days were held during 1921.

Under the ordinance the three associations, made up of charities which are able to meet the strict requirements, have framed bylaws which require statements of receipts and disbursements from each member. Each organization participating in a general tag day must first show that it has a deficit of at least $50 a month. It must guarantee that the money collected will be spent for maintenance of its work and that no money will be spent outside of Cook county.

Must Meet Requirements.

"If an organization cannot meet these requirements it has no right to make a demand on the public," asserted Miss Babcock, who is acting president of the Chicago Federated Charities.

"Two members of our association broke the rule by holding a separate tag day two weeks before our recent general tag day, Sept. 12. They have both been suspended for two years. If the city council will stand back of the three associations, organized at the request of the aldermen, Chicago will be relieved of promiscuous tagging and at the same time will have opportunity thrice yearly to contribute to every deserving charity in the city."

Ald. Anderson announced that hereafter he will insist that every order for a tag day be referred to the finance committee.

HELD ON BANK BOOK FRAUD.

The case of Arthur MacDonald, 2713 West Lake street, charged with forgery, was continued yesterday until Sept. 25 by Judge Haas. MacDonald is alleged to have presented the bank book belonging to Harry Gaede at the Greenebaum Sons Bank & Trust company, drawing the balance of the account.

Primary Law Vital to His Future.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Senator Borah (Idaho), recognized leader of Republican insurgency in the senate, is going home to fight for his political existence, and most of the fighting is going to be against his own party.

WM. E. BORAH. [American Press Assn. Photo.]

The senator is not up for reelection this year, but he is face to face with a situation in his own state which may readily mean his political annihilation two years hence. The Republican party, with which Mr. Borah has always been affiliated since he has been in public life, has repealed the direct primary law in Idaho. Furthermore, it has declared in its platform this year against its reenactment.

Senator Borah believes that reenactment of the primary is absolutely vital to him politically, and for that reason he is going to wage the campaign of his life for the election of candidates to the state legislature, regardless of their political affiliation, who will vote to put the primary law back on the statute books.

The other parties, the Democratic and the Progressive, have declared for reënactment of the primary law, but it is feared by Senator Borah's supporters that such a division in the primary vote will leave the present conservative wing of the Republican party in control of the state legislature. With the legislature selecting a senatorial candidate two years hence, Borah is certain he would stand no show.

Mr. Borah must also explain to the voters his opposition to the soldiers' bonus and the tariff.

'DARN FOOL GIRL' QUITS HOME IN QUEST OF FAME

If Norrine Janis achieves fame as a movie start it will be because she was called "that darn fool girl," the Central police were told last night by Miss Mary T. Smith, Juvenile court probation officer, who reported the girls' departure from a home at 1041 Loyola avenue that the court had found for her.

The girl's real name is Pauline Janouski and she is 16, pretty, and brilliant, Miss Smith said. When her father deserted her mother four years ago she was chosen by another mother as a companion for her daughter.

She had been in the family for three years until a few days ago, when she left the following note:

"I am going to have experience. Please keep my history to yourself and do let me be. I will be good and careful. I am going to hell." It was signed "That Darn Fool Girl."

ROMANCE BROKEN WHEN U. S. FAILS TO CHARM MLLE.

Greencastle, Ind., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Prof. Durbin Rowland, teacher of French in Depauw university, who failed to carry out his wedding plans on Sept. 9 with Mlle. Marcelle Dailliere after she came to New York for that purpose from her home in Vouvetoise, France, today issued a statement on the case.

"This is the only direct statement which I have made in connection with this affair and I hope it is the last," Prof. Rowland says. "One must remember that Mlle. Dailliere must have been very cleverly handled and badly translated by reporters in New York to make possible such a story as was published.

"She is a very charming girl, and the expressions 'nagging' and 'turning up her nose' quoted in reports never came from me and would have been unworthy of us both.

"We were both under a heavy strain in New York—she because she was not permitted to land, and I because it was absolutely necessary for me to go out west to take up my work.

"Such a tension brought from her and her brothers a flood of observations that showed too plainly that despite my efforts during five years' correspondence to make her understand America and American life, she would never be reconciled to our ways.

"As an American volunteer in the French army I received 5 cents a day, bought my own uniforms and equipment and gave all my energy and a very decent amount of blood, all of which I shall never regret.

"Everybody on the liner Paris connected with the affair had sat around talking so much that when it came time for action they seemed mentally paralyzed. After learning there was no hope for the girl's early release I took the matter in my own hands.

"I gave the girl funds to pay partially for her return voyage and offered to provide more later if necessary.

"I never believed until then that he was right and I thought finally it was better to separate before marriage than after.

"To go blindly on into such a marriage with the strong probability of continual misunderstanding and discontent ahead would have been the poorest and most simple minded kind of chivalry."

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS.

Relieve the Nerve Pressure that Wrecks your Health

Noted physicians and all anatomical experts agree that many nervous diseases and general ill feeling is due to nerve pressure. In many instances this nerve pressure has been caused by slight dislocation of the backbone, due to a bedspring which does not properly support the body.

You can't sleep peacefully on a bedspring that twists the spine and fails to support the neck and waist. The Rome De Luxe cannot sag as it is built to support every part of the anatomy equally—insuring absolute bodily comfort and complete relaxation.

The Rome De Luxe Bedspring is interchangeable—fits either wood or metal beds. Buy one at your dealer's today to insure yourself a good sleep tonight.

The Tragedy of the 1922 Building Boom

Why Didn't Home Builders Call an "R & B Man"

It is sad to relate, but we know. There are thousands of homes, flat buildings and apartments being put up in Chicago right now that are going to be spoiled by inadequate, inefficient, "coal-eating" heating plants.

Why do they do it? Why do people waste at the bunghole? Because they are guessing on their heating plants and don't call in an expert.

Buildings Have Been Ruined

Frankly, many a man and woman has started to build in 1922 and found that prices weren't down as much as he thought. He has tried to economize on the heating plant—and thinks he is getting away with it.

Don't do it! Call an "R & B Man"—a heating specialist who knows. He will keep your costs down to the last possible penny, but he will not let you buy a plant that will sooner or later ruin the investment.

Protect Your Investment

He will look over your plans or your house and tell you what type of plant will prove most effective and least expensive. He comes without prejudice, for we make all kinds of heating plants and have built a reputation now for more than 85 years.

COUNTY POLITICS HUMS THIS WEEK IN BOTH PARTIES

McCormick to Tour State in Congress Fight.

Politics is to begin humming in both the Republican and Democratic county camps this week, according to statements of campaign managers last night. Preliminary organization work has been completed, and before the week is over all candidates will be out rounding up the voters.

Martin O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic managing committee, expects to have his forces all in the field not later than Wednesday, he said, as he dwelt on the "complete harmony" that exists in his party.

"Never in the history of Cook county have the Democrats been united as we are this time," he said, "and we are going to sweep every candidate on the ticket into office. We can't lose in a single instance."

In the Republican camp the optimism is equal to that of Mr. O'Brien. Leaders of the various factions declare they are as one for the primary ticket. Already the candidates have spoken in many of the wards and country town districts, and they report their meetings well attended.

McCormick to Tour State.

The Republican congressional campaign also will soon be in full swing. Senator Medill McCormick, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee, will begin a tour of the state in the interest of Republican candidates on Oct. 6 with a noon meeting at Freeport and a night meeting at Rockford. He is scheduled for nineteen speeches, ending with a night meeting at Dixon on Oct. 21. Dates for his other meetings follow:

Oct. 7—Elgin, noon; Joliet, night.
Oct. 9—Champaign, noon; Danville, night.
Oct. 10—Harrisburg, afternoon; Cairo, night.
Oct. 11—Centralia, night.
Oct. 12—East St. Louis, noon; Edwardsville, night.
Oct. 13—Quincy, 11:30 a. m.; Galesburg, night.
Oct. 14—Bloomington, noon; Peoria, night.
Oct. 15—Jacksonville, noon; Springfield, night.
Oct. 21—Ottawa, noon.

Beer Vote Up to Brundage.

The proposition of putting the question of light wines and beers on the ballot in November has been referred by Secretary of State Emmerson to Attorney General Brundage for an opinion.

The Association Opposed to Prohibition has secured names to a petition for a referendum and recently the Anti-Saloon league asked Mr. Emmerson to keep the proposition off the ballot. After the league's protest he submitted the matter to the attorney general to decide whether such a question is one of "public policy," as contemplated by the law.

Women to Study Constitution.

The Illinois League of Women Voters opens its fall activities with a state meeting at its headquarters, 153 North Michigan avenue, Chicago, next Thursday, to discuss the proposed constitution. The program includes an explanation of the constitution by Walter F. Dodd, formerly secretary of the Illinois legislative reference bureau, who will explain the constitution. Victor Olander of the Illinois Federation of Labor, who will speak against it, and Charles H. Hamill, a member of the constitutional convention, will talk in behalf of its adoption.

The league hopes by this means to bring before the women of the state the importance of thorough discussion of the constitution in preparation for voting on its ratification on Dec. 12.

Mrs. Ella S. Stewart of the committee on efficiency in government will preside. Mrs. Henry W. Cheney, state president, will preside at a noon luncheon and business meeting.

John R. Abbott of Quincy filed a petition as an independent Democratic candidate for state representative from the Thirty-sixth district. Bertha C. Petersen of Chicago, independent candidate for representative from the Twenty-fifth district.

GLENN DEMANDS STATE CONTROL OF TRUCK TRANSPORT

JOHN M. GLENN.

Demand that the interstate commerce commission and the state utilities commission assume control of truck and passenger transportation, was made yesterday by John M. Glenn, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers association, at a luncheon in Aurora.

"So much business has been diverted from the railroads to automobiles, coupled with the inability of the public highways to meet the demands, that it is imperative that this control be assumed," he said.

Railroads, even with gasoline propelled engines, can not meet truck competition, Mr. Glenn pointed out, because they pay enormous prices for original purchase and maintenance of right of ways while the commonwealths maintain the truck highways.

"Illinois is spending $60,000,000 for new highways which are being destroyed as fast as they are built, by the heavy traffic," he declared.

TRUSTEES SUE TO SHIFT O'MALLEY ESTATE CARES

Appointment of the People's Trust and Savings bank as trustees to succeed them in administration of the estate of John F. O'Malley, late Democratic politician, is sought in a petition filed in Circuit court yesterday by Boetius Sullivan, son of the late Roger Sullivan, and Patrick A. Nash.

The suit, friendly in nature, is directed against Miss Anna Marie O'Malley, principal heir under Mr. O'Malley's will, and several other beneficiaries. Miss O'Malley, now 18 years old, is living at 47 East Superior street. Under the will she receives the income from the bulk of the estate placed in trust.

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST JEWS IS CHARGE OF RABBI

Boston, Mass., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—"History fails of any parallel to match the shameless lack of gratitude which is being shown by men and established institutions of learning throughout this country, especially in Boston, Chicago, and New York, toward the Jews," declared Rabbi Samuel Abrams of New York, in a passionate address before a large congregation in Temple Ohabel Sholem in this city today. "The same applies to other nations as well," he continued.

Sees Wave Sweeping Country.

"We have had a very good example of it here in Boston, and from reports coming to me the wave, unjust as it is, seems to be sweeping the country.

"Here is a people which has given the world of its finest and best, which has endowed it with sweet singers, with thinkers, and seers; a people whose civic pride and exalted patriotism have raised them high in the councils of the nations; a people whose soul restlessly thirsts for knowledge and whose contributions to knowledge have lifted them to rank as a great luminary not alone on the firmament of their alma mater but also on the firmament of the world.

Doors of Learning Closed to Jews.

"Yet that people alone is denied the opportunity and privilege of further knowledge and instruction. Here in freedom loving America, in the cradle of liberty, in Boston, the doors of learning are shut against them and their kind. They do not seek reward of recognition. They have never sought it. And while this is taking place before our very eyes the families of these men abroad are being flung into the sea, showered with a hail of iron and lead.

"Something must be done, something will be done to put an immediate end to this discrimination. We must have patience, though, and prove to them they are in error and we are not deserving of such treatment."

KILLED BY SWITCH ENGINE.

Injuries he received yesterday when he was run over by a switch engine of the Illinois Central railroad at the foot of East 15th street, caused the death three hours later of John Rankin.

BOOTLEGGERS WITH COSMETIC DISGUISE WILL BE UNMASKED

Federal officials have reached the conclusion that the need for mustache invigorators, eyelash stimulants and freckle eradicators is not as great as government records indicate. They opined a drive yesterday to separate bona fide cosmetic manufacturers from bootleggers who have been operating under the cloak of beauty.

Recently Washington has issued licenses to 250 supposed manufacturers of cosmetics with Chicago "laboratories," permitting them to withdraw denatured alcohol and cologne spirits.

Investigations, leading to several arrests, have revealed that a majority of the licenses were issued to persons who have been selling the spirits outright, and disposing of the denatured alcohol after redistillation.

"All that has been necessary to obtain a license to manufacture cosmetics having an alcoholic base is a certification that the supposed manufacturer has in his possession, oils and other ingredients for the manufacture of beautifiers," said United States District Attorney Charles F. Clyne. "It has been found that one man got a license when the only 'oils' he had was a bottle of juniper essence."

CHICAGO JEWS OBSERVE ADVENT OF YEAR 5683

Yesterday was the first day of the year 5683, according to the Jewish calendar. Ushered in on Friday night to the sound of the shofar, the ceremonial ram's horn, Rosh Hashonah, as the Jewish New Year's day is called, was celebrated in the morning by services in every synagogue in Chicago.

The biggest congregation was again to be found in the Medinah temple, Cass and Ohio streets, where well over 6,000 prayed together.

Except for the special services, there was nothing to distinguish yesterday from the ordinary sabbath, save the formal greeting of "Shonah tobah," a happy new year. Most of the Jewish places of business were closed. Even the Jewish judges were absent from their courts.

SLEUTH FEASTS EYES ON SHIP'S BOOZE; STYMIED

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Proud of his cargo and secure in the knowledge that he was beyond the jurisdiction of American law, the master of the schooner Tacoma, flying the British flag and carrying 3,000 cases of choice liquors, valued at $300,000 at New York bootleg prices, cordially greeted Capt. George V. Tawes, commander of the Hahn of the prohibition navy, when he climbed aboard, thirteen miles off shore from this port this morning. Capt. Tawes was politely escorted over the schooner by the master and left in the status of a welcome guest.

Eight of 'Em Out There.

The Tacoma is one of eight vessels lying at anchor just beyond the twelve mile limit. Several are loaded with liquors, while two or three are empty, their cargoes of contraband "wet" goods having already been delivered to smaller rum runners, in the opinion of federal prohibition officials.

Report of the character of the cargo of the Tacoma and the other boats was made to Zone Chief John D. Appleby, in charge of the general agents of New York state and New Jersey, this morning, by Capt. Tawes.

Chief Appleby had advance information on all the vessels that were boarded by Capt. Tawes, but it was desired to see just how much of their cargoes, considered contraband in this country, were still aboard.

More on Way Over.

The Tacoma and several other ships left Nassau with "assorted cargoes" about two weeks ago. Others are on the way.

No attempt was made by Capt. Tawes and his men to seize any of the vessels that were visited. Chief Appleby said the boats will be carefully watched and that some of them may fall into the hands of the rum chasers, or, at any rate, the cargoes from some of them probably would be picked up after being transferred to other boats for transportation ashore.

YANKEE WOMEN AWAKEN SISTERS IN DARK BRAZIL

Latin Husbands See Moorish Seclusion Doomed.

BY J. W. WHITE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 23.—No great political or economic crisis since the discovery of Brazil ever caused such widespread uneasiness in the Brazilian masculine mind as that aroused by the temporary sojourn on Brazilian soil of hundreds of Anglo-Saxon women, visitors to the centennial festivities.

All previous epoch making events or movements concerned Brazilian men only as to their political capacity. But this movement now, beginning like the low distant mumbling of an approaching storm, strikes them much closer to home because they realize the sound is the breaking of the shell of Moorish prejudice wherein their women hitherto lived.

Watch Yankee Women.

Brazilian men are no longer able to blind themselves to the fate, which the restlessness of their wives, sisters and daughters presages—their insistence on the right to step out into the light of equal liberty with men, and the freedom to live and move about and amuse themselves as they wish, the same as American and English women, whose example they have been watching in the last few weeks.

Brazilian women recently have been dreaming of freedom in only a rather abstract way. Their ideas were vague as to just what equal rights have brought to men in every day life. But the Brazilian men realize they now have been given a vivid example and that they now have definite aims and well defined ideas toward which to work. And the Brazilian men are frankly disconcerted.

Their one question to one another is, what are we going to do? They say equal rights are fine for Anglo-Saxon women, but they insist that Latin women are not fitted temperamentally to enjoy equality without abusing it. They are sure to run wild, as they express it.

Balcony Wooing System.

Hitherto Brazilian women were apparently content to live behind barred windows in their homes, going out only when accompanied by some man member of the immediate family, and never by any other man acquaintance. It has been only in the last three or four years that Brazilian women, usually the younger generation, occasionally are seen in pairs on the street or in ice cream parlors. Even now the respectable women are never on the street unaccompanied by a man relative after dusk.

Brazilian courting is still nearly identical with the old Moorish custom, centuries old—the youth on the sidewalk and the maiden on a balcony, trying to speak loud enough to hear each other, but not loud enough to be heard by members of the girl's family, who are chaperoning her behind nearby curtains.

American women, however, even with suffrage, never have been able to place on their husbands that sign of bondage which is universally worn by Brazilian men—a gold wedding ring. Hitherto Brazilian women have not worried about equal rights as long as the husbands wore the wedding ring. Now they see the horizon and the next ten years is expected to see the rapid growth of the women's equal rights movement in Brazil, all because Brazil celebrated its centennial independence, and hundreds of American and English women came here to attend the celebration.

NATIONS' LEAGUE DELAYS REVISION OF ARTICLE X.

Pass Problem On to Next Assembly.

GENEVA, Sept. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—The question of revising Article X, of the league of nations covenant, or eliminating it altogether, was passed on to the fourth assembly by the present assembly today without other observations or recommendation than the subject be considered in all its bearings.

The Canadian delegation showed no disposition to push Charles J. Doughterty's amendment eliminating the article.

M. Barthelemy of France said Article X. ought not to be changed in the hope of bringing the United States into the league. There was no assurance that a change would have this effect, he declared, and in any case the article ought not to be changed until the United States was on the scene to deliberate upon it with the rest of the world.

Wants Clear Definition.

W. S. Fielding, chairman of the Canadian delegation, said he had no fault to find with his predecessors on the delegation, but would not ask the assembly to eleminate the article. He would ask, however, that it be interpreted so the world would understand what it meant.

Mr. Fielding said that the Canadian attitude on Article X was not inspired by the desire to facilitate the entry of the United States into the league. The objection to it was based on the article's vagueness, he said.

Treaty Amendment Shelved.

The proposed amendment to Article XVIII regarding the registration of treaties was placed on the agenda for a future session.

The increase in the nonpermanent membership of the council of the league, by which six seats for the smaller countries are now provided, has somewhat relieved the scramble for places among these nations, but it still seems necessary to the slate makers that one of the present members be sacrificed.

TARIFF, CONGRESS AND "BETRAYAL" HORRIFY MR. COX

Cleveland, O., Sept. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—Asked what the issue will be in 1922, James M. Cox, Democratic nominee for President in 1920, declared today in his first address since his return from an extensive tour of Europe that "the people this year will be asked to elect a congress that will undo the present tariff monstrosity."

"But we will not lose sight of another great question—the international one," Mr. Cox added. "It will be more pertinent for discussion, however, in the great national forum of 1924. In the present instance, bad as the international wound is, the domestic injury inflicted by the most incompetent congress in all history is even worse."

India's Influence Seen.

"It is scarcely believable that European powers have agreed to the return of the Turk into the affairs of the continent. There may be a reason which is not apparent on the surface. It is possible the whole Mohammedan world has been stirred to its bases and that the urge on England is from India.

"Europe is infirm from war. Suffering from an economic breakdown and divided by the deadlock of reparations, she seems to lack the vitality and resiliency to hold back the Turk.

"All of this is proof of what has been urged upon the administration at Washington for months. Europe has been slowly drifting toward a state of collapse. The first thing that started her upon the way was the base betrayal by America of her allies.

"She not only abandoned them in the peace, but she has permitted the vanquished countries to be subjected to a bitterness that must be forgotten if the world is to be rebuilt.

The Reparations Wedge.

"For more than two months the economic recovery of the world has hinged upon the settlement of reparations. The deadlock has continued so long that England and France have slowly drifted apart.

"Now we have the spectacle of France joining hands with the Turk against England. The Turk was smart enough to see that his hour had come. All of central Europe is on the verge of bankruptcy. There has been no cohesive action with the allies since the United States abandoned them.

"The longer developing events cast the light of truth upon the international situation the plainer it will be that in international policies this administration has been criminal in its neglect."

BILL ASKS U. S. INDUSTRY COURT "A LA KANSAS"

Hope to Avert Rail Tieups and Similar Crises.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Establishment of an industrial court—the Kansas idea in a federal field—to deal with railroad disputes has been placed squarely before congress in a bill introduced by Representative Homer Hoch, who comes from the state where the industrial court plan had its inception.

With congress having jurisdiction over the railroads Representative Hoch confines the scheme he has submitted to railroad disputes, but it is admitted that enactment of such a law applying to railroad industrial unrest and disputes would constitute an opening wedge for extension of regulatory power over industrial disputes of all kinds which could be classed as menacing to the public welfare.

The proposal submitted by the Kansas congressman would begin by abolishing the railroad labor board and set up in its place a disinterested tribunal for settlement of railroad disputes.

Provisions of Bill.

The Hoch bill would provide that the industrial court or commission should recognize the right of the individual to quit work. It also would recognize the right of collective bargaining. But it would penalize a railroad lockout and penalize also any concerted move or conspiracy to quit work and disturb transportation. All such acts would be proceeded against as detrimental to the public welfare.

Summarized by Representative Hoch, his bill's features are:

1. Abolition of the labor board, which, he emphasizes, was formed on the mistaken theory of group representation.

2. Establishment of a wholly disinterested board of railroad adjustment.

3. Disinterested adjudication, instead of compulsory arbitration.

4. Directs fair wages with the element of hazard and every other factor considered, proper working and living conditions, and the full protection of seniority and other rights.

Favors Voluntary Settlements.

5. Encourages voluntary settlement of disputes without resort to the board.

6. Gives full power of inquiry and determination to the board where disagreement threatens to disturb transportation.

7. Expressly recognizes the right of the individual to quit work, and expressly recognizes the right of collective bargaining.

8. Puts all possible protection around the right of the individual to work, free from molestation and intimidation—as President Harding has insisted.

9. Penalizes the lockout for the purpose of forcing employés to terms and any other purpose contrary to public interest.

10. Penalizes any conspiracy, any concerted movement to quit work for the purpose of forcing employers to terms, or for any other purpose contrary to public interest.

11. Provides machinery and administrative features for putting the act into effect.

The bill would direct appointment of a board of five disinterested members by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the senate—one to serve two years, another four years, a third six years, a fourth eight years, and the fifth for ten years. Subsequent appointments would be for a ten year term. Removal would be only for malfeasance. The salary would be $7,500.

WEALTHY WIDOW "IN AGAIN" AFTER HER SCREAM BRINGS COP

Mrs. Gilman Cooke, 914 East 42d place, a widow, who recently received about $100,000 bequeathed her by her late husband, was arrested again early yesterday by Policeman Thomas Mitchell of the Hyde Park station, in front of her home. Thomas Alley, 2302 South Cicero avenue, an automobile racer was arrested with her, and both were charged with disorderly conduct. Policeman Mitchell arrested the couple when he heard Mrs. Cooke scream. She accused Alley of becoming too friendly with her in the taxicab in which they were riding. Judge Ehler discharged Alley and continued Mrs. Cooke's case until Oct. 10.

MRS. GILMAN COOKE.

STATEWIDE HUNT ENDS WHEN BRIDE IS FOUND HERE

Search for Mrs. Ruth Cummings, bride of a few days, who disappeared from the home of her husband's parents in Springfield, Ill., two days ago, ended yesterday when she applied for a position at the offices of the Western Union Telegraph company, and was recognized by a Juvenile court officer.

After telling her story to police of the South Clark street station, Mrs. Cummings was taken to the home of her father, R. Dyer, 6377 Eberhart avenue, where she intends to reside until expiration of the enlistment of her soldier husband, Fred Cummings, stationed at Fort Omaha.

Donald Schankenberger, 27 years old, 7526 Parkhurst street, rushed into the Chicago avenue police station yesterday and asked police to start search for his wife, Mrs. Helen Schultz Schankenberger, 28 years old, who disappeared from the home of a friend two hours after they were married yesterday morning. Police found her at 1026 Milwaukee avenue.

Teachers' Pay Envelope Fatter by 17 Per Cent

School teachers yesterday received their first salary for the present school year. Each envelope contained two weeks' pay with an average increase of 17 per cent over salaries paid last year.

Another distribution will be made this month, but for the rest of the year salaries will be distributed but once a month.

CREDITS SCHEME TO AID FARMERS SEEMS DOOMED

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Dissatisfaction among farmers over prices of their products has again brought up the question of the federal government extending credit to foreign countries.

W. E. Gould, banker of Kewanee, Ill., and head of a vigorous movement recently launched by Illinois bankers and farmers, proposes three ways in which prices for farm products may be increased.

He thinks it could be gradually brought about by a general improvement in business throughout the country and by launching a nation-wide campaign to show that farmers are not getting what they should for their products and consequently cannot buy the other fellow's goods. His third plan, one that is widely supported by bankers, farmers, and some statesmen, is to empower the War Time Finance Corporation to finance foreign buyers so they will be able to purchase American crops.

Provides Revolving Fund.

His plan provides for setting up of a revolving fund of $300,000,000 under control of the War Finance corporation.

"Allow shippers who sell grain abroad to make drafts on the War Finance corporatiton with documents attached—the War Finance Corporatiton to extend credit of thirty days to six months to the foreign buyer, and payments by the foreign buyer to be guaranteed by the foreign governments; the War Finance corporatiton to charge interest and something for discounting to take care of expenses and possible losses," explained Mr. Gould.

As soon as this plan should be put into operation, the price of wheat and other grain would go up, he believes.

The foreign market becomes of vital concern to farmers and business men in this country when it is considered that roughly 50 per cent of the American farmer's cotton, 25 per cent of his wheat and 15 per cent of his pork is exported.

While Mr. Gould's plan is considered sound and workable by many, it apparently has obstructions in its path. The federal farm bureau's review of the foreign trade and credit situation shows that Europe is badly in need of America's products if her purchases could be financed, but "Europe is not making headway in restoring its financial structure."

This significant paragraph is included in the review: "In the first seven months of 1922 exports of wheat were 55 per cent less than during the same period in 1921. Exports of corn were 67 per cent more. Corn as the cheaper cereal is receiving preference. Our exports of meat and lard are showing a slight decline thus far in 1922. Exports of butter show a decided increase."

After studying the plan proposed by Mr. Gould, Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota agreed that farmers needed relief. "Next session of congress I am in hope something can be done," he said. The senator added that the unfortunate thing was that the farmers have a surplus for export, "that export prices are fixed abroad and have a bearing on our home prices."

Two Governors Favor It.

Gov. McCray of Indiana pronounced the proposal to be all right and Gov. Allen of Kansas considers that "the plan is well thought out," but cold water was thrown on it when it reached Washington.

Secretary Wallace said that the loaning of money to foreign governments had been considered and "the plan was rejected by congress." He added, however, that "while a distinction may, of course, be drawn between credit extended by the War Finance corporation under the plan in question and that extended directly and without collateral by the treasury of the United States, the corporation is, after all, operated on capital subscribed by the federal treasury."

Senator Medill McCormick, after considering the plan, said: "Europe cannot buy so long as it is engaged in mutual reprisal and mutual hate, to the destruction of its credit and its currency. After all, the old law of supply and demand governs. I cannot be a party to any plan which lends to a Europe which does not contemplate paying what is now due us, and which perhaps never may pay us.

"We are in difficulties in this country, but relatively we are happy, while the condition of all the other countries is calamitous."

Secretary Hoover does not believe such a plan would meet with general favor. He thinks the situation may clear up with improvement of transportation, "and that the present depression in farm prices is partly due to transportation strangulation."

He is certain that the diminished wheat crop in Europe will mean a greater demand for America's crop during the next twelve months than during the last twelve months. "In the matter of payment," added the secretary of commerce, "it must always be remembered that foreign nations will buy and pay for their breadstuffs before they buy anything else."

Science Wins in Battle Against Climbing Coal Prices!

Remarkable Discovery Incorporated in Cole's Original Hot Blast Devices

Combustion Engineers Devise Simple Home Made Way for You to Demonstrate This Revolutionary Coal Saving Principle.

1 Start Here First

Roll a paper cone, using heavy paper that will not burn too quickly. Stick a nail or a pencil in it for a handle, as shown in picture. Hold the large end down and light it. See how the smoke pours out of the top! This smoke, besides being dirty and unhealthful, contains a large amount of gas that can be burned. In the ordinary bottom-draft stove this waste runs as high as 40%. Follow through the next step (No. 2) and prove for yourself that these gases can be burned.

2 Do This Next

Now hold a lighted match near the smoke. See how it lights with a little puff and burns like a gas stove. Note that the smoke has almost, if not entirely, disappeared. Now your cone is burning at both ends with a minimum of waste and dirt. The valuable gases, which are nearly half of the heating value of coal, are entirely consumed in Cole's original Hot Blast Heaters and Ranges. Look at the next picture, No. 3, and see how Cole's air-tight construction and patented top-draft Hot Blast make every ton of coal give you the heat of two tons in bottom-draft stoves.

3 How It Works Inside

This patented tube burns the 40% of your coal wasted by other stoves. Air is sucked into the firebox and superheated to 1,000 degrees. This highly heated air quickly mixes with the escaping gases and forces them back upon the live coals, where they take fire. The air-tight body saves all these valuable gases and is the secret of perfect operation of the draft. No other stove has Cole's Patented air-tight construction. It keeps the air in the stove heated above 500 degrees, the temperature needed for complete burning of coal and its gases. It burns 20 pounds of air to every pound of coal and makes your fuel last from one-third to one-half longer.

Cole's Original Hot Blast Heater
Famous the world over for its great heating capacity and guaranteed economy. Heavy Velvet Blue Iron Body of uniform color that takes a beautiful polish. Burns hard coal, soft coal, slack, screenings, lignite, wood or cornbobs. Heats from one to six rooms and holds fire remarkably. No live coals can fall on floor. Air tight construction, top hot blast, all-steel radiating surface. Any size or style. Ash pan, non-ash pan, side door or top feed.

The Strongest Guarantee Ever Made on Any Stove

1. A saving of one-third in fuel over any lower draft stove of the same size, with soft coal, slack or lignite.
2. Cole's Hot Blast or Cole's Radiant to use less hard coal or coke for heating a given space than any base burner made with same size firepot.
3. That the rooms can be heated from one to two hours each morning with fuel put in the stove the evening before.
4. That the stove will hold fire with soft or hard coal from Saturday night until Monday morning.
5. A uniform heat day and night, with soft coal, hard coal, lignite or crushed coke.
6. Every stove to remain absolutely air-tight as long as used.
7. The feed door to be smoke and dust proof.
8. The anti-puffing draft to prevent puffing.

Standing on our GUARANTEE

DON'T wait for winter to blow his icy breath in your face. Get ready now to keep warm and comfortable. Take time to assure yourself of relief from coal shortage and high prices. Make one ton go as far as two did last year. Investigate the facts thoroughly. Go to the nearest Cole's dealer (see list below) and see for yourself how these remarkable stoves will give you better heat and save you money. Hundreds of people are seeking and finding economy in Cole's Hot Blast Stoves. Go tomorrow before the never-before-heard-of demand depletes the stock of stoves.

COLE'S HOT BLAST HEATER AND RANGE COMBINED

Ideal for small kitchens. A marvel for economy of fuel and space. Firebox across the front gives four hot lids. Shoulder high oven saves back-tiring stooping. Perfect biscuits baked in 15 minutes from the time you light the kindling. Easy to clean under base. Remarkable heat control. Holds even heat for hours without attention—the same at top, bottom and sides of oven. Choice of black and nickel or enamel and nickel, blue or gray enamel. Burns coal, wood, screenings, corncobs or lignite. Fire holds over night. Has Hot Blast draft. Built of heavy rust-resisting iron. Glass lined flues.

YANKS AND GIANTS CINCH MAJOR FLAGS

TILDEN GIVES UP TRYING AND LOSES TO JOHNSTON

CROWD CHILL TO TENNIS CHAMP IN 4 SET DEFEAT

Molla Beats Mary Browne; West-East Tilts End.

EAST-WEST RESULTS

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 23.—(Special.)—Following are results in today's matches of the west-east tennis team event. Each section won three matches in the two day event, but on sets the west led. Today's matches:

Watson Washburn, New York, and R. Norris Williams, Boston, played Howard and Robert Kinsey, San Francisco, the match standing 6—1, 7—9, 11—9, and 5—5 when play was stopped to permit the Californians to catch a train.

William M. Johnston, San Francisco, defeated William T. Tilden, Philadelphia, 6—3, 4—6, 8—6, 6—0.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, New York, defeated Miss Mary K. Browne, Santa Monica, Cal., 6—3, 6—3.

Vincent Richards, Yonkers, defeated Willis Davis, San Francisco, 4—6, 6—3, 7—5.

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—West carried off the major honors of the East-West struggle to decide the tennis championship of the sections before a tremendous crowd at Forest Hills today. Although the complete score cannot be given because one match was stopped to permit the Kinney boys to catch a train for California, the score counts but little.

BILL JOHNSTON.

The fact that little Bill Johnston swept to victory, three sets to one, over big Bill Tilden, and finally buried the three times national champion in a love set, justifies awarding the west the lead. On points West won, although each section is credited with three matches.

Tilden Not in Best Form.

That final game of the Tilden match furnished the anti-climax of an exciting and interesting intersectional struggle which brought together most of the really great stars of 1922 American tennis. They had battled hard for three sets, although Tilden, save in one brilliant period, was far from being what he was a week ago at Philadelphia.

Then, when the big crowd which showed its favor for the little Californian, expected a rally, Tilden suddenly stopped, played as if indifferent, slammed the ball around, netted repeatedly, and seemed to be trying to lose. Not a flash of play did he show in the entire six games, during which he scored but 5 points.

His exhibition left a bad taste in the mouths of the 10,000 fans jammed around the field.

The outcome of the Johnston-Tilden match evened these two stars in their record of personal victories and defeats. They have met twelve times, each winning half the clashes. This season Johnston met Tilden four times and won three of the four meetings.

Johnston Starts Fast.

Johnston started against Tilden as if to avenge the defeat of a week ago, and breaking through Tilden's service twice, little Bill took the set, 6—3. He started well in the second, but with the count 4 to 3, Tilden began one of his irresistible attacks and took four games in succession, three of them love games, capturing the set, 6—4. In the last four games Johnston counted but one point and Tilden was superb.

Johnston appeared to have the third set at his mercy when Tilden tore loose with the score 5 2 in games against him, and smashed his way to five all, crashing through the little one's service twice. His own service doubled in speed and he shot ace after ace across. Then Johnston slowed up Tilden's attack and after a hard fight took the set, 8—6, the final game ending with a double fault which let the Californian break Tilden's service.

Mrs. Mallory Too Strong.

Mrs. Mallory and Miss Brown, who suspended play yesterday because of darkness, agreed to start all even again and play three sets instead of one today. Mrs. Mallory swept the first set, 6—3, Miss Brown failing to come to the net with her usual dash. In the second set Miss Brown fought harder, but Mrs. Mallory drove her into the back courts, and although her placements were better she was not strong enough to withstand the attack of the champion.

The doubles, which started as a runaway for the east, developed into a fiercely fought struggle, but with the sets two to one in favor of the east, and five games all in the fourth set, the Kinseys were forced to quit in order to catch their train to California, and the match was declared cancelled from the reckoning altogether.

The easterns were within two points of winning the match in three straight sets when the Californians rallied and directing their attack at Washburn, drove him down steadily. At times Williams was marooned in the court while Washburn was forced to stand the brunt of the hot volleying from the east boys, and their steady lobbing and shooting at him wore him down.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

BASEBALL'S HALL OF FAME.

SELECTION of George Sisler by a board of impartial baseball critics as the American league player most valuable to his team is an honor which, in our opinion, surpasses that of leading the American league in batting, a distinction which also falls to the St. Louis Browns.

While Sisler's batting no doubt carried much weight, selection of the former University of Michigan star indicates that this jury thinks he is at all times primarily loyal to his teammates and not an "average player"—that selfish individual who weighs figures in the batting and fielding averages above team victories on the field.

To recognize this differentiation The Wake approves the "most valuable player" plan. It was originated many years ago by Carl Green, an advertising man, whose agency at the time handled the Chalmers automobile campaign. At the end of each season a car was presented to the player thus chosen in each league.

In American sport the individual often is called upon to submerge his own chance of limelight for the benefit of his team as a whole.

Such self-effacement, if we may so term it, calls for the highest type of sportsmanship.

Elegy on a City Golf Course.

[With Apologies to Gray.]

The curfew rings the knell of parting day,
The last lone foursome slowly threads the lea,
The weary starter homeward wends his way
And leaves the course to darkness and to me.

Unnoted then I take a ball and tee it;
I swing and drop it inches from the pin.
'Tis always so when no one's near to see it.
I putt and hear it rattle in the tin.

But when I boast to others of my driving
They greet me with a most insulting wink,
Thus of my feat it's recompense depriving—
A man is judged by what his neighbors think.

Full many a drive of perfect form serene
A persevering duffer's score cards bear.
Full many a putt is born to sink unseen,
And, worst of all—nobody seems to care.

EXTERMINATOR HERE FOR MEET AT HAWTHORNE

Famous Seven Year Old Gelding Arrives.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Running horses were arriving throughout the day at Hawthorne yesterday, but the big reception went to Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Exterminator, when the famous 7 year old gelding pulled in on a special car from Toronto, Can. Trainer Joe McClennan was in charge.

Exterminator stood the long trip from Toronto to Chicago in fine shape. He may be sent through a workout either today or tomorrow over the Hawthorne course. Owner Kilmer plans to see the Hotel Men's handicap here in which Exterminator will start, Sept. 30.

New Orleans Stable Arrives.

James Robinson, well known in Chicago during the old days, was another arrival, bringing the thoroughbreds War Pennant, Mai Girl and Tiger Rose from New Orleans. N. Neusteter came in from Latonia with eight horses, and W. C. Weant brought twenty-one runners from Toronto. They have been racing at the Woodbine meeting.

Odd shipments arriving yesterday included:

Bond, Bansen, Greenland, Marse John, Brown Bill, Planteen, Different Eyes, Cuban Incante, Homan, Spectacular Girl and Klu Klux.

Seek Kentucky Horses.

Tom Murray, representing the Illinois Jockey club, left last night for the Kentucky tracks in Lexington and Latonia, and was instructed to bring a long list of high class thoroughbreds to the meeting here. He will make a particular bid to some of the horsemen known in Chicago when the racing game flourished twenty years ago.

Paddock Judge John Carey reported last night that several additional cars of horses were on the siding at Hawthorne and would be unloaded today.

Judge Joseph A. Murphy is in New Orleans for two days, making preliminary plans for the winter meeting in the south, but is due back at Illinois Jockey club headquarters tomorrow morning. He is to be general manager of the Hawthorne meeting.

[Copyright: 1922: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 23.—Sixty thousand seats have been sold for the Carpentier-Siki bout tomorrow night for the heavyweight championship of Europe. Opinion tonight is generally against the chances of the Senegalese. Part of the press previously had predicted a good fight, but all the sport writers today predict that the fight will end in the first half dozen rounds if not in the first three.

General satisfaction is expressed by sport writers for the high quality of the preliminary events. These include bouts between Charles Ledoux and Benny Thomas; Rene Devos and Jack Walker; Paul Fritsch and Billy Marchand; George Papin and Henri Du Pont.

CUBS CHALLENGE WHITE SOX FOR CITY BALL TITLE

First steps toward the meeting of Cubs and White Sox in their annual city championship clash were taken yesterday when President William Veeck of the north side team delivered a challenge to the title holding south siders. The defi was immediately accepted, and arrangements made to hold a meeting tomorrow at the office of Commissioner Landis. Prices, the schedule of games, and other details will be announced following this conference. The series probably will open on Wednesday, Oct. 4.

MELHORN WINS GOLF TITLE IN WICHITA MEET

Wichita, Kas., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—With a total score of 278 for 72 holes of medal play, William Melhorn, former Chicago golfer, now professional at the Shreveport, La., country club, won the annual golf tournament this afternoon on the Wichita Country club course.

BILL CREAVY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

William Creavy of Hillcrest, Kansas City, was second with 282; Jock Hutchison of Chicago, third, with 286; Mike Brady, Detroit, and Bob MacDonald, Bob o' Link club, tied with 287 for fourth; J. G. Collins, Tulsa, sixth, 288; Alex Graham, Wellington, Kansas amateur champion, seventh, 289; E. Murphy, St. Joseph, Mo., eighth, 290; Dave Spittall, Wichita Country club, formerly of Chicago, ninth, 291, and Fred Ford, Kansas City, tenth, 293.

Melhorn Nears Record.

Melhorn's score of 278 is said to be the third lowest ever made in an open tournament of 72 holes of medal play.

Melhorn captured the first prize of $1,000 in cash, offered by the directors of the Wichita Country club, who staged the tournament. Creavy's second low won him $700, and Hutchinson pulled down $500 as third prize. MacDonald and Brady split fourth and fifth prizes, totaling $500.

Melhorn was paired with MacDonald in the final eighteen holes of play this afternoon. Melhorn had a total of 138 for the first thirty-six holes, played Friday. MacDonald's total at the end of the first thirty-six was 144. When they teed of on the fiftieth hole for their last eighteen, this afternoon. Melhorn had a total of 209 for fifty-four and MacDonald had 210, as Melhorn had shot a 71 on the morning round and MacDonald a 72.

MacDonald Crowds Winner.

They battled through the final eighteen, with Melhorn carrying an advantage which he increased as the match wore away. The new midcontinent champion turned in a 69 for his final eighteen; MacDonald was only one behind with a 70. Creavy meanwhile, who had a total of 212 for fifty-four holes, was shooting a 70 for a total of 282 for second money. He was matched with Graham.

SWEETSER BEATEN

Bronxville, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Jess Sweetser, national amateur golf champion, was defeated, 2 and 1, today by L. G. Conley, one of his Siwoney club mates, in the semifinal round of the Victory club tournament at the Grassy Sprain Golf club.

THE QUESTION.

What team is your favorite to win the world's series this year?

WHERE ASKED.

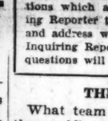
THE ANSWERS.

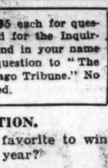
H. C. Hubbard, Madison, Wis., chemical engineer—I want to see the St. Louis Browns win, because they are fighting against a team where money, rather than the true sport fighting spirit, seems to be the main factor. George Sisler is my ideal for the world's greatest all-round ball player, and I'd like to see him play the role of leader in a championship series.

Ian Seeds, Columbus, O., merchant—The team I'd like to see win is the St. Louis Americans, but the one that will win is the New York Giants. I should think that every one who is interested in baseball would wish to see the St. Louis Americans win. If every team was like the New York Giants, baseball parks wouldn't be very full. It takes the sporting proposition teams like St. Louis and Cleveland to even things up.

S. T. Johnson, 847 South Home avenue, Oak Park, architectural student—I'd like to see the St. Louis Cardinals win the world's championship. During the last few years they have been working hard to build up a strong team, and their playing has recently improved so much that I think they deserve a chance to win the pennant, and I am for them.



L. F. Coleman, 6748 Lafayette avenue, architectural student—I'd like to see the White Sox win the series. I want them to have a chance to show that they can come back and win the series without any help from crooked players. I see no reason why I shouldn't continue to stick up for the team that has always been my favorite.



J. E. Burke, 154 West 74th street, South Park police officer—My favorite? The St. Louis Browns. St. Louis has never yet won a championship series, and they are certainly entitled to win at least one pennant. The Browns are well liked everywhere, while the New York team is a money proposition—players bought up for money and lots of it.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The speed with which Walter Johnson usually mystifies the enemy meant nothing to the White Sox yesterday and they slammed the veteran and his Washington pals for an 8 to 3 decision. Fifteen assorted wallops were peeled off against Walter, six of them for two bases and one a circuit affair that Johnny Mostil poked into the left field seats.

Despite the abundance of hits two members of Gleason's troupe failed to profit thereby. They were Ernie Johnson and Bib Falk. Three of the others more than made up for the delinquents, however, Schalk leading with four, Hooper and Sheely following with two doubles and a single apiece and Mostil ranking next with his homer and a double that came within a foot or so of going over.

Leverett Holds Enemy.

Gorham Leverett, the Gary (Ind.) strong man, looked after the slab toil for Gleason, and his work was highly satisfactory. In the third he wabbled a bit, and a single by Judge, double by Harris, and one baser by Brower scored a pair. That knotted the count at 2 apiece, but Leverett's co-workers came through with a five run rally in the fifth that made the remainder of his task an easy proposition.

The Sox climbed on the veteran Walter right in the first frame. Hooper led off with a double and E. Johnson sacrificed. Hooper rode home on a single by Collins. Sheely punctured short with a safety on a hit and run play, Collins scooting to third whence he scored while Mostil was forcing Sheely at second. Washington's third wiped out that lead.

Schalk Starts Pyrotechnics.

Schalk started the fifth inning fireworks with a double to left and Leverett sacrificed. Hooper's single scored Schalk. E. Johnson was retired and Collins then flied to left, but "Goose" Goslin muffed the pill, so Hooper tallied. Sheely banged a double over Rice's head, sending Collins home. Then Mostil cracked the first pitch into the seats, scoring Sheely ahead of him.

After that rude jolt the Senators didn't bother anybody. They managed to collect a run in the seventh on singles by Peck, Judge and Harris and the Sox got that back in the eighth on Mostil's two bagger and a clout by Mulligan.

Last at home game of the season today.

BROWNS, PIRATES DROP LAST HOPES BY LOSING GAMES

Worst Hugmen Now Can Do Is Tie for First.

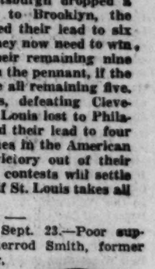
PENNANTS CLINCHED

The New York Giants and Yankees yesterday clinched beyond all but the slimmest of mathematical possibilities their right to battle in the world's series for the second successive year.

By defeating the St. Louis Cardinals while Pittsburgh dropped a double header to Brooklyn, the Giants increased their lead to six full games. They now need to win only two of their remaining nine games to clinch the pennant, if the Pirates capture all remaining five.

The Yankees, defeating Cleveland, while St. Louis lost to Philadelphia, boosted their lead to four and a half games in the American league. One victory out of their five remaining contests will settle the race, even if St. Louis takes all four games.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 23.—Poor support back of Sherrod Smith, former Brooklyn pitcher, who hurled his first game for Cleveland today and while, who succeeded him enabled the Yankees to take the second game of the series, 7 to 6. Successive home runs by Summa and Gardner figured in a four run rally by Cleveland in the fifth, when Sam Jones was routed.



WAITE HOYT.

Hoyt, who relieved Jones, was found for successive doubles by Wood and McInnis, the first two men to face him, but after that inning he pitched good ball, holding the Indians scoreless in the seventh when they filled the bases with no one out.

DUGAN OUTRANKS GROH FOR SERIES AT THIRD BASE

BY HUGH FULLERTON.
ARTICLE IV.—THE THIRD BASEMEN.

Strange are the intricacies of the dope. Here we have two players, Heine Groh and Dugan, who have been touted for years as the greatest among the present day third basemen since the passing of Buck Weaver and the going back of Larry Gardner—and when we come to dope them we find that for purposes of the present world series they rank far down.

HEINIE GROH. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

In fact, the dope figures indicate that there are half a dozen third basemen in the major leagues who would be stronger in such a series than these two are liable to prove.

Nor is this due entirely to the fact that Groh has played wretched baseball during a great part of this season. He has improved during the recent weeks, and we must give him credit for being much stronger than during his August slump, when, instead of the star the Giants thought they had, he looked like a busher.

Likely to Be Feeble at Bat.

The fact is that Groh compared so poorly with the two American leaguers (considering Foster of the Browns still in the reckoning by a remote possibility) chiefly because the Giant player is up against much more difficult opposition than any to which he has heretofore been accustomed, and his style of batting promises small results against the pitching of the Yankee corps, especially Shawkey and Mays. Against their style of pitching, his stance and manner of batting will not yield many returns; in fact he dopes weaker against the American league pitchers who may work in the coming series than he does against the average run of the National league—and he has been below his mark this season against them.

You will discover an odd freak in the dope this season if you take a close study of the hitters. We find fellows who have always been well up in the figures, well down; and a number who used to be just above average, way up. The reason is, that the pitchers, afraid to use speed against the lively ball, have been using more and more slow balls, knuckle balls and slow curves.

Victim of New Pitching Tactics.

The speed hitters are the sufferers—and Groh is among the victims. They are slow balling and slow curving his batting average to pieces, and the fellow who has a flash of speed to shoot at him unexpectedly, mixed with the slows, troubles him a great deal.

Dugan is one of the puzzles of baseball. Dopesters and "experts" have been declaring for years that Joe is one of the really great third basemen of all time, but what the heck has he ever done to prove this? He has, it is true, played better baseball since he settled into the third base job with the Yankees, than ever before, excepting in flashes.

This is his big chance, and being a fighting, hustling fellow, he probably would do better in a world's series than in the average season.

Is Groh "Crowd Shy?"

There is another element, which however cannot be expressed in the figures. If the Browns should win and meet the Giants, we would have a chance to learn whether or not Groh will stand the gaff. The St. Louis crowds are the toughest and most partisan in baseball, and Groh would be under heavy fire in every game played in that city. That he does not go well when under punishment from crowds is asserted by many students of baseball, and there would be no doubt that he would field better on the Polo grounds than he would in the Browns' park.

The dope on third baseman is a surprise, for it was there that we would have expected, normally, to find the Giants leading in the figures. Dugan is the better in runs hit home, and is really the most dangerous in a pinch.

[In the next article we will present the dope figures on shortstops, together with the figures showing comparative values of the three infields complete.]

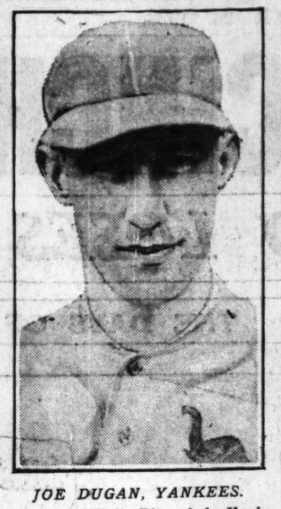
WALLY PIPP, YANKEES.

FRANK FRISCH, GIANTS.



JOE DUGAN, YANKEES.

EVERETT SCOTT.

Hugh Fullerton's world's series dope shows Wally Pipp of the Yanks to be the best among the possible first sackers, Frankie Frisch of the Giants the king of the keystone guardians, Joe Dugan of the Yanks as the leading third baseman, and Everett Scott outranking all rival shortstops.

AMATEUR BALL LEAGUES TO PAY HONOR TO STAHL

Edward R. Litsinger, former president of the Amateur Baseball association, has requested all baseball players who were friends of Garland [Jake] Stahl, both when he was manager of the famous Boston Red Sox, champions of the world, and interested in the semi-pro clubs of Chicago, to meet tonight at 8 p. m. at Boydston's undertaking establishment, 4227 Cottage Grove avenue, for the purpose of appointing a committee to attend the funeral, which will be held at Hyde Park Presbyterian church, 53d street and Blackstone avenue, tomorrow at 3 p. m.

MOBILE BATTLES FT. WORTH TO TIE

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 23.—Mobile, Southern association champion, staved off defeat this afternoon in a ninth inning rally, after two men were out, and then battled the Texas league champions through a ten inning contest, 6 to 6; Umpire Pfirman then called the game on account of darkness. The two teams will resume hostilities Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Dixie championship series stands three victories for Fort Worth and one for Mobile.

About six thousand people were in attendance, including a large delegation of Texas fans who brought the Fort Worth Police band with them. Score:

Fast Games for Amateur Ball League Teams Today

The championship series of the amateur baseball leagues today will bring together some of the fastest clubs in local circles, and the results will have an important bearing on the trophy winners. The schedule follows:

Liberty league—Ramblers vs. Milparks at Logan Square park at 10.

Boys' league—Albany Park Sportsmen vs. Sears at 44th and 22d at 10; Foser's Palms vs. Shamrocks at Armour Square at 2.

Junior league—Ravens vs. Barretts at 44th and 22d at 3; Sacred Hearts vs. Home Runs at Archer and Kedzie at 3.

LYNCH-WOLFE BOUT ON SQUARE, SAYS MULDOON

New York, Sept. 23.—"Evidence does not support the rumors that the Joe Lynch-Kid Wolfe fight here this week was a prearranged affair. I believe Lynch did his best, and that Frankie Jerome or Terry Martin could have stopped him," William Muldoon, chairman of the state boxing commission, said today.

American Giants' Crack Pitcher Injured by Auto

Anderson, Ind., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—American Giants, motoring from Indianapolis to Anderson, lost the services of Whitworth, leading pitcher of the club. The player got out of an auto on a sideway, and another car ran into it, breaking his leg in two places. He was sent to Indianapolis in ambulance. Doctors say he will not be able to pitch again. AUSTIN DEFEATS MORGAN PARK, 6-0

Austin High, 1921 winner of the Chi- cago prep grid title in the northern division, opened its season yesterday morning with a 6 to 0 victory over Morgan Park academy at Morgan Park. Inexperience of numerous play- ers resulted in a ragged game in which fumbling was frequent. Both teams suffered from the heat. Coltrin and Russell in the line; Simpson, quarter- back, and Capt. Pauder and Schussler, halfbacks, were stars for the winning team. Austin showed form that indi- cates it will be in the race for the city division A title.

Disregarding the heat and the fact that [illegible]mes are supposed to be little more than practice af- fairs, Senn High and Loyola aca- emy elevens bat- led to a hard 6 o 6 tie at Loyola yesterday. For three quarters the contending teams fought with no ad van- tage. Their de- fenses powerful and their attacks weak, the contest early resolved it- self into a punt- ing duel with the ball passing from one team to the other on downs with regularity and much of the playing in midfield.

BILL LOUNSBERRY.

Both teams scored touchdowns in the last period and each elected to try kicking for a goal after touch- down and failed. Senn was first to score. Early in the quarter Louns- berry punted to the Loyola five yard line. Catholic players touched the ball, but failed to hold it and Chick Thompson, speeding Senn end, fell on the oval across the goal line for a touchdown.

Hartke Scores for Loyola.

Another kicking duel lasted for sev- eral minutes, then Loyola started a march down the field that was halted within the shadow of the Senn goal posts. Three times Loyola backs bucked and met a fighting line that held, but on the last down Gene Hartke plunged over for the tying touchdown.

Both teams used straight foothall, seldom attempting a forward pass or intricate formation, any of which met indifferent success. Hard tackling was the outstanding feature. Both teams were guilty of fumbling and quarter backs sometimes went wrong in call- ing their plays, such as Peacock of Senn calling for a forward pass on the fourth down with the ball in mid- field early in the game. But on the whole it was an exceptionally hard fought and well played game.

Lounsberry, Thompson Stars.

Lounsberry was the chief ground gainer for Senn. Overshadowing all others on the Chicago league eleven, however, was the play of Art Thomp- son, right tackle, who was a tower of strength on the defense and brilliant on the offense. Chick Thompson tackled strongly.

Gene Hartke, full back, was the most consistent oval lugger for Loyola. Sharing the individual honors with him were Capt. Toomey, guard, who, like Thompson of Senn, was a bulwark of strength in the line.

Senn was weakened by the absence of Capt. Horton, right half back, who was out of the game with an injury to his side sustained in scrimmage Thurs- day. Lineup:

LAUTER'S RETURN BOOSTS PURPLE FOOTBALL STOCK

With Coaches Thistlethwaite, Kent, and Trafton driving their charges through the hardest scrimmage of the year, and with the addition of Ray Lauter, 1919 varsity half, to the squad, the Northwestern university football squad yesterday took a stride in the direction of rounding out a promising team for the opening game of the sea- son with Beloit on Oct. 7.

Lauter, who returned to school Fri- day, came on the field for the first time yesterday afternoon, and was im- mediately assigned to a half back's post by Thistlethwaite. Other backs who fought their way through the lines in scrimmage were Capt. Jimmy Pater- son, Bob Wienecke, 1921 freshman captain, William McElwain, and Charles Palmer.

George Trafton, former Staley cen- ter and Notre Dame star, has assumed the position of line coach, following his decision to give up professional foot- ball, and yesterday charged his candi- dates over the turf with a speed not seen on the Purple field before this season.

Taylorville to Have Grid Team Again This Year

Taylorville, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.] —Taylorville, from where emerged the news of the famous Carlinville-Taylor- ville football game last year that wrecked the University of Illinois and Notre Dame squads will again have a footbal lteam. Dope Simpson, one of the ousted University of Illinois men, will be in the Taylorville lineup.

MAINE TOWNSHIP WINS.

Coach G. M. Fischer's Maine Township cohorts came out of a hard fought struggle with Thornton High with an 18 to 7 edge. Haas, pilunging fullback of Maine High, found holes through which to gain ground con- sistently, making a pair of touchdowns. Line- up:

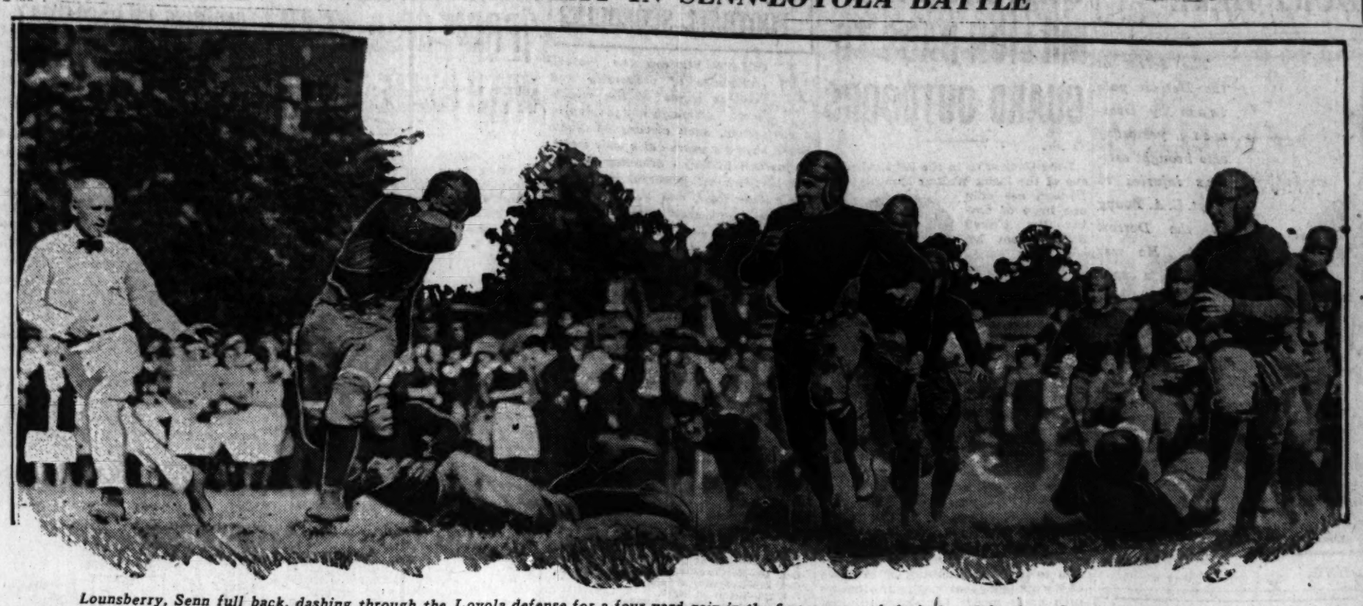
THRILLING PLAY IN SENN-LOYOLA BATTLE



Lounsberry, Senn full back, dashing through the Loyola defense for a four yard gain in the first quarter of the ir 6 to 6 battle at Loyola yesterday. Left to right: Ray, referee; Lounsberry, Senn; Tom Kullman, Capt. Toomey, a nd Gene Hartke, Loyola, in a desperate attempt to bring down the flying green jerseyed gridder.

MAROONS SHOW LITTLE CLASS IN SCRIMMAGE

Two practice squads of Maroons bat- tled for more than an hour yesterday afternoon without either side scoring and without either showing anything notable in the way f gridiron excel- lence.

A. W. PROUDFOOT. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Practically the same teams used in the first prac- tice game Friday afternoon opened the grilling yester- day, numerous substitutions be- ing made, espe- cially in the back- field. King again served at center, but he did not handle the ball as expertly yesterday as has been his cus- tom.

Lloyd Rohrke was absent from his usual post to the right of King, Nitter- house taking his place. Proudfoot was the other guard. Vandegrift and Bar- nard were tackles, opposing Gowdy and Millis. Weiss and Dickson op- posed Duggan and Wilcox as ends. Greenebaum took the place of Hartong, who worked as a center Friday.

Strohmeier and Pyott Not Used.

Strohmeier and Pyott were not in the play yesterday. Caruso and Hoff were in the game at the start and worked well. They were relieved by Harry Thomas and Leggette, two other candidates for half back positions.

Lampe worked as full back on the squad with Caruso and Hoff, but when given the opportunity he failed to dup- licate his drop kick, which won the game for the opposing aggregation on the preceding day. Heinie Schultz was given his first chance to show his stuff yesterday and he made the most of his opportunity. His initial appear- ance at quarter was marked by rather brilliant playing.

Another Backfield.

In the opposing backfield Andrews was at right, Barnes at quarter, and Frida at left. Frida was given the ball repeatedly and he showed some stuff in finding holes in the opposing line. His passing was also notable. Briggs worked at full on this squad, later be- ing relieved by Atwood. Burgess took Barnes' place at quarter before the game was over, Hiley being given a chance at the other quarter back posi- tion at the same time.

Coach Duke Dunne, former Michigan university captain, and now coach of Loyola academy, and Capt. Frank Toomer, giant guard of the team that yesterday battled Senn High to a tie at Loyola.

FOOTBALL CAMPS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 23.—With the opening encounter of the season only a week away, Head Coach Bob Fisher of the Harvard varsity football team has practically made up his mind as to his line in f day's clash with Middle- bury col "Eskie" Clark, the Alaskan who was a regular last year, will be at center and will be flanked at the guard positions by Hubbard and Charlie Grew, both letter men. At the tackles will be Charles Eastman, the giant Nebraskan, and Phil Kunhardt. It is expected that Joe Hartley, Percy Jenkins and George Braden, brother of the famous Yale star, will see much ac- tion at ends.

AT NAVAL ACADEMY.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 23.—[Special.]— Lentz, who played guard on the Rutgers eleven last season, practiced with the Naval academy squad for the first time this morn- ing, going through the preliminary work and some signal drill. He weighed 210 pounds on the official scales today and looks very strong and active. There will be considerable competition for the place, but it looks as if Lentz will win and the Navy have a powerful pair of guards with Garney, 220, as his side partner.

AT INDIANA.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 23.—[Special.]— Using the Pittsburgh unbalanced line formation and a back field shift neither the first nor second string Indiana university elevens were able to make consistent gains in the first scrimmage of the year today. Inter- ference was ragged and newness of the sig- nals was evident although a line buck or two, a simple end run and an elementary for- ward pass and cutback through the line was all the stuff that Coach Herron showed. Tom Whale, new assistant varsity coach, arrived from Pittsburgh today. He will drill the Hoosiers linemen.

AT IOWA.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 23.—Despite temperature hovering near 90 degrees, Coach Jones held his first practice game this afternoon. Four teams were driven at high speed through twenty minute halves. The first eleven made three touchdowns in fifteen min- utes. Best ground gainers were Perkins, Locke and Hiller. Quarter Back Hicks wrenched his knee and retired.

ILLINOIS BOYS IN MAJORITY ON GRID SQUAD AT URBANA

URBANA, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Spe- cial.] — From present indi- cations Coach Zupke's Uni- versity of Illinois football team this year will largely be com- posed of native Illinoisians. Out of 115 candidates already report- ing for practice eighty-one are from Illinois, twenty-one of this num- ber coming from Chicago.

FOUR FOOTBALL STARS UNCOVERED ON IOWA SQUAD

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 23.—[Special.]— Four stars of other days and other schools are found, at the end of the first week of practice on Iowa field, fighting for the two places in the Hawkeye line, vacated by Lester Belding and the mighty "Duke" Slater, Negro star.

Hugh Wade of Iowa City, a nephew of Federal Judge Martin J. Wade, and John Hancock of Superior, Wis., are contestants for the end position; Karl Engledinger of Iowa City and Alex. Johnson are aspiring to fill the rather voluminous shoes of the "Duke" at tackle.

Alex Johnson, tackle, weighs about 190 now, but was 200, when he played with Lake Forest academy. He was considered one of the best athletes in the west when in training five years ago.

DEERFIELD GRID TEAM BEATS SCHURZ, 9 TO 0

Deerfield High, last year's Suburban league champion inaugurated its foot- ball season with a 9 to 0 victory over Schurz in an excellently contested game at Highland Park yesterday. Fullback Watt gave Deerfield all its points with a thirty-five yard drop kick in the first quarter, and by a ten yard plunge for a touchdown in the second period. Quarter back Wilson of Schurz got away for several good runs. Line- up:

LINDBLOM HIGH TAKES OPENER AT TERRE HAUTE

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 23.—[Spe- cial.]—Lindblom High of Chicago plowed to a 25 to 0 victory over Gar- field High of this city in the opening game of the season here. Garfield was outclassed by the veteran Chicago ag- gregation, and was able to make first downs only three times. Lindblom scored the first touchdown in four min- utes, when Bodin got around left end and ran thirty-five yards. The work of Trimble, Marks and Bodin featured for Lindblom. The visitors outweighed Garfield. Lineup:

LIEUT. ANDINO IS PISTOL CHAMPION

Camp Perry, O., Sept. 23.—Lieut. Eduardo Andino, 18th infantry, Fort Slocum, N. Y., is the national pistol champion. Andino, against a field of 365, came out first with a score of 265 out of a possible 300 in the national rifle matches. Sergt. Otto Bentz, coast artillery, Fort Worden, Wash., was the winner of the national individual rifle match, finishing yesterday with a total of 337 out of a possible 350. Sergt. Arthur D. Rothrock, United States in- fantry, and Sergt. Peter Mollerstrom, 11th United States cavalry, won the two man team match with a total of 575 out of a possible 600.

The United States Marine Corps team of sixteen men won the service team match in the national rifle matches today by piling up a total of 4,489 points out of a possible 4,800.

AT MICHIGAN.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 23.—[Special.]— Yost put his men through their first real scrimmage of the year this afternoon, when he picked two elevens and let them battle for an hour. Keefer, Steger, Cappon, and Roby were in the back field for the first squad, and, with Kirk and Goebel on ends, Vandervort and Muirhead tackles, Van Orden guard, and Slaughter center, they had little trouble in gaining at will. Steger was easily the out- standing star, making big gains every time he took the ball. He scored the first touch- down on a sixty yard run. Kirk was also conspicuous in nabbing passes hurled by Roby and Goebel. Slaughter played well at cen- ter for the first team.

YALE CRUSHES BATES IN FIRST GRID GAME OF SEASON BY 48 TO 0

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 23.—[Spe- cial.]—Yale's football coaches used up the first, second, and part of the third eleven today in crushing the little down east team from Bates college be- neath a 48 to 0 score. These two elevens have opened the bowl season for two years, Yale today improving its 28 to 0 tally of last year by 20 points. Fully 20,000 spectators turned out, more than doubling the record for former opening bouts.

The intense heat quickly exhausted the players and undoubtedly limited the Yale score. Yale used a veteran aggregation at the outset, and it quickly crumpled the Bates defense, scoring two touchdowns within eight minutes. Yale began driving its re- serves into the ranks soon after the second period commenced, and subs replaced each other in quick succes- sion. The Bates attack failed to pene- trate the Eli defense for a single first down.

Davis, who performed the visitors' toe work, punted well and the Bates defense twice rallied sufficiently to hold the Yale attack on downs.

BIG THREE DRAWS NEW CODE RULING VARSITY SPORTS

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 23.—[Spe- cial.]—Sweeping changes in athletic rules of the "Big Three" were to- day announced by Presidents Hib- ben, Lowell, and Angell as having been reported for Princeton, Har- vard, and Yale by the commissions appointed last March. They con- tain the following provisions in de- tail:

PREXY LOWELL. [A. DUNE PH to.]

1. That every candidate for ath- letic competition shall give a de- tailed statement of his financial support, and that the committee of three chairmen shall take into account his character, scholar- ship, willingness to meet obligations, as well as his financial receipts.

Committee Must Approve.

2. Awards of scholarship prizes and loans by the university must be ap- proved by a committee.

3. Students cannot transfer from one university to another.

4. Proselyting by propaganda in preparatory schools and paying an agent to visit a university is forbidden.

5. The coaching staff shall be limited and coaching shall be done by only the regular staff. Coaches cannot write articles for publication except upon ap- proval.

Post-Season Trips Forbidden.

6. The football season shall begin after college opens and the number of games shall be reduced. Post-season trips are forbidden.

7. Games shall be arranged with op- ponents only representing high stand- ards of eligibility and training meth- ods.

8. Athletic publicity shall be subject to constant supervision and no efforts to emphasize athletics will be made.

The rules go into effect next Janu- ary.

W. AND J. WHIPS GENEVA COLLEGE

Washington, Pa., Sept. 23.—[Spe- cial.]—It required a big come back on the part of Washington and Jefferson this afternoon to prevent a scoreless tie with Geneva college in the opening clash of the 1922 season. For three periods the Covenanters from Beaver Falls, Pa., played the Presidents to a standstill. Then Neale's men rallied with the start of the final quarter and ent over two touchdowns with as many points registered after scores, making the final 14 to 0. Geneva did not make a single first down.

FOOTBALL ANECDOTES AS TOLD BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

ARTICLE I.

PASSING of Dad Moulton, noted and respected trainer of athletic teams at Leland Stanford uni- versity, brings back memories of Mike Murphy, who had so much to do with athletes at Yale and Pennsyl- vania. It also reminds Missouri valley conference fans of Jack Best aged and capable trainer of teams at the Universit of Nebraska.

Murphy an Moulton had a uncanny knack o making their ath letes perform u til the last ounc of physical energ had been spent It has been sai that they secure results wher least expected, and were responsible for bringing men to the foremost ranks of their chosen athletic endeavor after they had been passed up by the coaches.

Plead with Players.

It was their way of pleading with the football men before they took the field that brought results. Any one who has listened to Murphy or Moulton talk to a football team before it was sent out to battle knows only too well how the men felt when they shot through the clubhouse door.

Some years ago when Michigan with- drew from the conference following the stormy football upheaval of the win- ter of 1905-'06, the Wolverines booked games with Pennsylvania and Cornell. They were home and home contests and generally looked upon as about the most important intersectional clashes of the year.

Penn-Michigan Game.

On one occasion the writer was in Philadelphia to referee one of the Penn- Michigan games. Both institutions were represented by powerful elevens and a great game was expected, and such it proved to be. The teams bat- tled on even terms during the first half, which was featured by spectacular and aggressive football.

A few minutes before time for the second half to start, the writer went into the Penn dressing rooms to call the team to the field. Upon opening the door one could have heard a pin drop. Not even a foot scraped across the floor, but those who were on the in- side knew that Mike Murphy was about to say a few words.

"Boys," Murphy finally said, "I want you to go out and win this game for old Mike Murphy."

Team of Maniacs.

If ever a team of raving maniacs was turned loose it was the Penn team that afternoon. They played better football than the coaches expected, but the crafty Yost of Michigan knew what to expect and had his men in sim- ilar fighting mood. There is no getting away from the fact that Murphy had a lot to do with Penn's success during the years he was in Philadelphia.

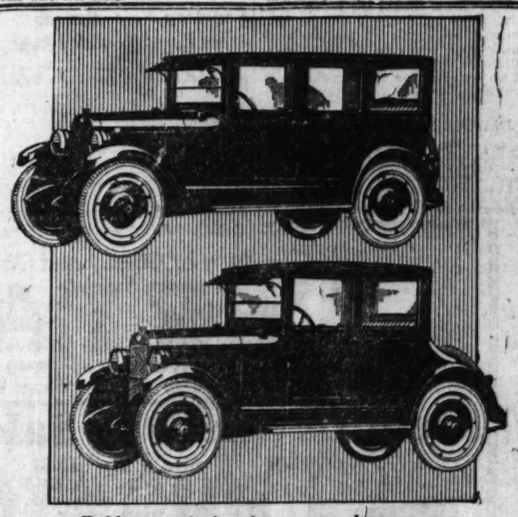
Moulton employed the same tactics at Leland Stanford, where he was idolized. Best is now in the same posi- tion at Nebraska and Cornhusker fans know only too well how he pleads with the boys.

ROCKFORD TRIMS OAK PARK, BOWEN

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]— Rockford High school opened its foot- ball season with a double victory today, the heavyweights defeating Bowen High of Chicago, 6 to 0, and the light- weights beating Oak Park, 13 to 13. Both results were in doubt until the final whistle. In the heavyweight game Rockford scored a touchdown in the third quarter. Bowen came back strong but was held safely by the fight- ing local gridders. With the score 13 to 12 in favor of Oak Park in the light- weight contest, Rockford pushed over a touchdown in the last few minutes of the final quarter. Lineups:

YORKS BEAT RIVERSIDE.

York High school of Elmhurst defeated Riverside High football team at Riverside yesterday, 3 to 0. Neither teams were steady on the attack, much fumbling characterizing the plays of both, and goal lines were seldom threatened. York scored its winning points on a field goal by Full Back Miller.



Public conviction is stronger than ever, now, that only in the good Maxwell can such extraordinary value be found. Its great beauty and economical, reliable perform- ance cause it to stand out unmistakably.

GRASMERE TEAM TRIMS DETROIT FOR POLO TITLE

Eugene Byfield's Grasmere Farm polo team defeated Detroit, 12 to 7, in the final contest for the midwestern championship at the Onwentsia club, Lake Forest, yesterday, and Gene is now sheik of the loop and the Mississippi valley.

GENE BYFIELD.

The game was the climax of a week of hard polo battles in which the best teams of the middlest west competed, and the battle yesterday was a terrific contest, with the issue in doubt until Capt. L. A. Young of the Detroit team was struck in the head with a mallet early in the sixth period and seriously injured, necessitating his removal to the Lake Forest hospital.

At that time Detroit was in the lead, 6 to 5, due to its handicap of five goals. Collins took Young's place, but from there on it was a walkaway for Grasmere. Sheik Byfield and his pals slammed in seven goals in the remaining two and a half periods, while Detroit was able to get only a single counter.

Five Goal Handicap Overcome.

Starting with a five goal handicap, it was up to Detroit to hold Grasmere down. Hayes and Perkins scored for the winners in the first period before Detroit got going and cut the margin to three goals; then Grennan sent one through for Detroit in the second. There was no more scoring till the fourth chukker, when Byfield sent through a cannonball shot for Grasmere.

In the fifth Grasmere added two more, Perkins and Hayes tallying, and the score at the end of the fifth period was 6 to 5 in favor of Detroit.

Then early in the sixth Young was injured and the masacre began. Byfield slammed through two in this chukker and Perkins scored another, while Detroit again went scoreless.

Grennan Counts Last Goal.

Perkins and Bering scored for Grasmere in the seventh, and Hayes and Bering sent a couple through in the eighth. In this last period Detroit came to life and Grennan after a magnificent voyage down the field sent through the last shot for the day. Lineup:

Grasmere [12].		Detroit [7].
Byfield	No. 1	Grennan
Hayes	No. 2	Southwick
Perkins	No. 3	Crawford
Bering	Back	Young, Collins

Goals—Perkins [4], Byfield [3], Hayes [3], Bering [2], Grennan [2]. Goals from handicap—Detroit, 5. Referee—Beech. Umpire—Miller.

POLO CAPTAIN INJURED

L. A. Young, captain of the Detroit polo team, was seriously injured when thrown from his horse during the fifth period of the match with Grasmere, it was ascertained last night. Young's shoulder bone was broken and at the Alice Home hospital at Lake Forest it was feared he had sustained internal injuries.

Coast Champions Want to Play for Minor Title

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 23.—Negotiations have been opened by Edward R. Maier, president of the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast Baseball league, to have the best club of some other minor league come to Los Angeles for a series of games with the Vernon Tigers in case they win the Pacific Coast league pennant. "Providing we win the pennant, our club would like to play here with the winners of the St. Paul-Baltimore series," he said.

Molesworth Takes Rowland Place as Columbus Pilot

Columbus, O., Sept. 23.—Carlton Molesworth, who managed the Birmingham team in the Southern association from 1910 to 1921 and who in that time finished outside the first division only once, today signed a contract to manage Columbus of the American association next season. He succeeds Clarence Rowland. Molesworth has been scouting for the Pittsburgh Pirates this season.

BADGER STAR JOINS RACINE.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 23.—"Rowdy" Elliot, all western half back at Wisconsin last season, was signed today by Manager Babe Ruetz to play in the back field for the Racine Legion of the American Professional Football league. Elliot will join the Legion team next week.

POLO STAR HURT HERE

L. A. YOUNG.

The defeat of the Detroit polo team by Grasmere yesterday also brought serious injuries to Capt. L. A. Young of the Detroit club. He was hurt in a spill during an exciting play. He is at Alice Home hospital, Lake Forest, where an examination shows he has received a fractured shoulder along with internal injuries.

WOMEN'S SOCCER TEAM TO VISIT CHICAGO OCT. 22

Due to the refusal of the Canadian Soccer league to permit their scheduled matches against men teams in the Dominion, the Newcastle United Ladies' Football club, composed of English, French and Scotch lassies ranging from 17 to 26 years of age, will initiate their invasion of North America by opposing the Paterson, N. J., club of the American Soccer league today.

The visitors, who crossed the ocean with the astounding record of never having tasted defeat in fifty-nine contests, forty-two of which were played against male teams of England, plan an extensive tour of the United States meeting the crack men teams of the country. They arrived in Canada Friday.

The invaders are scheduled to make their middle west debut at Detroit, Oct. 14, and will play in Chicago Oct. 22, opposing in each instance a picked team.

OPEN NEW BRIDLE PATH TO PUBLIC IN FOREST LANDS

Arrangements have been made for a horseback ride to inspect the new bridle path in the forest preserve next Sunday. The party will start from Lincoln and Peterson avenues at 9 o'clock. For those that are tardy, fine cut confetti will mark the trail so that they can overtake the main party. The round trip will be about thirty miles and special prizes will be awarded. A noon day dinner will be a particularly attractive feature of the day. Feed for the horses and a real meal for the hungry riders have been arranged.

The ride will be through lanes, river roads and ravine trails from the forest preserves, Edgebrook, Evanston and Glencoe. The invitation is open to all.

EASTCOTT POLO TEAM DEFEATS ARGENTINE, 8-7

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 23.—Mastcott, the Anglo-American polo four, won an exciting extra period match from Argentine, the South American, English, American champions, 8 goals to 7, today. The contest was a special one arranged to take the place of the cancelled Meadowbrook-Eastcott match. Both teams started from the flat.

Eastcott led until the eighth period when the Argentine tied the Anglo-Americans by making three goals. In the final period Argentine narrowly missed scoring and then Eastcott drove down the field and Hurndall scored the winning goal after a scrimmage in 1 minute and 15 seconds of play.

Fourteen New Elevens in Boys' Football League

Chicago Boys' Football league has admitted fourteen new clubs to membership in the thre divisions—the Juvenile, for 125 pounds; Liberty, for 135 pounds, and Junior, for 145 pounds. The new clubs are:

O. & O Boosters, White Arrow A. C., Ben Bey A. & B. A., Dodgers' A. C., La Vern Arrows, Maplewood Orioles, Elko A. C., Owl Sportsmen, Sherman Park Meteors, Mac Roamers, Senora club, Maywood Boosters, Colts' A. C., and Fitzgeralds.

NOTES OF THE CUEISTS

THE international 18.2 balk line billiard championship, with Jake Schaefer in the rôle of defending title holder, will open with an entry list of six players at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, Nov. 13 and finish Nov. 21. The tournament will be held under the auspices of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, and all games will consist of 500 points each. The players will contest for prizes aggregating well over $10,000. Under the new rules, the winner will be compelled to defend his title within ninety days of the tournament.

The Chicago Billiard league will meet tomorrow afternoon at 35 South Dearborn street to arrange the schedule for its annual three cushion tournament.

William H. Leu of Rockford, the state pocket champion, will defend his title against the challenge of Aubrey Jones of Chicago at Rockford, Sept. 27 to 29.

B. E. Bensinger, who returned from France last week, reports that Roger Conti is playing better billiards than he showed in the international tournament at Chicago last fall. Conti has made several remarkable averages in Paris this summer. The French champion was billed to sail for New York yesterday to compete in the international balk line tournament there in November.

DEMPSEY BEGINS BIG GAME HUNT; BOILS IMPROVING

St. John, N. B., Sept. 23.—Jack Dempsey, and his party, consisting of Jerry Levardos, Robert Edgren, Al. Currier, Dr. H. F. Pierce, and Walter D. Hinds of Portland, Me., arrived in the city last night. The party will leave today by automobile for Havelock, King's county to enter the woods in search of big game.

The champion said he was confident that he would eventually be matched with Wills, and expressed a hope that it would materialize. He apparently is in the pink of condition and tips the scales at 194 pounds. The boils on his arm are rapidly healing.

Bank of 1921 Wolverine Eleven Marries a Co-ed

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 23.—The marriage of "Ted" Bank, University of Michigan football star and quarter back on last year's varsity team, and Miss Madlyn Elsee Huber, a student at the university school of music, was announced today. The ceremony was performed at Flint last night by the Rev. Henry Bank, father of the groom.

WALTONS BAND MILLION DADS TO GUARD OUTDOORS

Zane Grey says in the September issue of the Izaak Walton Monthly that he can see only one hope of saving the United States from becoming a gameless and a fishless land.

ZANE GREY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

"Here it is," says the sportsman-novelist: "If a million outdoor men who have sons will think of these sons and band together to influence other men who have sons—then we may save something of America's outdoor joys for the boys. There is no other way. Commercialism has laid its hand on the soul of our nation."

He asks these queries of the fathers: "Do you want to preserve something of America for your son? Do you want him to inherit something of the love of the outdoors that made our pioneers such great men? Do you want him to be manly, strong, brave, healthy?

League Born of Necessity.

"Do you want him, when he grows to manhood, to scorn his nation for permitting the wanton destruction of our forests and the depletion of our waters?"

"The new Izaak Walton Monthly was born of necessity," said Will H. Dilg, president of the Izaak Walton league. "We had to have an organ to awaken outdoor America to the need of national organization. Our magazine is owned by the entire membership of the league, which means that it is owned by the sportsmen of the nation. Every article and story we print comes from the pen of a famed American, and we pay no money to these writers, as all of them are crusaders for this great cause."

Dr. Van Dyke Writes.

Dr. Henry van Dyke writes in the league monthly: "I think that our great and glorious republic may learn something if it will condescend to do so, from effete European lands like England, France, Germany and Norway, where it is actually easier to get good fishing today than in the United States. It certainly looks as if we might be on the way toward that melancholy time predicted by a friend of mine, when there will be nothing to shoot except English sparrows, and nothing left to catch except catfish.'"

The league in its magazine advocates the barbless hook, and this department is under charge of H. T. Pulsifer, editor of The Outlook. The new magazine has many illustrations. Its subscription price is $1 a year. The league national headquarters is at 326 West Madison street, Chicago.

CHARLIE WHITE BACK FROM N. Y.

Charlie White, whose championship bout with Bennie Leonard, scheduled for Oct. 3 at Jersey City, was called off by the champion because of the latter's injured jaw, returned home yesterday. Charlie declared that the championship bout will be staged some time in November in Madison Square Garden, and is better pleased to battle there than to meet the champion in the Jersey City bowl.

"In New York I will box fifteen rounds to a decision with Leonard," White said last night. "Had we boxed in Jersey City, where the bouts are twelve rounds, no decision, I would have to knock Leonard out to claim the championship."

Carnegie Tech Beats Waynesburg Eleven, 54-0

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Playing with a crippled and inexperienced team, Waynesburg college went down to defeat before Carnegie Tech, here today, 54—0, in the opening game of the season. Tech took a big lead in the first quarter and held it throughout. Comfort of Tech, who made a perfect placement kick record last year, missed his fifth kick today.

CARDINALS OPEN "PRO" GRID YEAR WITH GAME TODAY

The Chicago Cardinals, managed by Chris O'Brien and strengthened by several well known ex-college stars, will open their schedule today by meeting the Maplewood Rovers at Normal park, Sixty-second street and South Racine avenue. The game will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

Paddy Driscoll, formerly of Northwestern, who will captain the Cardinals, will not be in today's lineup because his baseball contract with the Pyotts has not expired. G. McMahon, formerly of Harvard, will pilot the Cardinals from the quarterback position, while Koehler, who played at Northwestern, and Bryan of Chicago will be in the backfield.

Following the city series, the Cardinals will play all their games at White Sox park. Lineups today:

Marquette Manor to Have All-Star Football Team

Charley Geisman, manager of the Marquette Manor Baseball club, announces that following the close of the baseball season the Marquette Manors will be represented in the Midwest Football league. Gene Schobinger, former Illinois and all conference full back, has been signed to manage and coach the team, while Geisman will have charge of the business affairs. The following players have been signed: Swede Hallstrom and Bill Kopp, Illinois back field stars; Scott, Indiana, half back, and Clark, quarter back with Loyola last year; Clarke, Weller, and Kraus of Illinois; Chappell, the Nelson brothers, and Mathias of Centre.

CHICAGOS, 7; RACINE, 5.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Scoring three runs in the thirteenth inning, the Famous Chicagos took an overtime game here today from Racine, 7 to 5. "Harry Cohen" day was observed, the successful Racine manager receiving a purse of gold and a vote of appreciation from the fans. Score:

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

by A. R. METCALFE

REFUSING TO OVER-TRUMP.

REFUSING to over-trump frequently gains a trick in the trump suit. There are certain stock situations in connection with this play which every player should learn. Supposing spades are trumps and north, the declarer, holds K, Q, 10, 9 and another, while east holds the A, J only, a diamond led by west, all the remaining diamonds being in the west and south hands, and the declarer plays the K of spades. Should east play the A of spades, the declarer, when he secures the lead, would back up the J with the Q and make all the rest of the trump tricks, but should east refuse to overtrump, the A and J of spades would both be certain winners.

Another illustration. The declarer, north, holding K, Q, J and other spades, and east the A, 10, 9 only. Should the declarer ruff with an honor and east refuse to overruff, east would be certain to make two tricks in the trump suit.

A very pretty illustration of this play occurred at the Indian Hill club in the last week.

West scored 9 tricks.

The original spade bid by north was right, but the three spade bid by west was absolutely sound, whatever the outcome of the deal might have been. The declarer played well, also in ruffing with the jack of spades instead of the 8, although the cards were of equal value. The higher the card played the more apt the next player is to overtrump, which is what the declarer desired north to do in the case.

North lost the game at trick three by taking in the jack of spades with the queen. Had he discarded anything it would eventually have made the 8 of spades a winner in the north hand and defeated the contract. With such an extraordinary bid as west made in this deal, north should have told himself precisely what spades were in the west hand.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Dear Sir: Referring to change of bid as per inclosed clipping: I supposed east would make his bid good by bidding three hearts. If he is not required to, west has advantage of knowing east has a two heart bid, but not a three heart, and west might bid three hearts when otherwise he would have had to pass.

Yours truly, A. C. T.

Answer: When a player bids two spades and the next player two hearts, the player making the insufficient bid may correct it to the proper number before the opponents do so, and thereby escape a penalty; but should an adversary call attention to the insufficient bid, it would have to be corrected and the partner of the offending player could not let in that deal unless one of the adversaries raised the bid.

The Most Talked Of Barber Shop In Chicago

And the Business of Being Well-Groomed

Expert Manicurists on Duty

EVERY MAN ought to make it his business to be well-groomed. You could be Rudolph Valentino himself, and a haphazard, ill-executed hair cut, for instance, could make you look like a misfit.

Look about you: In the movies—on the stage—in theater and hotel lobbies, and so forth.

Ever notice how some men convey an indescribable air of dressiness, of correct grooming, of wholesomeness? Yet you'll notice, in most instances, that it is not clothes or manner—it's an indefinable something that can't be placed readily—an air.

And if you'll go further, you'll discover that the barber had a hand in it; you'll discover that an expert barber can do wonders in the way of cutting your hair in a manner suited to your individuality; can keep you well-groomed and looking your best; can achieve the suave, finished look for you that you see and admire in others.

But it takes an expert! That's why the stars of many current plays come here. Come in and try a Crystal hair-cut once and see the difference for yourself. Twenty experts at your service.

And Another Thing—Who Touches Your Face?

All Crystal employes—barbers, porters, manicure girls, etc.—are periodically examined by a competent, local physician to see if they are in perfect health. This conforms strictly with the rules of the Health Commissioners who wish to stop all contagion. If our employes were not in perfect health we wouldn't allow any of them to touch our customers.

Crystal Service Really Safeguards You!

This is the most thoroughly equipped, scientifically sanitary shop in Chicago. We employ no old-fashioned methods. It's worth your time to come down and SEE what a really modern shop looks like. The owner, Mr. Cominos, will be glad to show you around—and you'll see SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN!

A boiling geyser of water sterilizes every razor before it touches your face.
You get an individual lather brush, comb, hair brush, etc.
Shaving soap in tubes—no unsanitary mugs.
Individual towels—of course. All other soap piped from sanitary, hidden reservoirs—it can't be used twice!
No soiled towels, paper, etc., in sight—it disappears into a receptacle after use.

ALL OUR PRICES ARE THE SAME AS THOSE THAT PREVAIL IN ANY OTHER FIRST-CLASS LOOP SHOP

There's no extra charge for Crystal super-service.

GUS MUDD WINS FLOSSMOOR CLUB AUTUMN FROLIC

HOLE-IN-ONE CLUB

CECIL C. FOGARTY, one of the star shooters of the Advertising Men's club, made the second hole at Bob O'link—139 yards—with a mashie yesterday. His partners declare he had gone on the bottom of the ball but Cecil declares it was accomplished by the combination of brain and brawn.

Norman C. Mather, competing in Flossmoor's annual frolic, scored an ace at the eleventh hole, 138 yards. This shot calls for special skill, as the green is on top of the hill and Mr. Mather could not see the hole.

BY JOE DAVIS.

J. Augustin Mudd Jr., better known as "Gus," carried the Beverly colors to the front in the second annual Autumn Frolic of the Flossmoor club, which finished in a blaze of autumnal sunshine.

G. A. MUDD JR. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

With the course back to normal and in beautiful shape, Mudd scored a fine 75 in the morning and followed with an 85 in the afternoon and led the original field of 156 starters.

His card and the par for the course were as follows:

Out	5	5	5	4	4	2	4	4	4	37
Par	5	5	5	4	4	3	4	4	4	36
In	4	3	4	3	4	6	5	4	5	38—75
Par	5	5	5	3	4	4	4	5	5	38—74

Mudd's fine play, coupled with some good work by his host, J. D. McCahey, enabled them to win the choice score for eighteen holes with a card of 71. F. O. Remmer, unattached, who had a generous allowance of 28, had cards of 98—28—70, 101—28—73, and 100—28—72, for his round of Friday and two rounds yesterday, leading for fifty-four holes with a net of 215. He also had low net for thirty-six holes with 145.

Charles M. Smalley of Olympia Fields was second to Remmer, with 254—26—228, Fred Gardner of Midlothian with 273—42—231, being tied with B. G. McLeod, 279—38—231.

The annual dinner presided over by President Charles O. Goss was a big success.

GLEN VIEW.

A card of 81—7—74 gave C. A. Donnell the prize in class A in the club handicap event. R. L. Scott, 91—18—73, won in class B, and G. C. Chandler, 100—21—79, in class C.

RIVERSIDE.

Aided by an allowance of 18, H. Faurot, with a gross of 87 and a net of 69, won the Allan M. Reed prize. K. G. Richards, 75; B. Leesley, 75; C. E. De Lew, 77; W. J. Greenlock, 79; K. Warner, 80, and P. Yates, 80, divided the balls in the sweepstakes.

OAK PARK.

One finishes marked most of the matches played in the second round of the club championship tournament. E. D. Stevenson defeated E. L. Hartig, 1 up, while T. H. Jones disposed of F. M. Pebbles by the same margin. C. L. Penston defeated W. S. Chiniquy, 3 and 2.

Stevenson won the main prize in the sweepstakes with a low gross of 87, while S. M. Gunderson had 94—5—89 as the right figure in the blind bogey event.

EDGEWOOD.

W. B. Hollings won the W. E. Keeler prize at Edgewood with a net of 70. Today at 10 o'clock Tom Fraines and L. E. Bunning will start play in their thirty-six hole match for the club championship.

WESTWARD HO.

E. J. Kelly, J. Huhman, and H. Cusack tied at 70 for low net in the handicap at Westward Ho. B. O. Lantz has low gross of 79. Winners in the ball sweepstakes were: Class A—J. A. Adams and J. A. Roener, 73; Class B—S. Cusack, 70; Class C—E. J. Kelly and J. Hohman, 70.

RIDGE.

Results in the second round for the Morrison trophy at Ridge were: W. H. Fleming defeated R. C. Dearborn, 1 up; J. B. Mortenson defeated M. LeBosquet, 3 and 2; W. Strube defeated H. G. Horlock, 1 up. C. O. Billette defeated H. H. Mix, 1 up. Winners in the sweepstakes were: C. W. Brooks, 86—11—75; E. L. Baker, 87—10—77; F. W. Pike, 91—14—77.

NORTHMOOR.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Weil had low net in the qualifying round of the mixed foursome event at Northmoor with 94—12—82. Pairings are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Weil vs. Mrs. L. M. Burns and E. W. Rosenheim; Mr. and Mrs. E. Glee vs. Mrs. I. S. Rothschild and W. Robins; Mrs. E. Weil and H. Spiesberger vs. Mrs. E. Gottlieb and E. M. Aaron; Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Reinstrom vs. Mrs. W. R. Rose and S. Schwarz.

MIDLOTHIAN.

F. M. Warden and Walter Page were the winning foursome in the competition for the Wiley and Weary trophy. Warden aided C. R. Hilton for the prize donated by P. G. Jenks, but the trophy reverted automatically to Hilton because of Sarden's victory in the foursome. In the playoff between I. A. McKenna and J. M. Timmons for the President's cup McKenna won, finishing 1 down to par. Professional George Turnbull made his annual contribution to the prize list, giving trophies for the low gross and low net scores. George Hackl, with 80, won the former, while R. G. Eckstein, with 88—14—74, took the latter. Winners in the sweepstakes were: Eckstein, 75; McKenna, 75; Graff, 76; Warden, 76; Irving T. Harts, 78; R. E. Daly, 78.

MAYWOOD.

For the second successive time the club title has lodged with H. A. Schultz. Schultz yesterday defeated Douglas Casey, 6 and 5. Casey put up a fine game, but Schultz played the last eleven holes one under par, which was the determining factor in his victory. John J. Lamkin won the second flight, 5 and 4, against J. C. Kent. In the third flight George T. Iasviti defeated H. C. Foster, 4 and 2, while W. A. Starr won the third flight, 4 and 2, over Dr. H. L. Olcott.

SOUTH SHORE.

Finishing 5 down to par, L. W. Towers won first prize in the ball sweepstakes. H. C. Wagner, 6 down, took second prize.

WILLS' FOE MUST SHOW HIS GOODS, OR CAN'T FIGHT

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—A fifteen round contest for the honors in the colored heavyweight class between Harry Wills and Clem Johnson of South America, will be the next offering in the boxing lines at Madison Square Garden. The bout will be held next Friday, Sept. 29. Chairman Muldoon of the state athletic commission has ordered a trial of Johnson's ability before sanctioning the meeting. Accordingly he will receive a public test at the training quarters Wednesday, when he will be asked to face several real heavyweights with the big trained gloves.

KAZOO NORMAL WINS.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Kazoo State Normal defeated Defiance college here today, 19 to 0.

GIRL ATHLETE SETS TWO WORLD MARKS IN MEET

Newark, N. J., Sept. 23.—Miss Camelia Sabie of Newark, star of the American team of girl athletes, which recently participated in the Paris woman's Olympics, today established two new world's records in a local meet sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic union. She cleared the sixty yard hurdles in :08 4-5 and stretched the standing broad jump record to 8 feet 3¾ inches.

The former record for the sixty yard hurdles was :09 and was held by Miss Florieda Batson of New Orleans.

The former standing broad jump record was eight feet two and one-half inches made by Miss C. Rice of La Salle seminary, Auburndale, Mass.

OTHER LOCAL GOLF

THE Midsummer trophy at Edgewater was won by H. A. Mehrle, who defeated T. A. Lamond, 2 and 1, in the deciding contest. W. F. Arnold, with 90—15—75, won the prize in the eighteen hole medal play consolation event. Only two matches were completed in the first round of the club championship tournament, W. A. Moulton defeating V. D. Wyman, 1 up, and G. Malcolm McConnell, defending the title, defeating M. C. Beymer, 4 and 3.

RIDGEMOOR.

Permanent possession of the club championship cup rests with R. E. Williams, who defeated C. W. Hogeman 5 and 4, in the final round. It was Williams' third victory, which achievement gave him the big silver cup for all time.

W. A. Bayless won the Purple Martin trophy, defeating A. C. McKinley, 2 and 1. The competition in the class medal event was postponed until next week.

LA GRANGE.

Completing the eighteen hole match round against par all even, A. B. Hall won the first prize. H. W. La Rue, 4 down, won the runner up trophy. A home green victory by R. H. Kidston against A. B. Hall was the feature in the second match round of the club championship contest. A. R. Johnston defeated J. N. Tilton, 2 and 1. The other matches were postponed.

BRIERGATE.

W. J. Casey won the handicap at Briergate with a card of 109—30—79. The other leaders were: W. A. Schuberth, 111—28—83; A. R. Holbert, 96—13—83; H. C. Bruce, 105—21—84; R. J. Schwartz, 106—22—84. Next Saturday the president's team will play the vice president's side. Capt. Allison, who laid out the course, made his final inspection last week and was well satisfied with the work accomplished.

PARK RIDGE.

J. M. Brooks won the eighteen hole handicap at Park Ridge with a net of 74.

CALUMET.

A. P. Rowley, winner in class B, and C. C. Cole, winner in class A, played off for the Thomas trophy at Calumet, the former winning with 87—15—72, as against 85—6—79. In the blind bogey event B. L. Searcey and L. H. Dodd tied at 92. J. T. Morrison won the event against par, finishing all square. G. A. Moore being second, 2 down.

HINSDALE.

Winners in the ball sweepstakes at Hinsdale were: Class A—H. A. Miller first, R. M. Cutting second, with C. D. Freeman and R. S. Hyney tied for third. Class B—T. T. Bartelme, G. T. Mays, C. C. Hood, and A. V. Jackson, tied for third. Class C—J. H. Lynch, C. R. Kimball, C. T. Lamb. Class D—T. S. Gamble.

ELMHURST.

Elmhurst members are entertaining several guests from the Klinger Lake (Mich.) Country club over the week-end. Teams of twenty-two players from each club will compete tomorrow under the Nassau system, while Professional Neal McIntyre of Elmhurst will play against Professional Al Le Coy of Klinger Lake.

The Elmhurst contingent visited Klinger Lake in July and were defeated, 33 points to 18. The locals will make a strong effort today to even the count. S. E. Naess and Allen Rader will meet in the final for the club championship title. In the semi-finals Naess defeated Al Rotherick, 6 and 5, while Rader defeated Paul Albert, 2 up.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

Followed by a large gallery and the match refereed by M. L. Igoe, W. L. (Bill) O'Brien defeated B. Williams, 2 and 1, in the final of the September class tournament.

In the qualifying round for the Board of Governors' trophy R. C. Wilson had 84 as low gross and A. E. Blair 103—27—76 as low net. F. J. Coyle, with 83, won the low gross prize in the medal play event over the No. 3 course, while S. L. Tompkins, 101—30—71, won first low net and H. W. Craig, 85—9—79, second low net. E. F. Smith won the Central Manufacturing District trophy, defeating G. S. Noble, 2 and 1, in the finals.

WESTMORELAND.

G. W. Bennett and G. A. Eddy earned their way into the final for the directors' cup by semi-final victories of 2 and 1 and 3 and 1, respectively, against F. B. Farnsworth and C. A. Bush.

It took Dr. A. T. Grunn nineteen holes to defeat J. C. Ackley in the final of the class C championship meet. W. B. Moore won the weekly fellowship cup with 85—9—76. In the blind bogey competition J. G. Orchard, 88—3—85, picked the winning number. Winners in the sweepstakes were R. D. McKay, 96—19—79, and A. C. Hammond, 86—7—79.

EDITH CUMMINGS IS CHICAGO HOPE IN NATIONAL GOLF

The annual tournament for the women's national golf championship, which will start tomorrow at the Green brier course, White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, will have one of the most picturesque settings the classic ever had. The course is located in the heart of the Allegheny mountains, and is laid out in a valley, which contains a number of water hazards. The fairways are rolling and the contestants will encounter many slanting lies.

EDITH CUMMINGS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Chicago will base its main hopes on Miss Edith Cummings and Mrs. F. C. Letts Jr. of Onwentsia, these being the best of the Chicago contingent.

Miss Marion Hollins, the present champion, has been ill for some time and is not looked upon as being as formidable as last year. Miss Alexa Stirling, who is in the bond business in New York, has not played as much as formerly, but must be considered in the reckoning. Mrs. Glenn Collett of Providence rates as one of the strongest possibilities.

Other players to be considered are: Miss Elisabeth Gordon of Providence, Mrs. Thomas Hucknall of New York, Miss Martha Kinney of Cleveland, Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck of Philadelphia, Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson of New York, Mrs. David Gaut of Memphis, Mrs. Quentin E. Feitner of New York, Mrs. J. D. Lowndes of Atlanta, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Boston, Mrs. W. A. Gavin, former metropolitan champion and now a resident of England, and Miss Edith Leitch, sister of Miss Cecil Leitch, the former British champion.

WARRANTS FOR BOXERS FAIL TO REACH LAPORTE

Laporte, Ind., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—State's Attorney Earl Rowley stated today that the affidavits which are reported to have been sent him by Attorney General Lesh for use in the prosecution of the cases against the principals of the Michigan City Labor day boxing contest have failed to arrive.

"I will say," the prosecutor said, "that when they do get here, I do not propose to give any publicity to the matter. I shall follow the law governing procedure in criminal prosecution, and will furnish no information until after the defendants are arrested."

It is understood, however, that affidavits charging Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter, and Moore and Lynch, principals, will be filed in the Circuit court early next week, and the arrests of the three will follow.

"BIG THREE" TO GET GOLF STARS

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Harvard, Yale and Princeton—the "Big Three" of eastern college athletics—will each enroll one of the leading golfing prodigies of the country on their registration days this week. Bobby Jones, the far famed Atlanta youth, will sign up as a junior at Harvard tomorrow; Jesse Sweetser, United States amateur champion, will join the same class at Yale next Thursday, and Rudy Knepper, the lad from Sioux City whose masterful strokes sounded the knell of Francis Ouimet in the national amateur tourney, will register for another year at Princeton.

INDIANS, 5; CARRS, 4.

Ruzicka's homer with two on in the second frame gave the Cermak Indians a lead the Carr Boosters could never overcome and they went to defeat, 5 to 4. Score:

CENTRAL A. A. U. RE-ELECTS LYNCH AS PRESIDENT

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Charles D. Lynch of the Interlake Yachting association of Detroit, Mich., was reelected president and THE TRIBUNE A. A. admitted to membership at the Central A. A. U. at the Hotel Sherman last night.

JULIAN FITZGERALD. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

In obtaining affiliation with the Central association THE TRIBUNE A. A. will conduct a number of championship events in all branches of sports. Particular efforts will be made to encourage the novice athletes by staging meets in which the stars will be barred.

Senator Francis P. Brady of the Knights of Columbus was elected first vice president, J. B. Deighton, Duluth, second vice president, and Johnny McGovern, the old Minnesota quarter back, who represented the Minneapolis A. C., was elected third vice president.

Fitzgerald Reelected Secretary.

Julian T. Fitzgerald, one of the hardest workers in the promotion of amateur sports in the middle west, was reelected to the office of secretary and treasurer. Art Henning of Detroit and Norman Ross were chosen members of the registration committee, with Harry Benz as secretary of the committee.

The delegates adopted a recommendation to petition the national body not to take any more slices off the central district unless such action is taken at the national convention. The governing body will be asked to increase the membership of the registration committee from three to five and to restore the northern part of Indiana to the central district.

Favor Sports for Women.

The delegates also went on record as favoring competitive athletics for women, with the recommendation that a separate body be formed to control the sport, this body, however, to be affiliated with the A. A. U.

Thirty clubs were represented and the meeting was one of the most harmonious held in recent years.

EASTERN REGION WINS IN PENNSY 'ATHLETIC GAMES

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—The Fort Wayne, Ind., baseball team of the Pennsylvania railroad battled the Altoona nine to a 4-4 tie as the concluding feature of the huge railroad system's outdoor field meet today. The meet attracted 40,000 spectators and was won by the eastern region of the Pennsylvania system with a total of 181 points.

1,500 Athletes Compete.

The northwestern region, with headquarters in Chicago, landed in sixth place due to a small number of entries, although Robert Juday, of Fort Wayne, Ind., won two firsts. He captured the high jump and the broad jump, setting one of nine new system records established in today's meet.

N. J. Vandermass of Chicago placed second in the golf tourney and Leo Dillon landed a fourth place in the shot put.

Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania, and other officers of the road attended the meet and Mr. Rea presented the winners with trophies.

For Wayne will meet Altoona in a second game here next Saturday in the second series to determine ownership of the W. W. Atterbury cup. The game today was called on account of darkness.

GARFIELD BOOSTERS PLAY.

Garfield Boosters will play the Washington Colts in a practice game in football this morning at Washington park.

LAST ENTRIES TONIGHT FOR BOWLING CLASSIC ON CHICAGO ALLEYS

THE list of entries for the $1,000 bowling classic which will be rolled at Petersen's alleys next Sunday, will close at midnight tonight. The best bowlers in the west are represented, and from the way the entries have been coming in, the full quota will be on hand.

This is the third year for the classic. The first was won by Harry Steers with 1,629 pins, and last year Dominic won with 1,609. The competition calls for eight games across sixteen alleys.

J. McCue is managing the tournament and is receiving the entries at 2045 West Thirty-fifth street.

DR. LITTLE HIGH AT LINCOLN PARK TRAPS

Dr. W. E. Little topped a field of fifty shooters in the 50 target Novelty Protection race, which was shot from sixteen yards' rise at the Lincoln park traps yesterday. The event was shot in squads, and the conditions governing the event were that any shooter on the squad was entitled to shoot at a target missed by the man shooting in his turn. Dr. Little broke 43 of his 50 targets, but also broke 21 targets which had been missed by other shooters of his squad, giving him a total of 64 and the trophy.

On straight targets, J. A. Groves, professional, was high with 47 breaks of the 50 targets allotted him. In the doubles event H. M. Rowley was high with 41 targets of the 25 pair. Scores on straight targets:

50 TARGET, NOVELTY PROTECTION RACE—J. A. Groves, pro, 47; C. Madison, 45; Dr. W. E. Little, 43; A. J. Usher, 43; D. B. Baker, 43; W. W. Sterling, 41; H. M. Rowley, 41; E. Truitt, 38; R. O. Mudd, 37; Col. Jacques, 37; S. Fay, 36; E. Blackman, 33.

DOUBLES, 25 PAIR—H. M. Rowley, 41; A. J. Usher, 40; J. E. Truitt, 34; S. Fay, 33; C. Madison, 30; S. Fitton, 28.

NAPERVILLE HAS SQUAD OF FORTY, WITH FEW VETS

Naperville, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—The initial football call issued by Coach Harry T. Saxton at Northwestern college of Naperville this week brought a response of forty men. Sevrn college of Naperville brought a response of forty men. Several of last season's letter men are back again this fall, but Coach Saxton will have to build half of his squad from new material.

He will be assisted in his coaching work by Associate Coach Erffmeyer, who comes to Northwestern college this fall from the Ohio State university. Erffmeyer is an alumnus of Northwestern college, was captain of the local team one year, and has received valuable experience at Ohio State. The schedule:

Oct. 7, De Kalb at Naperville; Oct. 14, Elmhurst at Naperville. Oct. 21, Lake Forest at Lake Forest. Oct. 28, Wheaton college at Naperville. Nov. 4, M. C. A. college at Chicago; Nov. 4, Mt. Morris at Naperville; Nov. 18, open [this game will be home-coming game and negotiations are open with several schools for a game then]. Nov. 25, open.

ILLINOIS TEAM IN LEGION MEET

Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the western conference universities, is organizing a track and field team to represent the state of Illinois in the games to be held in connection with the national convention of the American Legion in New Orleans next month. A number of well known athletes who were in service will represent the state.

SPRINGTIME IS WINNER CHICAGO YACHT CLUB RACE

Springtime, Gus Nylund's speedy twenty-five foot raceabout, showed its heels to a big fleet of yachts in the annual eight mile buoy race of the Chicago Yacht club. Springtime won first honors in the Seawanhaka class, finishing the sixteen nautical mile event in 2:08:02. Seboomook was second and Same third to finish.

In the Universal class Yank was the winner, crossing in 2:06:20. Dr. Potter's craft led a large field across the line, finishing two minutes ahead of Gossoon and six minutes in front of Sari, which was third to get the gun.

Intrepid, always a feared entrant and winner of the Mackinac island event this year, carried away a mainsail on the outward trip and was out of the race, but under good seamanship crossed the line in fifth place in the Universal division.

In the one design class Ancona was the winner, with Naid second and Iro third. The figures on the race:

HAUGDAHL SETS FIVE WORLD AUTO RACING RECORDS

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 23.—Sig Haughdal, driving a Frontenac, who yesterday broke the world's automobile record for the mile on a half mile track at the Eastern States exposition, today set up five more world's records, for two, three, four, five, and ten miles.

In the two mile he did 1:59 against his own time of 2:02:36 last year at Lincoln, Neb. He did three miles in 3:00, against Leslie Allen's 3:10:20 last year. Haugdahl died four miles in 4:00.5, five miles in 5:00.75, and ten miles in 9:58. Leon Duroy's earlier records were 4:13 for the four miles, 5:15.80 for the five miles, and 10:39.60 for ten miles.

BIKE RACES ON PROGRAM TODAY AT JACKSON PARK

The annual bicycle races of the Marquette Wheelmen will be staged today. It will be the program postponed from Sept. 10 and will start at 9 o'clock at the south drive in Jackson park. Six races including a ten and five mile handicap, class races, and events for boys and girls will be held.

Entries from all cycling clubs of the city have been received. Augie Benson, Bill Teuchler, Peter Kletz, Leonard De Cardy and other strong racers are included. Although the races do not start until 9 o'clock, racers must be on hand to report for the numbers and assignments at 8:30.

CRESCENTS IN GRID GAME.

The Crescents of Englewood will play their first game of football today, when they clash with Chester A. C. at Sheridan road and Addison street. The Crescents are members of the Midwest Football league.

DEKALB NORMAL BEATS ELMHURST

Dekalb, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—The State Teachers' college here won from Elmhurst college this afternoon, 45 to 0, in the opening football game. The day was hot and muggy. The Teachers scored in all quarters and Elmhurst never proved dangerous. Fullback Norton made the big individual score with three touchdowns. His line driving and end runs were made fast and powerful.

DEVOE

MOTOR CAR FINISH

Brush on the finish that takes off the years

ON the road, the age of your car is a secret. It is judged by its looks!

Are you proud of it? Has it a dull, dingy appearance?

Why not make it glow and glisten again as though it never had a birthday? You can do the job yourself—and at small cost—with Devoe Motor Car Finish.

This product is self-leveling and "sets" so smooth that the car looks "professionally refinished." Extremely durable—rust-preventing—made in standard automobile colors.

Devoe Products are time-tested and proven,—backed by the 168 years' experience of the oldest paint manufacturing concern in the U. S. Founded 1754.

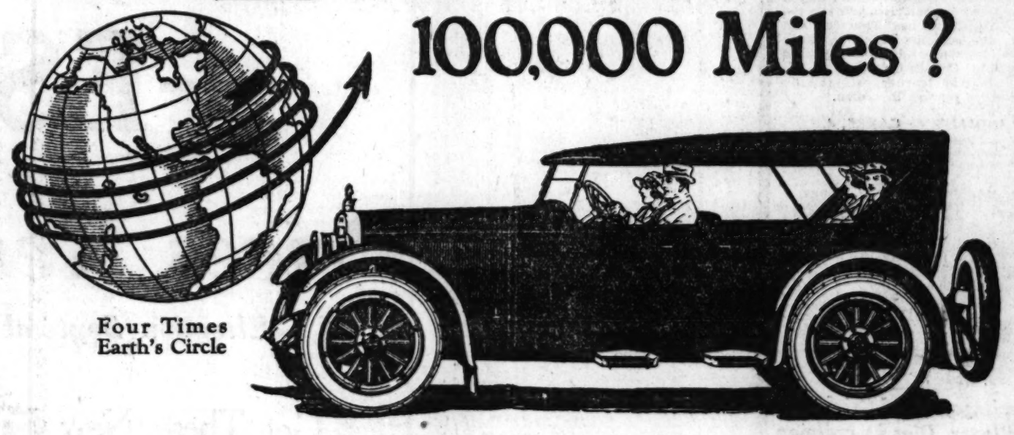
Have You Ever Driven One Car 100,000 Miles?



Four Times Earth's Circle

~Many Chandler Owners Have

ONE hundred thousand miles—four times around the world—is more than the average owner drives in ten years.

Yet many members of the Chandler 100,000 Mile Club have driven one Chandler Six over 100,000 miles, and some even 200,000 miles.

These are records of former Chandlers—and the NEW Chandler Six is even a better car, more advanced in design, more rugged, and with increased margins of safety, strength and durability.

Superb beauty and new low cost also appeal.

You may not want to run one car 100,000 miles, but a car with that capacity is the right kind to own.

CHANDLER SIX

THE CHANDLER MOTOR CAR COMPANY CLEVELAND

Reasons

For Liberty's Excess Value

Remember them when you compare

1—The only car powered by the Liberty Motor. Costlier to construct and merits its international reputation.

2—The Liberty Motor has four bearings on its big crankshaft. No vibration. Long life and silence.

3—Liberty method of super-carburetion makes 18 miles to the gallon an average performance.

4—All bearings lubricated by automatically regulated oil pressure. An exclusive feature.

5—A chassis that will not develop squeaks and rattles. Rich in refinements.

6—Invigorating body designs. See their striking new lines.

7—Library type upholstery. Scientifically designed to yield real comfort.

8—Correctly positioned levers, and feather-weight pedals make starting and driving a delight, and stopping a certainty.

You owe it to your family to know the new Liberty Six before buying.

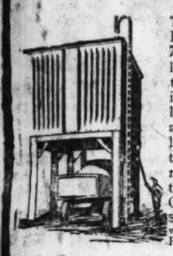
STEEL PRODUCTS

Steel Bins for Material Yards

$695 For Sand, Gravel, Coal, Cinders, etc.



The steel bins measure 10 ft. x 12 ft. x 15 ft. Height over all 21 ft., and have a capacity of 70 cubic yards. Truck clearance is 10 ft., as illustrated. Particularly adapted for Road Contractors, Material Yards and Coal Yards. The illustration indicates what a great time and labor saver they are, as truck can be loaded in a very short time and eliminate double handling. Their portability is an added feature, as they are all bolted together in the field, no hot rivets being required. They are far superior to wood, which soon decays. Price F. O. B. Chicago, $695.

Steel Bins of the above construction, height 26 ft. but with hopper bottom; capacity 80 cubic yards. Price, each $795

Fabricated Steel!

Mail us or bring us your blue prints if you are building and contemplate the use of structural steel, such as lintels, fabricated and plain. Growth of Modern Highway Recalls Road of Pioneers

Cost of One Mile Today Built Old Military Trail.

ITH the network of concrete highways being built in Wisconsin by federal and state aid, the roads of three-quarters of a century ago seem ludicrous. Yet the old military road connecting Green Bay with Prairie du Chien was far more famous than any of the costly cement highways of today.

This road was built at the expense of the United States for the transportation of supplies from Fort Howard, as the army post at Green Bay was called, to Fort Winnebago, near what is now the city of Portage, Columbia county, and Fort Crawford, at Prairie du Chien, and for the passage of troops to and from these posts. In summer provisions and the munitions of an army could be transported in bateaus by water from the lakes to the Mississippi, but in winter this could not be done; hence the necessity for a road between Forts Howard and Crawford by way of Fort Winnebago. The road was run through Dane county two or three years after the building in 1828, of Fort Winnebago.

It was a crude affair and was constructed by cutting through timber land, clearing a track about two rods wide and setting mile stakes. On the prairies the mile stakes were set also, and mounds thrown up of earth or stones.

Concerning this highway, a report was made to congress on Sept. 1, 1839, by Capt. T. J. Cram, reproduced recently by the Milwaukee Sentinel; it follows:

"Commencing at Prairie du Chien, and running east as far as to the Blue Mounds, this road is laid on the ridge dividing the waters flowing toward the north from those flowing toward the south. At the Blue Mounds this dividing ridge deflects toward the northeast and continues on this course to within about four miles of Fort Winnebago, where it is lost in a summit level, denominated 'the portage.' This remarkable summit is one among a few others of similar character in our country, possessing the property of dividing the waters flowing into the gulf of Mexico from those which flow into the gulf of St. Lawrence.

"The part of the road from Fort Crawford to 'the portage,' a distance of about 115 miles, will need the sum of $5,700 to be expended, chiefly in the repairs and construction of small bridges and the opening of ditches, which are not only necessary to the immediate use of the road, but also to the preservation of the road itself. The construction of a safe and permanent road across 'the portage' for about four miles will require the sum of $5,955.

"Owing to the periodical overflowings of this summit level the road across it is rendered utterly impassable, and continues so for several days at a time, amounting to some weeks during the year. At such times the United States mail and travelers to Fort Winnebago are obliged to be taken around on a circuitous route of about fifteen miles, crossing a lake on their way, in order to reach the desired point; and it is not infrequently the case that the unwary traveler is led into the middle of 'the portage' before he becomes fully apprised of his danger, when all of a sudden his horses are mired in the midst of a flood of water, from which he finds it impossible to extricate his team, and might perish in sight of the fort but for the assistance of the soldiers, who come off in canoes to his rescue.

"A thorough and critical examination has been made with a view of constructing a road around 'the portage.' It is found, however, that the cost of such a construction, besides an increase of distance and the inconvenience of a ferry, would quite equal the cost of making the present road good and safe at all times.

"The tract of land bordering the east side of Lake Winnebago, and thence along Neenah river to Green Bay, is chiefly covered with excellent timber, consisting of various kinds of oak, white pine, sugar maple, basswood, black walnut, etc., and from its proximity to navigable waters on both sides must become valuable. The soil of this tract is deep, with a substratum of limestone, and, being well watered with numerous small brooks, is well adapted to farming. The military road along here passes directly through the settlements of the Brothertown and Stockbridge Indians.

"The cost of constructing the road from Fond du Lac to Green Bay, about fifty-six miles, would be $17,292, to be expended in bridging, ditching, and filling the wet places with durable materials, all of which exist in abundance on the road. Thus the whole sum required to complete the construction of the military road from Fort Crawford by Fort Winnebago to Fort Howard, an extent of about 235 miles, amounts to $35,267. This sum, with strict economy in adopting the most simple kind of construction, would not more than cover the cost of completing this road, which in a military point of view is of unquestionable importance, connecting, as it does, a chain of military posts which the safety of the people of Wisconsin and the north part of Illinois will require to be maintained for several years to come."

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions which are accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send in your name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." No questions will be returned. For today's question Mrs. George Robbins, 502 East Main street, Hartford, Michigan, was awarded $5.

The Question.

What rate of speed do you enjoy most when motoring for pleasure?

Where Asked.

The Answers.

B. W. Hubbard, Madison, Wis., chemist—That depends upon the condition of the road, and whether in the vicinity of dangerous curves or crossings. Ordinarily, when on a pleasure trip I like to drive at approximately twenty miles an hour. Occasionally I have to be governed by nervous back seat drivers.

Ernest Sell, Pittsburg, Kas., student—In the small town I come from they can't drive much over twenty miles an hour. When there's a good stretch I sometimes get up to sixty-five miles. That's special, of course. The other day a fellow down there took me out for a speedy ride and we went eighty-five miles an hour.

Harry Gaude, 1847 Hammond street, cab owner—That depends upon where you are—whether in the city or in the country. I have done a lot of touring, and about thirty miles an hour is what I enjoy when out in the country. In the city you can't do what you want to do; it's what you have to do.

Charles Sutton, 517 South Campbell avenue, chauffeur—In order to enjoy the scenery when in the country I like to go at the rate of twenty to twenty-two miles an hour. That is, if the scenes are pretty and there are plenty of them. Otherwise, there's no limit to the speed I'd like to go. I just put my foot on the floor and let 'er go.

James Grogan, 4201 Drexel boulevard, federal board student—I don't enjoy motoring over twenty miles an hour when traffic is crowded. But with good roads and little traffic I enjoy driving at about thirty-five miles an hour. That's two-thirds the speed of a railroad train. It's fast enough if you wish to limber up your neck and give your eyes a rest from the road and a treat over the green.

Emmerson Saves $16,000 on State License Plates

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 23.—Illinois will save $16,000 in postage annually on automobile plates sent out by the automobile department as the result of a ruling obtained from the postmaster general by Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson, it was announced today.

With each set of plates a certificate is sent containing the information on which the license is issued. Some years ago Secretary Emmerson worked out a system by which the plates and certificate could be included in the same package, but in separate envelopes, thus saving a great deal of clerical effort and expense. The postoffice department, however, while holding this system permissible, declared the certificate first class matter and required a 2 cent stamp for it in addition to the amount required to carry the package by parcel post.

Efforts have been made to obtain a modification of this rule, but the authorities have remained firm until this year.

Just before letting the contract for the new 1923 license blanks and certificates, Secretary Emmerson sent Walter W. Miller of the automobile department to Washington to make another effort to have the rule modified. As a result, a certificate was agreed upon which will pass muster without first class postage, but at the same time will contain all of the information now written on the certificates.

At least 800,000 licenses will be issued next year and the saving of 2 cents on each will mean a total saving of $16,000.

Japan Offers Car.

Word was received last week through the department of commerce at Washington that Japan is now a competitor of America in the building of automobiles. That country has just produced its first automobile, a three-wheeler, called the jitsuyo—Japanese for "flivver." The car was designed by an American.

The jitsuyo is being produced at the rate of fifty a month. It is a two cylinder, three wheeled car, with an air cooled motor, and has a maximum speed of 30 miles an hour.

New Shipping Record.

Car loading of automobiles for shipments by the Michigan Central railroad from Detroit plants this year have far exceeded all past records, according to figures furnished by Vice President Bronner of that road.

During the first eight months of the present year a total of 55,045 carloads of automobiles were shipped over the road, as against 25,724 in the corresponding period of 1921. This is an increase of 114 per cent.

August, 1922, was the banner month of history, with the loading of 8,557 carloads, topping each of the five preceding months, each of which passed the 7,000 carload mark.

A Safety Movie.

A single reel has been recently produced by D. Arnold Kohn showing incorrect driving, destruction of park property, and common faults that the average pedestrian indulges in. This production was suggested by John Pelka, who is secretary for the west park commissioners, and arrangements have been made with a local film company to display the feature at all the west side theaters.

WORK-BENCH WISDOM

THE QUESTION CORNER.

Q.—I have been having trouble with my Oakland, model 22, 1916 car. I renewed the spark plug wires and cleaned the ignition points, and since I did this it will not run. When I prime it, it will run for a minute, but it pops back through the carburetor and, after doing this once or twice, stops, and won't start until I prime it again. What would cause trouble of this kind? L. R.

A.—When you renewed the spark plug wires you probably did not attach them to the distributor in the right sequence. The firing order on this car is 1, 5, 3, 6, 2, 4, and the wires should be placed on the distributor in this sequence, counting in the direction that the distributor rotates. Turn the motor over until No. 1 cylinder is on top dead center on the compression stroke, and attach the No. 1 spark plug wire to the distributor point which is over the end of the motor. Then place the rest of the wires on the distributor in the firing order.

Q.—What would be the cause of this trouble on a Chandler car? When I turn off the ignition the motor does not stop running. It is necessary for me to throttle the motor down low and then choke it to make it stop. M. K.

A.—Probably the ignition switch is not making contact, therefore failing to ground the magneto, or the grounding brush in the magneto breaker cover may be worn out. There have also been engines with very bad carbon conditions which would continue to run after the ignition had been turned off, even when the electrical equipment was functioning properly, due to glowing particles of carbon carrying a spark over from one explosion to the next.

Q.—Why is it that a spark plug will sometimes fire in open air when placed on top of the motor, but when placed in the motor will not fire? S. M. A.

A.—Because the compressed air and gasoline mixture in the motor has a much higher resistance than free air, and there would be a tendency for the current to follow a carbon deposit or a crack in the porcelain, rather than to puncture the high resistance of the compressed air between the electrodes.

DISTRIBUTOR HEAD CLEANING.

Car owners should not forget that one part of the battery system which needs attention is the distributor head. When soot forms on this part it often enables the current to pass across from one terminal to another, with prejudice as a result. The crack of the distributor head should be kept clean and be touched up from time to time with a kerosene soaked rag. This will prevent it becoming dirty and will keep the rotor button from sticking and cutting.

Closed Car Comfort at Open Car Prices

The Columbia Light Six Sedan is a five-passenger enclosed car of the best type—built strongly and handsomely, with four doors and metal back.

The body is by Erdman-Guider, a firm long known for high quality coach work. In it are provided every desirable feature of the true Sedan—strength, beautiful finish, roominess and year-round driving comfort that is independent of weather conditions.

Yet the price, because of a new type of co-operation among the great specialized manufacturers of standard automobile units, is no greater than you normally expect to pay for a six cylinder open car.

Under this body is the Columbia Light Six Chassis, with a 50 horse-power Continental "Red Seal" Motor, Timken Axles, Durston Transmission with Timken Bearings, Auto-Lite Electrical equipment, Borg & Beck Clutch—standard specialized units throughout.

The wheelbase is 115 inches. Wood wheels are standard (steel wheels $30 extra). Tires are 6-ply 31 x 4 Fisk Cords.

We are now showing this new Sedan. A thorough demonstration can be arranged to suit your convenience.

Million New Cars Flood U. S. Roads in Four Months

Ford "Strike" Ended in Time to Prevent Plant Trouble.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 23.—[Special Correspondence.]—August production of automobiles was sensational. The month of September has been attended by no curtailment of output, and the industry is entering the fall and winter season with no apparent slump. The August production closely approached the level of June, which established a new high mark for the industry, with approximately 289,000 cars and trucks.

With the marvelous record of more than 1,000,000 motor vehicles made in four months, the public is mystified as to what disposition has been made of them. They have all been sold and are undoubtedly now in active service, according to factory officials. There is no accumulated surplus stock in warehouses or on the dealers' floors. Some delay has been caused in shipments on account of the rail strike and freight congestion, but this was not serious.

Most manufacturers have made commitments running through October and November, and several up to the first of 1923.

Termination of the "strike" launched proteers was of vital interest not alone to the 70,000 workmen in Detroit, but to a far greater number directly affected in other cities.

So far no other automobile plant has found it necessary to follow the lead of Mr. Ford. Their employés are all busy and the word is given out that it will be some time yet before lack of fuel will force more closings.

The Hayes Wheel company at Jackson, Mich., this week laid off 600 men, one-third of the operating force. For six months this plant has been working to its utmost capacity to supply the Ford plant.

Neither the Oakland nor the Chevrolet, both big buyers, have cut their forces, and it is on this account that 12,000 are still at work at the Hayes plant.

None of the sales managers connected directly with the Ford company were affected by the shutdown. It is estimated that at the opening the orders on hand exceeded 200,000, being double the number on hand when the plant closed on Sept. 16.

In business circles the immediate effect of the shutdown has been pretty well discounted, except for the anxiety caused within the ranks of its own workmen.

One well circulated report, said to be launched by a person well informed, is that the real motive behind the shutdown was not inability to get sufficient coal but to discipline the manufacturers of steel. It is said that the 20 per cent advance in wages by the leading steel interests and the settlement of the coal strike in such a manner as to prevent lower coal prices upset Ford's calculations.

At a conference this week it was given out that no other Detroit automobile concern will close its plant on account of the coal shortage. Some of the larger plants the now said to be working on the regular tapering fall schedules.

An Auto Library.

Librarians who gathered in Detroit in national convention saw something new in the way of libraries. It consisted of a business car fitted with racks which carry several hundred volumes on a large variety of subjects, and will be used to circulate books among the rural districts.

One of these traveling libraries has been in action for several weeks out of Noblesville, Ind., and has made a decided hit.

Yankee Car Aids Pressing Relief Work in Russia

AMERICAN charity's progress in the stamping out of famine and pestilence was featured last week by the arrival in Moscow, Russia, of the last word in motorized apparatus for overland travel—a caravan automobile with sleeping facilities for five persons and equipped with all the conveniences common to a combined Pullman and dining car.

This gift to the American relief administration from an American motor car industry reached Moscow in time for Edward M. Flesh, controller of the A. R. A. and a member of the purchasing commission for Russian relief, to use it in a thorough inspection of food distribution and medical work in the districts in and around Moscow.

This motorized house on wheels will radiate from Moscow and will be at the call of A. R. A. inspectors in the Russian field. It is especially important at this moment, when infectious and contagious diseases are being fought with American supplies in an effort to prevent their extension into central and western Europe and so to the United States. Material is available for 10,000,000 inoculations, and the confidence of the masses is now so established that there is almost no objection to the treatments.

The car, a traveling sanitary headquarters, was designed and made by the White Motor Car corporation of Cleveland, O., and contains almost every necessary type of kitchen utensil that a careful housewife would command, with a kitchen containing portable stoves and a good sized ice chest.

The sides of the car, which houses a forty-five horsepower engine, have been so constructed tha they may be lowered and so latched as to create two berths for sleeping purposes on either side of the body, while the driver's seat can be transformed similarly. At the rear of the car on each side is the kitchen equipment, with plenty of drawer space filled with kitchen utensils. The refrigerator is spacious and is hung beneath the body, running along the lower edge of the chassis. It has adequate lighting equipment and storage space for baggage. Even shaving mirrors and toilet requisites are available.

Law With "Teeth."

That the Dyer anti-theft law is working effectively is evidenced by the fact that 3,120 stolen automobiles have been recovered and that 2,773 arrests have been made, out of which 1,713 persons were convicted, with an average sentence of about two years per person.

The main point in the law is that the transportation of stolen motor vehicles from one state to another is an act coming under federal jurisdiction and therefore punishable in Federal courts. The law has been in effect less than one year.

True Economy In the Hupmobile

The Hupmobile actually costs less to operate and to keep than many of the cars whose main appeal is price.

In the opinion of Hupmobile owners who have operated such cars, the Hupmobile is a more profitable investment in the long run.

It stands up better and longer. It is wonderfully easy on tires, and economical of gasoline. It gives brilliant, reliable performance.

Ask the next Hupmobile owner you happen to talk with—and remember, we consider it a privilege to demonstrate the Hupmobile.

The Most Pronounced Fine Car Value

A recognized value at $4000 only a comparatively short time ago, now priced at the phenomenally low figure of $2640 for the touring car—that is the dollars-and-cents interpretation of what the Stutz is today.

But, that is by no means all! For during the time that this reduction of practically 35% in the price of the Stutz has been effected, the car has been improved constantly.

From a mechanical standpoint, as well as in appointments, it embodies today a score or more of important improvements and advancements which enhance its quality and efficiency beyond any calculation which a consideration of the price alone would indicate.

See the Stutz on display. Examine it carefully. Let us explain its many exclusive features such as the famous Stutz "D-H" Engine, the new Compensating Spring Suspension, etc.

Let us take you for a ride or permit you to drive the car yourself. A demonstration will prove a revelation.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

A COMPLETE new series of fully equipped sport models in both open and inclosed body styles is the contribution of the Haynes Automobile company to the motor world of 1923. The company of newcomers, which has created unusual interest since its recent arrival in Chicago, include the five passenger sport touring car, two passenger sport roadster, three passenger sport coupelet, and five passenger sport sedan.

Reductions of the $145 on Willys-Knight and a range to $65 on Overland cars, announced recently by the Willys-Overland company, had brought about a sales increase which threatens to top even the unprecedented records of the present season. Willys-Overland marked up the greatest July and August in its history and has already built more cars than its entire year's plan called for.

The two range transmission perfected by General Motors Truck company engineers for heavy duty trucks is said by authorities to have solved the problem of road speed plus tractive power for heavy hauling. Recent tests made by practical truck users demonstrated that the heavy, oversized engine is not a necessary adjunct to heavy duty work.

Here's a Record for Rameses to Shoot At HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 23.—The volume of material used in the construction of durable highways by the state of Pennsylvania in 1919, 1920, 1921, and 1922 is 20 per cent greater than the total volume of the material in the largest of all Egyptian pyramids, Cheops.

The mass of material used in new construction projects alone would build a pyramid similar in shape to Cheops—and 28 feet higher than the 482 feet of Cheops. And a fairly respectable pyramid could be built alongside from the materials used in reconstruction work by the maintenance forces of the department.

The steel reinforcing mesh required during the years named was sufficient to make 4,630 miles of six foot fence. This is sufficient to inclose an area equal to half of the entire United States. In a single strand this reinforcing mesh would extend 60,190 miles, or twenty times the distance from New York to San Francisco.

During 1919, 1920, and 1921, and up until Sept. 1, 1922, the state highway department of Pennsylvania built 1,620 miles of modern type roadway. During the same period its resurfacing operations covered 1,345 miles.

Equally vast is the gallonage figure of the materials used by the maintenance division in the surface treatment of stone roads. During 1919, 1920, 1921, and 1922 the asphalts, oils, and tars used in surface treatments totaled 22,070,389 gallons—sufficient to fill 2,760 tank cars. It would weigh 176,000 tons; and on the surface of a lake composed of this material there could be floated the huge ocean liner Leviathan and its somewhat smaller sister, the Mauretania, and there would remain space for several small schooners.

Battery Box Secrets.

Car owners who use dry batteries often have occasion to lament the brief existence of these devices. In many cases the real reason why the dry batteries fail so rapidly is simply because they are not protected from moisture, dirt and excessive vibration. It is easy to make a stout wooden box, fitted with a cover and permanent terminal connections. The sides, bottom, ends and cover are made of hard wood three-eighths of an inch thick. The box may be made to accommodate as many cells as desired, either in single or double rows. The various parts of the box are screwed together and the inside is given an even coat of melted paraffin wax to render it moisture proof. The cover should be made to fit flush with the box sides.

It is said that the only Chinese automobile race driver is Jue Chy, a resident of Canton, China.

WAIT!

For the JORDAN Announcement NEXT SUNDAY

To The American People:

May I ask you to wait just seven days before placing your order for a Jordan enclosed car?

We will make a very unusual announcement in all of the leading newspapers next Sunday.

It is most gratifying, of course, to find every Jordan dealer's sales floor bare of cars at this time but it makes necessary your indulgence until further shipments can be made.

Jordan sales have been more than tripled this year but we must not increase production so rapidly as to endanger quality and service.

Our future depends upon our constantly building a better car and giving to the public such prices as increased volume warrants.

Next Sunday's announcement will make clear this extraordinary request.

In the seven days intervening it will please us to have you act upon the following suggestion.

Do not call upon Jordan dealers or salesmen during the next seven days except for the information I specify.

Just phone, give your name, and ask the dealer to send you a list of five, ten, fifty, five hundred or a thousand Jordan owners.

They all have lists ready for mailing.

Then write, telegraph, telephone or call upon any Jordan owner or group of owners, asking any one or all of the following questions.

Would you advise me to buy a Jordan car?

Is it a more satisfactory car than any you have driven before?

How many Jordans have you owned?

Have you ever known Jordan to cut the quality when the price was reduced?

How does the final cost compare? I mean of course, list price, plus service expense, plus the second hand market depreciation.

Is the Jordan good looking? Comfortable? Economical?

Is it easy to handle? Well balanced? Quiet?

Is it durable? Does it perform well?

Does the dealer render satisfactory service?

Get the answers to these questions.

Meanwhile remember that you will eventually drive an enclosed car.

Make up your mind to read the Jordan announcement in next Sunday's papers.

We know we will meet many new friends on Monday morning, October 2nd.

Jordan owners, I know, will be happy to introduce you.

Network of Roads to Double Value of State System

Many Illinois Townships Prepare to Build Spur Lines.

BY E. E. PIERSON.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special Correspondence.]—Agitation is under way in McLean county and many others of Illinois served by hard roads through the medium of the $60,000,000 bond issue, to construct laterals from all points in each section to connect with the concrete trunk lines. Five to ten miles of these connecting roads will enable the residents of the majority of the townships to reach the main lines and thus give them an outlet to market twelve months out of the year. The laterals, due to lesser travel, will not be so wide as the state built roads and will cost proportionately less.

In some counties concrete will be favored for such connecting roads, while in others where the soil furnishes a satisfactory foundation for gravel and where such surfacing can be obtained in the immediate vicinity, the less costly method will prevail. Each township is expected to decide which material is the most desirable and the plan is to be submitted to the voters at the next general election.

While the state construction program calls for approximately 4,000 miles of concrete roads, it is safe to assume that an equal amount will be constructed by the various townships for laterals. As the mileage of the hard roads increases and the residents of the rural districts see their desirability, less difficulty is expected in securing a majority vote for improved road construction. The farmers of Illinois have balked in the past at any suggestion of hard roads if they involved assessment of abutting land or increased taxes. Of late, with nearly every farmer owning an automobile, there is practically no opposition to any movement which has for its object the improvement of the highways. The old time antipathy has nearly all disappeared and there now seems to be a universal demand from urban and suburban residents to keep Illinois permanently out of the mud.

This change of sentiment is reflected in the attitude of county supervisors towards such improvements. In most counties the majority of such representatives are farmers. In former years, when the city members would endeavor to put over some program for road improvement, it was usually the case that the country members would vote it down.

At the quarterly meeting of the Peoria board of supervisors this week Supervisor S. B. Adelman introduced a resolution to the effect that the tax levy for road improvement be increased to 25 cents, thus yielding a fund of $165,000, instead of $100,000, as in the preceding year. Of the fifty-one supervisors in this county fifty voted for the increased tax. In pledging his support to the motion and asking its adoption, Supervisor W. E. Hull said:

"Although an acre of land in Illinois, from a production standpoint, is worth five acres of land in New Hampshire, Maine, Connecticut, Massachusetts, or even New York, yet the highways of those states are twenty times more improved than those of Illinois. The New Englanders appear to be in favor of building good roads as the real foundation of prosperity. As a result of this policy, touring in the east is a hundred times greater than in the west. The money that is being spent by motor tourists from Illinois, Iowa, and other western states in the east, if it could be aggregated, would construct more roads than we are now building in Illinois. I hope the Peoria county board of supervisors will join to bring about a condition of our highways that will reflect credit upon the community. During the last summer about 100 miles of country roads in this county have been thoroughly graded and oiled and the result is entirely satisfactory. It would be suicidal to discontinue this important work. It is a benefit to every citizen, regardless whether he is a resident of the country or city."

Distribution of oil for improving the dirt roads of Illinois is about over for this year. The railway strike and scarcity of cars has delayed shipments at some points. This year the amount of oil sprayed over the rural highways has broken all records, and the effect of this improvement will probably be seen during the entire winter. Oil will hold up a dirt road unless the rain is long continued and abnormal amount falls, washing the surface of the road away and carrying the oil with it.

Under ordinary moisture conditions a well oiled road will retain a smooth surface through the greater portion of the year.

BATTLING THE TRAIL.

When four "buddies" of Hamilton Park, all ex-service men, decided to take advantage of the government's offer to furnish veterans with land claims in Wyoming recently, they gathered together a 1910 vintage flivver and put it in racing shape. The late war, they declared before tackling the trail, should have nothing on their trip west in the matter of excitement. The men are Ralph Hudson, David Center, Everett Folger, and John Thompson, the latter an ace in the British flying corps during the war.

Adopt Motor Transport.

All but one participant in a recent farmers' festival at Kalmar, Sweden, attended the event in motor cars.

"In that particular section of Sweden," says a consular report to the United States department of commerce, "ox carts not long ago were the only means of communication.

"Peasants and small village functionaries, who formerly looked upon the auto with marked disfavor, have changed their attitude and view it as a sign of their country's prosperity, and are now doing their part in keeping the roads in some kind of order."

Three thousand two hundred and thirty passenger cars and 798 motor trucks were brought to Sweden from foreign countries during the first six months of 1922 as compared with 2,634 cars and 548 trucks for the corresponding period in 1921.

Thieves Collect Automobile Parts on Pacific Coast

AUTO thieves in the west are directing their untiring energies to new fields, according to officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Now they are stealing any part of an automobile, in case they cannot get away with the whole car, it is reported. One of their newest stunts is to take the lenses out of the headlights. Many auto owners have returned to their car to find it as blind as a bat so far as any glass in the headlights is concerned.

More than $1,000,000 worth of automobiles is the total loss to motorists so far this year and cars worth over $2,000,000 have been stolen. About $1,000,000 of this loss has been recovered.

While southern and central California has achieved some fame as a winter resort for wealthy eastern tourists, it has also acquired some fame as a nice warm place for auto thieves at the same time, it is pointed out. Motorists here have greater need to protect themselves against the raids of theft gangs than in any other part of the United States, because of the many good roads in this section, the large number of cars, and the leniency of the state laws.

A campaign against thieves which is calculated to strike terror to the heart of the most daring is planned by the club for this winter. New detectives have been engaged by the club's theft bureau to operate throughout the counties in which the club has offices.

Motorized Postal Equipment.

Seven cities in the United States have equipment in their local postal service of over 100 motor trucks. Chicago leads with 421. The others are: New York 318, Brooklyn [in greater New York, but having a separate postoffice] 125, Boston 193, Philadelphia 193, Washington 111, St. Louis 108.

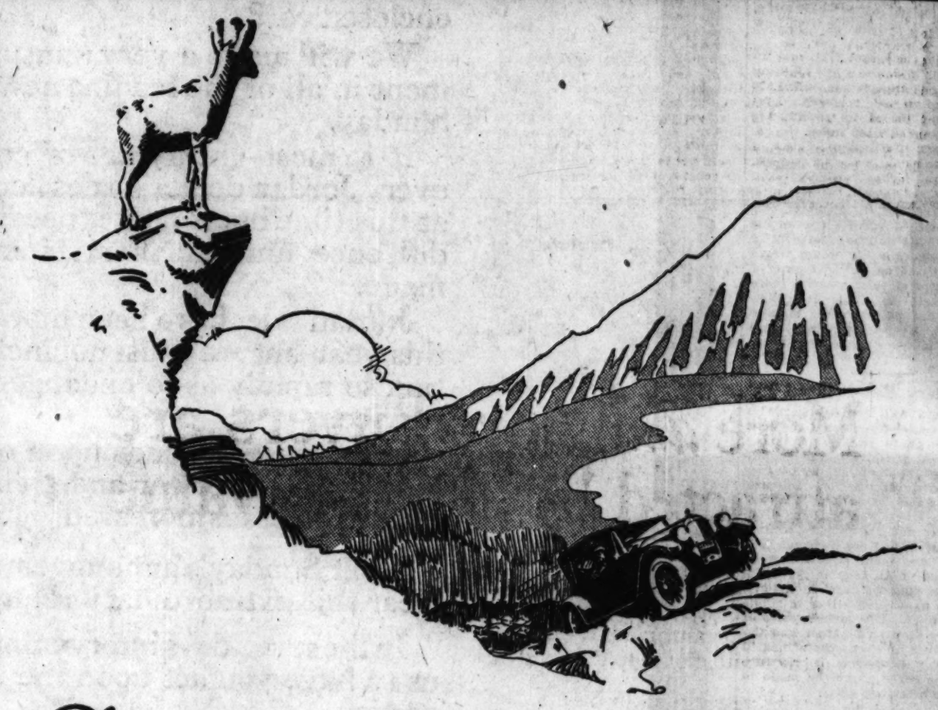
Badger De Luxe All Season TOPS



Chamois, climber supreme—

As the chamois gains easily his dizzy heights, so the Paige Six-66 climbs the high hills where'er you go. The best proof hereabouts sets a mark no other car can reach. From a standing start at the bottom, in high gear, the Paige tops Hubbard Hill at 35 miles an hour. In a hundred cities Paige owners have won every hill-climbing contest.

There's no novelty in feats like these to Paige drivers. They expect and get more from a Paige. What pleases them most is the knowledge that the great 70 H. P. motor has reserve power aplenty for all motoring tests.

It is to be expected that a motor so superbly balanced and lubricated will run with smooth, silent, vibrationless efficiency. Every minute three gallons of oil are forced, at 20 to 40 lbs. pressure, into all main and connecting rod bearings. Never wearing, never overworked, there's marvelous long life in the Paige motor.

Touch the throttle of the Paige Six-66 lightly—note the instant response. Ball-bearing steering spindles, new type spring clutch, give an ease to handling and gear shifting truly delightful. And flexibility! From 2 to 70 miles an hour in high gear. You can ask no more. Your comfort is assured by a long wheelbase, Paige-Timken axles, front and rear, long springs, snubbers, low-hung body, evenly balanced weight, absence of sidesway.

With its chastened beauty of line, its distinctive interior appointments, economy in upkeep and repairs—small wonder that the Paige Six-66 is today the second largest selling car between $2,000 and $11,000. Take the wheel once. Give it the chamois test on Hubbard Hill. We invite you to do so.

Auto Prosperity Brings Uncle Sam Large Dividends

Reeves Points to Lower Rents and Record Employment.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

PROSPERITY in the automobile industry is giving steady employment at present to more than 2,250,000 people and promises even greater economic returns in the near future, according to Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in his recent address to manufacturers in Buffalo.

"In addition to the 200,000 men working in the automobile plants, to the hundreds of thousands of professional chauffeurs and drivers and of retail garage employes," he said, "there are about 250,000 accessory factory workers, 150,000 tire dealers and salesmen, and thousands more in allied retail trades.

"One can realize also the effect on other industries by the fact that 22 per cent of the aluminum supply, 4 per cent of the annual production of iron and steel, 20 per cent of tin, 16 per cent of the copper output, and 30 per cent of plate glass manufacture are used in the making of motor cars and motor trucks.

"This year's production should exceed 2,000,000 cars and trucks. I believe it is safe to say that next year, with export demand increasing, more than 2,250,000 motor vehicles will be sold. Of the cars produced this year, probably 70 per cent will sell at $1,000 or less.

"Our reports show an increasing use of motor vehicles over the highways, not alone in the use of passenger cars, but trucks and motor busses. Over half a million persons motor camped in our national parks during the last year. Motor bus lines are now running regularly in 108 of the largest cities. There are 12,000 consolidated schools in the United States, according to the United States bureau of education. Most of these are using motor busses to transport children. There are still 194,000 rural schools not yet consolidated. Rome, Ga., is organizing a rural agricultural school using motor busses to market the products and to transport 500 students. Chicago "L" lines announce plans to use busses as feeders. Twenty-three electric railways are using busses as feeders to their main lines. Twenty-eight steam railroads in twenty-three states are using flanged wheel motor busses to handle short line business."

Two highly important economic developments, due to the growth of motor transportation and assuring its steady increase in the future, were pointed out during the meeting. One is the increased efficiency the automobile has given the outdoor worker. The other is the gradual lowering of city rentals, due to suburban motor equipment.

Three million farmers in the country now own and operate passenger cars and trucks. Their efficiency and earning power has been increased 68 per cent as a result, economists estimate. A survey recently developed the fact that more than 135,000 suburban homes in the territory around sixty big cities depend chiefly on the motor car and truck for transportation.

ALL along the line of the famous National road and Santa Fe trail clans of the open road are gathering for the autumn pilgrimage to the Pacific. Other transcontinental trails are still open and hundreds of tourists are using them. The Lincoln, Ocean to Ocean, and Yellowstone highways are reported in better shape than they have been at almost any period during the season, but the southern route will prove safest through the latter part of October and most of the winter.

As shown by the map, the route leads south from Chicago over concrete to Marshall, Ill., and there picks up the National road, following its excellent markings through to Los Angeles, a total run of 2,628.5 miles. From Marshall to St. Louis pavement is complete with the exception of a few short gaps through some of the smaller towns.

From St. Louis west to Kansas City the trail, although the best option, is only fair, offering pavement, stone, gravel and dirt, rough in places and bad in wet weather. From Kansas City to Barstow the route covers dirt roads for the most part and its condition depends on the attention given the main roads by repair and maintenance crews. Usually these western highways are well kept and open through most of the winter.

Free camp sites are shown on the map, as well as the names of the southern trails. Fuel and supply stations are available at all points along the route, and the hazards of transcontinental driving have been reduced to a minimum.

From Los Angeles north the famous El Camino Real offers a perfectly paved and marked 445 miles to San Francisco.

Want More Trucks.

A survey by county agricultural agents reports a need for more motor trucks in 650 counties. Georgia reports the biggest demand with fifty-nine counties. Pennsylvania is next with forty-three.

Gray Goose—the wisest, freest traveler of the skies. He goes where and when he will. His only guide—the sun, the moon, the stars. The pygmy world of man lies far beneath. What freedom here and what self-reliance!

Engineering builds upon the basic truths of Nature. Such freedom and reliance we have striven to build into the Wills Sainte Claire. To this end—reliance—we have developed a more powerful and flexible motor of eight cylinders with overhead valves and cams; the strongest of steels, molybdenum; a perfected gear-system replacing chain and belt. You will find worthy reliance in the Wills Sainte Claire.

Standard of the World

More and more Buyers are attracted by Type 61 Value

THERE is one very safe and sure guide to follow in selecting a quality automobile, and that is the number of people buying it.

In this respect, as in others, the majority is usually right, and its choice of a quality automobile is usually the right choice.

One need only refer to the number of people buying the Cadillac to know that it enjoys this majority preference.

The fact is that more people are purchasing the Type 61 Cadillac than purchased any previous Cadillac model.

What is even more important, sales of the Type 61 exceed those of all other cars combined selling at the Cadillac price or higher.

Such a conclusive expression of favor for the new Cadillac, we believe, has a significance which cannot well be mistaken.

It means that the public recognizes in Type 61 a new high point in Cadillac efficiency and value.

And it means that an ever-increasing majority of buyers of high-grade cars regard Type 61 as the greatest automobile value in the world.

A Perfect Companion for Work or Play

The 1923 Six Cylinder Sport Touring—$1675

Equally suited to the rigors of everyday business driving and to carefree outing tours and social motoring, the new six cylinder sport touring combines the well known Buick sturdiness and dependability with a snappiness and sparkling beauty that mark it as a distinctively smart motor car.

Rich, contrasting colors, set off with brightly polished nickel radiator and fittings heighten the sweeping lines of the long wheelbase and body. The roomy seats are upholstered in fine embossed leather, and every driving and riding comfort and facility are provided. Clock, speedometer, cigar lighter, gasoline and oil gauges, lighting and ignition switches and ammeter, long, nickeled gear shift lever, windshield wiper and rear vision mirror are among the convenient details that are standard equipment.

New rear spring suspension, and snubbers on the front springs have brought greater riding ease while the famous Buick Valve-in-Head engine has been so refined as to increase its traditional power and dependability.

FARM AND GARDEN

Waukesha County World's Wonder Spot to Dairymen

This is the first of a series of articles that will appear in this department from time to time giving the practical dairyman's views on dairying problems, the breeding of good, healthy cattle, the production of clean milk, and the selling of cows and dairy products.

By Frank Ridgway.

UP in Waukesha county, Wisconsin, where practically all cow tracks lead out and few go in, farmers have been doing things that have made this tiny block of land the world's wonder spot to dairymen of every nation. While Waukesha's border line is less than 100 miles in length—twenty-four miles from end to end and twenty-four miles from side to side—this little square is large enough to furnish room for a sufficient number of cows to put Waukesha in the lead of all other counties on the globe.

In spite of the fact that hundreds of dairy cows worth thousands of dollars are going out of the county every year, Waukesha keeps enough at home to stay in the lead of all other counties in this or any other state. In her barns and pastures today there are 60,000 head of cattle and two-thirds of them are Holsteins.

Prosperity Is Apparent.

One-half of the cows in Wisconsin that have records of 1,000 pounds of butter in a single year, are to be found in Waukesha county. There are seventy in the state. There are 140 cows in the state that have production records of thirty pounds of butter in seven days, and one-third of them are owned by Waukesha county farmers.

Sixteen hundred men in the county are using pure bred Holstein bulls; 250 are breeding pure bred Holsteins exclusively. These facts are significant when it is considered that less than fifteen years ago there were probably only 300 farmers in the whole county interested in pure breds, and ten years ago there were probably not more than six exclusive pure bred Holstein breeders.

Visitors are impressed with the amazing evidence of prosperity and success found in every nook and curve along the road. Webs of electric light wires with trunks leading into homes and dairy barns all over the county, 103 miles of concrete highways to be completed within a few days, sleek coated pure bred herds grazing in the pastures, and dozens of huge rumbling trucks filled with rattling milk cans sipping by at almost every turn in the road are evidences of what the dairy cow is doing for the farmer.

How It All Started.

There must be a reason why Waukesha county stays so easily on the top rung of the ladder in the dairy world. The germ of it all started fifty-two years ago when Holsteins were first brought to that section and grain farming began to give way to dairying. Good dairying began in that corner of Wisconsin when Julius Rust of North Greenfield brought twelve Holstein heifers to his farm from an eastern dairy, paying $200 for each of them, which was an enormous price for a cow a half century ago.

From these twelve heifers have come the famous Holsteins that have been developed in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and those in herds of western states.

The change from grain farming to dairying was gradual until 1907, when Gov. W. H. Hoard led the campaign for more and better dairy cattle in Wisconsin. Waukesha county started in the lead and has since won many races and broken numerous records having the higest average yearly production per cow of any county in the United States.

Birth of Breeders' Association.

Together with the interest in good blooded, well bred, dairy cattle that saved grain farmers of Wisconsin from going into soil bankruptcy, there was real coöperation developed among Waukesha dairy farmers. It was about this time, 1906, that three farmers gathered around a stove in a farm home one winter day to work out the plans for Waukesha's first community breeding project. Then hands, heads, and hearts of honest breeders began working together and from the realization of the need of coöperation grew the idea of the Waukesha County Holstein-Freisian Breeders' association, which was begun in 1907. Guernsey breeders in the county started their association the year before.

Through the Holstein association, with its two fundamental purposes—promoting the breeding of more and better Holstein cattle and assisting outside buyers from other states in buying from reliable farmers—Waukesha county breeders have been able to hold first place easily in the dairy industry.

Health First Requirement.

"When the men first thought of the coöperative selling idea they realized the value of live stock and the growth of pure bred Holstein business of Waukesha county depended upon their reliability and their ability to produce high grade healty animals," said W. L. Baird, who has been secretary of the association for nine years.

Ten years ago progressive Waukesha farmers realized that their section was rapidly becoming a cow producing center. They were raising a surplus of Holstein cows to meet the needs of farmers in other states, and the first requirement in selling compelled them to test every animal for tuberculosis.

BEEMEN'S BUZZINGS

Reliable color grades for extracted honey are to be established by the government. Beekeepers in all sections of the country are sending samples of their honey to the government officials at Washington to aid in determining the different grades produced in the United States.

Demonstrating the proper way to handle bees on farms in different parts of the state has been found an effective way of increasing the yield of honey in Iowa. Yield increases were made in all demonstration apiaries throughout the state. Extension men at the Iowa station went over the state, selected five hives from each apiary, and used them in carrying out their demonstration work. Meetings have been held recently to explain the methods employed. A surplus of 300 pounds of honey got from five demonstration hives was the result in an apiary near Oskaloosa.

DOWN ON THE FARM

FIRST TASTE OF GREEN CORN—"Long eared mules are not the only crops grown in Missouri," writes C. L. Coder in his letter accompanying this picture. "My Poland Chinas were wiggling so gleefully over their first taste of green corn that they made the kodak dizzy when we took this picture." Leslie, Mr. Coder's 11 year old son, almost lost his identity while fighting horse flies so the big grays would stand still for this picture.

Hoosiers See Profit in Soy Bean Acreage

CHROMATIC printings of views taken in northern Indiana this last summer would show entirely different tints of green over thousands of acres where soy beans flourished in the soil that has been growing corn, oats, and wheat for generations. Wise farmers in that section who multiplied by ten their soy bean acreage of last year at planting time have attracted the attention of farmers all around the lower point of Lake Michigan. So much interest was taken that a soy bean field day was staged a few days ago by growers and the farm bureau of Laporte county.

During the day 139 farmers from all sections of the northern part of the state came driving into the farms of Albert E. Watson and Joseph H. Ribordy, six miles east of Laporte, where the meeting was held. Many who attended had never grown soy beans. The meeting was a part of the drive which is being fostered by C. A. Buechner, county agent, and the farm bureau to encourage the growing of more soy beans and to standardize varieties.

On the Watson farm soy beans, usually of the Hollybrook variety, have been grown for six years. This year, at the request of the county agent, four different varieties were tried out. Mr. Watson planted one row each of the Pin Pu, Black Eyebrow, Dunfield, and Wea varieties. None of these varieties showed up as well as the Hollybrooks, which filled the rest of the thirty acre field.

"We tried these four varieties to show the farmers of this county that it was much better to stick to standard varieties which they know are good rather than to try every new one as it comes along," said County Agent Buechner. Every farmer at the meeting was convinced by the demonstration that the standard varieties are best.

Inoculation, time and method of planting, cultivation and harvesting of soy beans were subjects discussed at the meeting by W. A. Ostrander of the soil and crops extension staff at Purdue. "We are recommending the use of Hollybrooks in northern Indiana for hay only, and Ito Sans or the Manchu variety for seed or hogging down. Hollybrooks may be used for all purposes in the southern half of the state because of the long growing season there. Manchu matures about two weeks earlier than the Hollybrook and Ito San about three weeks earlier," said Mr. Ostrander.

The process of soy bean oil extraction and the sale of the oil as well as the by-products, meal and flour, were discussed by I. C. Bradley, an oil manufacturing company's representative of Chicago Heights. He said soy bean flour is being used in hospitals, especially for the treatment of diabetes, because it contains no starch.

GARDEN NOTES

Cure-all washes used in destroying insects on fruit trees cannot always be depended upon in killing borers that damage and kill young trees. Discoloration of the bark is often an indication of the apple tree borers' work. Gouging them out with a knife is the surest way of getting rid of them.

Many flower growers recommend that the tops of peonies be cut back to within four inches of the ground in the fall. They should be given a top dressing of manure that is thoroughly rotted, to protect them and furnish fresh plant food.

Kansas City Show Has Worldwide Poultry Entries

The American Royal Live Stock show is to be held in Kansas City Nov. 18 to 25. Poultry fanciers have already laid their plans for the greatest poultry exhibition ever held in that section of the country, writes Mrs. K. K. Birock, in charge of the poultry section of the live stock exhibition.

In discussing the preparation and training of birds for the showroom in her letter to THE TRIBUNE Mrs. Birock, a poultry authority, says: "Strange to say, some of the best breeders of poultry are school teachers and social workers. I guess they best of all know how to train chickens. Just believe me, chickens need training and can be taught quite as well as youngsters in the schoolroom."

DAIRYMEN'S JOTTINGS

Scrubbing dairy utensils with brushes and rags in good suds does not get rid of germs, no matter how well the job is done. Milking machines, separators, pails, and cans used in handling milk are not free from bacteria until they are sterilized. This is true whether the work is done by hand or machine. After cleaning sterilize with nonpoisonous chemicals, scalding hot water, or steam, if you expect to produce sanitary milk.

Here's proof that boys' and girls' clubs are effective in starting pure bred herds of live stock. In Washington county, Ind., J. D. Hervey, county agent, says he can take any one to twenty-six different pure bred herds of Jerseys or Herefords in the county that were started from pure bred calves bought and cared for by boys and girls.

The Newport Oil Burning BOILER

Plus a Good Oil Burner Equals a 100% Successful Heating Plant

OIL as a domestic heating fuel is a proven success when used in a boiler of the proper type. That is the reason the Newport Oil Burning Boiler was developed—to give a really efficient boiler for those who wish to install oil burners.

This special type boiler has the greatest heat absorption area—an essential for the successful burning of oil. The inverted double flue travel—an exclusive feature—insures the maximum absorption of heat generated.

Ordinary boilers are designed for coal fuel only. Can you expect them to give the satisfaction they should with oil? When you install any standard oil burner in a Newport Oil Burning Boiler you have a 100% successful heating plant. Can you afford to jeopardize your investment in an oil burner by installing it in a boiler never intended for oil? Start this question right—investigate the Newport Oil Burning Boiler—get the facts of its success.

Replace Your Wasteful Boiler Now!

Buckwheat and pea hard coal are the only sizes for sale in Chicago today. They are the most economical sizes to use in the Newport Automatic Feed Coal Boiler. Acknowledged by engineers as the leader of all domestic heating boilers. Enthusiastically recommended by thousands of users. Newport Coal or Oil Boilers are available today for immediate delivery.

There is yet time to discard your old, wasteful boiler and get a Newport on the job before cold days come. Newport users have saved 40% on annual coal bills, so it will pay you to investigate at once. Telephone us or drop us a line. We'll get the facts to you without delay.

The American Bond Life Budget Plan

Everyone envies the man who can honestly say that he is building a carefully guarded estate for the future.

Many people have a savings plan. A goodly per cent of the American people carry life, health and accident insurance. A large number have well selected investments. A few have made a will for the protection of their families and have placed their affairs in the hands of a trust company. How many, however, can boast of possessing all of these essentials, and in a well rounded program of protection.

The American Bond Life Budget Plan, in one operation, takes care of your investments, furnishes you insurance in any form, gives you protection for your family and an income in old age, makes provision for a will, if desired, and puts at your disposal all the benefits of a trust company besides.

All this is done strictly in accordance with business principles. There is nothing mystical about it. It simply demonstrates what your money will do when it is set to work for you under a well organized and carefully thought out plan.

The details of this plan are set forth in a booklet entitled "The Longer Look Ahead in the Matter of Your Finances," which you may have by calling or writing for it.

AMBITIOUS CHICAGO WOMEN never let a morning pass without a careful reading of THE TRIBUNE. They know they can't afford to.

The Truth About "Social" Diseases Must Be Told

IF Chicago should catch fire again, and if all good citizens, including the Fire Department, should try to hush the matter up—instead of trying to put the fire out—what would be the verdict of Public Opinion?

Of course the situation described is unthinkable.

And yet—a force quite as destructive as fire is wrecking thousands of homes in Chicago and depriving commerce and industry of millions of dollars' worth of productive energy, chiefly because men and women continue to "hush the matter up" instead of organizing to eliminate it.

Venereal disease is on the increase.

According to medical authorities, one of these diseases has already attacked more than fifteen per cent of our entire population. It is responsible for eighty out of every hundred babies born dead, for twenty out of every hundred people committed to our asylums for the insane.

The other disease has already done damage to more than half our adult male population. It is responsible for twenty per cent of all blindness, for eighty per cent of all pelvic inflammatory disease in women.

This unfortunate state of affairs is the more tragic because the toll of suffering taken by these two diseases is utterly needless.

Among the first million men called to the colors, shortly after America's entry into the war, certain large draft groups ran as high as 35 per cent infected. The United States Medical Corps could not reject so great a number; so instead it cured them. By the time the American Army had entered Germany, the proportion had been reduced to less than one in a hundred.

Not so many years ago, untold numbers were dying every year of typhoid—smallpox—yellow-fever—malaria. Today in enlightened communities those diseases have been practically wiped out.

Chicago faces no enemy so devastating as venereal disease. That, too, should be wiped out.

It is now more than two years since the Public Health Institute (founded, not for profit, by public-spirited citizens) declared war upon "social" diseases in Chicago. It was prompted to enter the fight because its founders had been impressed by the remarkable record of the Medical Corps during the war. They believed that much the same methods were practical for continuing the fight.

The need for this institution and its power for good are evidenced by the fact that since its inception, two years ago, its ministrations have steadily increased in number, until at the present time its staff of physicians are treating every week-day approximately 800 men, women and children afflicted with "social" diseases—a monthly total of over 20,000.

With the adoption of this practical method by progressive citizens in other large cities, it is hoped that another generation will see a marked reduction in the power for evil now possessed and exercised by two of the most dangerous enemies society has ever known.

The facilities of the Public Health Institute are unequaled. Patients are examined and treated by skilled physicians, thoroly trained, whose broad experience is constantly being extended by personal contact with thousands of actual cases. The Institute maintains, as an auxiliary, the most completely equipped laboratory in America for its special work, where every diagnosis is verified by exact chemical, bacteriological and serological tests.

At the Public Health Institute the utmost privacy possible is assured. Each patient, upon registering, receives a number and thenceforward calls for his record by number only. Forty individual treatment rooms insure prompt attention.

On a different floor from the men's department the Institute maintains a separate department for women and children—with trained nurses in constant attendance, ministering to the increased comfort of the patient.

Any person coming to the Institute will find those in attendance kindly and sympathetic; he will return to his work with a heavy burden lifted, for he will know that the best that medicine affords is at work to get him well.

The cost of treatment is small, and is available on terms so liberal that any person regularly employed can afford it.

If from any cause whatsoever a person has reason to suspect infection from a "social" disease—and it should be noted that frequently a disease of this character lurks in the system for years without revealing its presence—the Public Health Institute urges the importance of an immediate examination. Even a day's delay is dangerous—not only to the patient but also to those near and dear to him.

As for the person who already knows he is afflicted, he of all people should undertake immediate treatment—the best that may be had.

For the good of the individual—and for the good of Chicago—the truth about "social" diseases must be told.

Shippers purchased top light hogs Saturday up to $10.55, the highest since first week of August, when they sold as high as $11.00. Closing trade was fairly active with prices steady to 15c higher than Friday. An increased proportion of packing and medium grades, largely held from earlier in the week cut the general average to $9.05 against $8.85 a week ago and $7.10 a year ago.

Arrivals of hogs last week were 5,600 smaller than previous week, 3,800 below a year ago, and 13,100 above the ten year average. Estimated average weight last week, 250 lbs, against 249 lbs the previous week, 248 lbs a year ago, and 236 lbs for the ten year average.

Closing trade for better grades of beef cattle was highest of the year and 15@40c above a week ago, while other beef steers and butcher stock closed that much lower. Canning cows closed strong and slightly higher and feeding cattle strong to 15c higher. Week's top for beef steers, $11.95, with average price of good beef steers $10.25, the highest week in nearly two years.

Lamb Offerings Few.

Although receipts at practically all leading centers for the week totaled largest of the year, they are considerably below normal, being smaller than any corresponding week in over eight years. Values naturally climbed to higher levels under an active demand, registering an advance of 75c to $1.00 in five days, with closing top at $14.75. Desirable light sheep and yearlings ruled strong to 25c higher, with culls and weighty kinds unchanged.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 26,000 cattle, 36,000 hogs, and 25,000 sheep, as against 25,027 cattle, 35,852 hogs, and 27,137 sheep a week ago, and 27,334 cattle, 35,210 hogs, and 49,070 sheep a year ago. Receipts for next week are estimated at 72,000 cattle, 125,000 hogs, and 90,000 sheep, against 62,708 cattle, 126,432 hogs, and 148,779 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs for Monday range from 32,000 to 43,000. R. W. Oake marked 32,000, W. H. Overman and F. R. Burrows, 34,000; F. W. Waddell, 35,000; George Nicoll and E. R. Gentry, 37,000; George Chandler and A. G. Welhenmer, 40,000; E. S. Waterbury, 41,000; Edward Morris, 42,000; and Harry Pattison, 43,000.

There was a good demand before the new tariff became effective.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The weekly review of F. M. Zeller & Co. follows:

Despite the irregularity and weakness which marked the earlier sessions the local unlisted security market closed in good form, with final prices slightly favoring gains over losses.

Packard Motor common, after selling at 14, rallied to a close of 14¼@14¾. A good demand for the preferred advanced this issue some 2 points to 89½ bid, 91 asked. Ford of Canada was erratic, sales ranging between 395 and 415, closing 402 bid, 410 asked. Burroughs Adding Machine was unchanged at 138 bid, 142 asked, ex dividend $2. Borden's common improved some 6 points, bids of 115 failing to bring out offerings. Fairbanks-Morse advanced from an opening of 51 to top sales at 53¾, closing 53 bid, 54 asked, on the resumption of a $3 dividend. Transactions of Brunswick-Balke-Collender preferred were made between 98½ and 100.

Bucyrus common was quoted 25@27, up 1½ points. Acme Steel Goods preferred was wanted at 99, with no stock being offered for sale near current quotations. Creamery Package improved ½ point to 31 bid, 32 asked. Albert Pick preferred sold at 95½ and 96½, ex dividend $1.75. Paige-Detroit was slightly easier at 21½@22¾. Timken-Detroit was offered for sale at 28¾, with little interest on the buying side. Transactions in Motor Wheel took place between 12¾ and 13¾. McCord Manufacturing common was slightly lower at 5½@5¾; preferred was quoted 40@42, with few actual trades. Goodyear Tire and Rubber common was slightly improved at 10¼@10¾, preferred was unchanged at 29¼@30¼.

Fractional losses marked a quiet session in the sugar group. Closing bid and asked prices follow: Columbia, 6¾@7¼; Godchaux, 80 bid, none offered; Holland-St. Louis, 5¼@6; Michigan, 6¼@6¾; Utah-Idaho, 3¼@3¾.

Public utility prices continue to reflect the return of this class of security to public favor. American Gas and Electric common was active and strong, advancing 7 points to 172 bid, 174 asked; preferred was fractionally higher at 45¼@46½. American Power and Light common changed hands betwen 149 and 151, up 2 points. American Light and Traction relinquished 1 point at 136@138. Adirondack Electric Power common was wanted at 28, with odd lot offerings at 29. Appalachian Power common was quoted 27@28, preferred 135@140, with few reported sales. United Light and Railway common advanced from an opening of 62¾ to top sales and a close of 68. This price represents a new high for the year on this issue. The 6 per cent preferred closed at 77½, up 1 point.

RAW SILK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—SILK—Raw, steady; prices unchanged.

The Hot Water Radiator with the Open Fireplace

Let Winter Come!

Announcing the Big Step Forward in Heating

THE most startling invention in home heating ever placed before the American people is announced herewith. For small or moderate sized houses, especially those without cellars, whether new or old, for bungalows, farm houses, stores, garages, etc., the 'RadiO' Hot Water Radiator is:—

1. The most economical in fuel consumption. (Smoke and gases are drawn into the fire and consumed.)
2. The most effective generator and distributor of uniform heat. (Supplies all the rooms with steady, healthful hot-water heat.)
3. The simplest to operate and attend to. (Automatic fuel-feed relieves housewife of necessity of frequent firing. Burns hard coal, soft coal, coke—even wood.)
4. The most attractive and the most adaptable to the furnishing scheme of the modern home. (The open grate gives to the modest home the luxurious appearance of an open fireplace.)

This Marvelous Heater

a. Gives to every room in the house its full share of hot water heat—at less cost than heating one room with a stove.

b. Is a hot-water radiator and open fire combined, easily installed (in any room having a chimney), and connected by small piping to ordinary hot water radiators in adjoining rooms.

c. Has a fuel reservoir which holds the fuel for long periods, burns hard or soft coal, coke or wood, and feeds the fuel downward automatically into the fire, insuring a steady temperature of 70 degrees in all the rooms and relieving the housewife from the drudgery of frequent firing.

d. Is constructed on the downward draft principle of combustion, which means that the smoke and the gases from the combustion chamber are consumed, thus assuring the greatest possible fuel-economy and absorption of heat units as well as the elimination of all smoke and coal gas nuisance.

e. Has an open hearth effect—a feature possessed by no other heater of its kind. Installed between bookcases or in an open fireplace, the 'RadiO' is as ornamental as it is practical.

f. Is priced within the means of all.

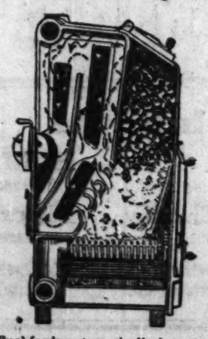
A 'RadiO' Booklet Free

An illustrated booklet telling important facts about 'RadiO' Radiators, and the five sizes in which they come, will be sent you free of charge upon request. Ask us any questions you wish about the necessary installation for your house.

To purchase a heater now without knowing the 'RadiO' would be to ignore the newest, most practical and most improved heater for the bungalow, farm or cottage home.



Fuel feeds automatically into the fire. "Downdraft" prevents escape of heat units in smoke and gases.

FINANCIAL NOTES

A large short interest in the motor stocks exists at the present time, according to statements made in circles which specialize in this group of stocks and which report that it is leaning large blocks of stock for short account. It is pointed out that this group has been attacked from professional headquarters for some time, the selling being based on the usual seasonal falling off in demand for motor cars during the last half of the year, which naturally results in smaller profits for manufacturers. Trade advices, however, indicate that 1922 is an abnormal year in the motor car industry, for while sales are smaller than they were during the peak months of the spring and earlier summer, business done since July 1 has exceeded that of even the boom year of 1920.

Reports were circulated in the financial district yesterday declaring that the Crucible Steel Company of America was converting its ordnance plant at Harrison, N. J., into a locomotive repair shop. This plant was built during the war to meet the requirements of the United States and its allies, but since the end of hostilities it has been idle for the greater part of the time. The opinion was expressed that the Crucible Steel officials could not find a more opportune time than the present to convert their idle plant into a locomotive repair shop.

Reports were current that the Brier Hill Steel company and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, two of the biggest independent steel companies in the Youngstown district, would merge. Directors of the Sheet and Tube company are to meet Tuesday, although merger plans are denied by James A. Campbell, president of the concern. Reports had it the directors had been summoned to consider an offer to purchase the Brier Hill properties.

There are few people who can doubt that pool operations have been the mainspring and running gears of this market since the first of the year. They have supplied the fireworks and applied the match. Some of them have done better than even the most optimistic of the members believed possible, mainly because the buying public became interested in the stock receiving attention and unwittingly came in and took a lot of it out of the market. Evidence is to be seen on several sides that many of these groups or cliques have completed their operations for the time being.

It is extremely doubtful if an Argentine loan comes to New York this year. Politics have beclouded the situation in the Argentine to such an extent that it has made negotiations extremely difficult. The president, whose term of office is soon to come to an end, favors the loan. The Argentinian senate disapproves of it. Incidentally the option held by a group of New York bankers on this particular piece of business expires tomorrow. It is doubtful that it will be exercised.

One of the features of recent markets in foreign bonds, particularly those foreign externals of recent issue, is the fact that they are gradually drifting back to the country of origin. Some of them have been purchased by the governments, but the majority were bought on a scale by private investors of that country, who, through their New York bankers, order the certificates sent to them.

Exports of copper from the United States to European countries since the beginning of the year have made a favorable showing as compared with former years. Germany continues to be our best customer and pays cash for it at seaboard for all shipments made. Many other countries, however, pay in bills of exchange or through other mediums, sometimes resorting to credit. Because of these the opinion is expressed that the export movement of copper will be indirectly affected as a result of the new tariff just made a law.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit account reported for the week ending Sept. 20, by 200 banks in 24 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,048,866,000, compared with $901,866,000 a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account amounted to $1,048,866,000 compared with $1,029,852,000 for the corresponding week last year.

Dispatches from the east reported that Marshall Field & Co. had bought land in Philadelphia, the deal involving $2,000,000. At the Chicago offices of the firm it was said that any purchase in the Quaker City was in connection with the enlargement of the manufacturing plant of the Home Crest Carpet company, which is owned by Field & Co.

New York Stock exchange has received notice from the American Shipbuilding company of a decrease in preferred stock capitalization from $7,885,600 to $785,600. Last March the common stock of the company was increased from $15,000,000 to $15,500,000, and holders of the preferred were given the privilege of receiving par for their preferred stock or exchanging it for common stock on a share for share basis.

A special meeting of stockholders of the American Machine Foundry company will be held at Jersey City on Oct. 17 for the purpost of authorizing an increase in the capital stock of that company from $2,000,000 to $10,000,000 by the issuance of 80,000 additional shares of stock of $100 par value.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., has declared dividends for a full year on its preferred stock amounting to 8 per cent, payable Sept. 30 to stock of record Sept. 20. The Cornell Mills declared an extra dividend of 2 per cent and the usual quarterly of 2 per cent, both payable Oct. 2 to record of Sept. 19. An extra of 3 per cent was declared three months ago.

The Texas company has bought a half interest in 580 acres of the Kinney Costal Oil company's Salt creek holdings for $2,000,000. The Texas company is to pay $500,000 cash and the remainder out of oil runs. Thereafter each company will share equally.

There were 392 commercial failures in the United States last week, according to figures compiled by Bradstreet, compared with 419 during the corresponding week last year.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

COPYRIGHT: 1922 BY FAIRCHILD NEWS SERVICE

BERLIN.—Scarcity of money in Germany is becoming very acute. Manufacturers, unable to pay full wages to employés, are facing labor troubles. Many stores complain to the government that they have been forced to sell merchandise below market value to obtain money for payrolls. Although already printing an average of 3,500,000,000 marks daily, the government printing office is making strenuous efforts to increase production.

NEW YORK.—Sports clothes for fall wear are selling well on the west coast, according to reports reaching this market. Extreme styles are, however, not wanted. Plain lines are being asked for.

NEW YORK.—Merchandise buying by jobbers and retailers during the last week was greater than the high level reached last month, which exceeded any other similar period since the depression started in April, 1920, according to a report of the Crédit Clearing House.

NEW YORK.—Unless manufacturers in the metropolitan woolen, worsted, and mohair knitting apparel industry accede to the union's demands, which include a 44 hour week and a wage scale, a general strike will be called, say union officials. The walkout would affect from 5,000 to 10,000 workers.

NEW YORK.—The vogue predicted by the dress trade both here and in Paris for velvet this winter is being reflected in wholesale circles. Manufacturers report an improved demand for dress velvet, although this demand does not equal the call for millinery velvet.

NEW YORK.—Knit goods prices will advance at least 20 per cent within the next 60 days, according to a large manufacturer here.

DANBURY, Conn.—No radical style changes in men's hats for spring are anticipated by manufacturers. Efforts to widen brims have met with a stern check in the retailing market. Some price advances now are looked for.

NEW YORK.—After a week's inspection, prospective buyers, in general, say that the present offerings of the New York Auction company for its fur sales are not of as high quality as previous collections. It now is predicted that beavers will show a decline of 10 per cent.

LONDON.—United States department stores are creating a big demand for woven labels to put on English merchandise.

NEW YORK.—The latest French hat models to arrive stress black suede. Exclusive millinery shops are taking them in good quantity.

BERLIN. — Despite depreciated currency, Germany is importing large quantities of English woolen fabrics and cotton yarns. German cloth manufacturers are preparing to fight for an embargo on such imports.

NEW YORK.—Plain plush is figuring in a large way in the fall silk business. Popular priced short pile is a big favorite with women's coat manufacturers.

HAY SUPPLIES SMALL

Hay supplies were small—11 cars timothy, which met an urgent demand for the better grades. Common in light supply. No. 1 timothy, $21.50@23.00; No. 1 light clover mixed, $20.00@21.00; No. 2 timothy, $17.00@21.00; No. 3 timothy and sample hay, $12.00@15.00. Prairie in good demand at full prices. Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, and Dakota prairie, $16.00@18.00, with other prairie $12.00@14.00, and arrivals 3 cars southwestern. Packing, $10.00@12.00. Rye straw, in moderate request at $10.00@11.00. Oat, 8.50@10.00, and wheat, $8.00@9.00 per ton, with one car rye in.

Russ Crops Ample, but No Surplus, Says Relief Agent

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Dr. Lincoln Hutchinson of Berkeley, Cal., special agricultural investigator for the American relief administration, who has just come from Russia, reports that, while the crops are adequate to feed Russia next year, there will be no surplus for export. There may be shortages in the Volga valley and the Ukraine, but these ought to be supplied from other districts if the distribution machinery functions, he said.

FRENCH BUDGET FOR 1923 SET AT $1,686,736,705

PARIS, Sept. 23.—[By the Associated Press.]—The French budget for 1923, totalling 22,927,928,174 francs, [about $1,686763705] was approved today by the finance committee of the chamber of deputies. The figure is 270,000,000 francs [about $20,000,000] less than the government asked. It shows a deficit of 3,711,000,000 francs [about $285,000,000], an amount which corresponds roughly to the interest payable on the loan for reconstruction, which is to be charged to Germany.

The deficit may be further increased should parliament decide to maintain the high cost of living allowances, which total 600,000,000 francs [$45,000,000].

Besides the budget deficit, the government must raise by loan or its equivalent about 10,000,000,000 francs [$760,000,000] for a special budget which is to be recovered from Germany and comprises reconstruction expenditures.

CLERK ACCUSED BY YOUTH.

Edward Fisher, a clerk at the Atlantic hotel, arrested on complaint of Mrs. Martha Lessman, 820 Webster street, charged with contributing to the delinquency of her son, Edward Lessman, 14 years old, was held in bonds of $5,000 yesterday.

CONGRESS FACES FIGHT TO ABOLISH RAIL LABOR BODY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[United Press.]—When congress returns for the expected special session in November, there will be determined moves in both branches to do away with the railroad labor board.

Many senators and congressmen who have studied the matter closely feel that the board failed to function as intended in the recent rail strike crisis.

They hold the board partially responsible for the strike and claim that when peace negotiations were started by President Harding it long delayed a settlement, by actions which antagonized both sides in the dispute.

At least a dozen bills proposing repeal of the law creating the labor board have already been introduced in the house.

Berlin Movies Close Doors Because of High Taxation

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—The proprietors of the moving picture theaters here closed their houses today in protest against the excessive amusement tax levied by the municipality.

INVESTIGATED BY DEWOLF APPROVED BONDS

Forecasting 5% Interest Rates

Bond interest rates are governed by the law of supply and demand. At the present time, and probably for some time to come, there is a greater supply of money for investment than there are new issues of bonds for sale. And of the new issues offered and eagerly bought by investors at rates only slightly above 5%, a considerable proportion are replacing older issues and therefore do not represent new outlets for capital. Listed bonds continue to sell at increasingly higher prices.

All these conditions point to 5% interest rates within a short time.

Investors who purchase now will have cause to congratulate themselves, and those who postpone their purchases will in all probability accept lower rates of interest a few months hence.

The following issues represent very attractive opportunities for safe and profitable investment yielding up to 7.45%.

37 Years Without Loss to a Customer

AN OPEN LETTER

To Up-Coming Salesmen—Ultimate Executives

Chicago, September 15, 1922.

Dear Sir: This letter assumes that you are a successful salesman wishing to change your line for reasons that satisfy; that you wish to improve your position in life and some day be a sales executive; that you are not afraid of a commission basis; that you can maintain yourself for a short time at first, and that you believe that any good salesman can learn to sell any good line, no matter what he sold before.

Well, then—send us your name and address with as much about yourself as you care to tell as a basis for an interview to follow.

We are a national enterprise operating successfully on a tremendous scale in several large cities in a pioneer idea, backed by a comprehensive advertising campaign. We contemplate immediately establishing national headquarters in Chicago and carrying on a stirring local campaign for business into the millions.

Our best producers will have first call for agencies in other mid-west cities. It should pay you to investigate.

Sincerely yours,

ADDRESS O S 302, TRIBUNE

HEAVY SELLING FOR EVENING UP LOWERS GRAINS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

General evening up for over the week end and the less warlike news from abroad resulted in heavy selling of all grains with the close well toward the low point. Wheat finished with a net loss of 2¼@2¼c, while corn was off ⅝@1¾c, oats ¼@⅝c, and rye 1⅝@1⅝c. Provisions were stronger with packers buying lard and the finish was 5@25c higher with ribs up 10@62½c.

The best upturn in prices in a long time was witnessed the last week. A war scare coming at a time when sentiment had been very bearish for several months resulted in an advance of 9½@11⅞c on wheat, and 4@4¾c on corn from the low of the previous week, and while the bulge was not maintained, due to more peaceful reports, wheat gained 4@5½c for the week. Corn was up ⅝@1¼c, oats, ⅝@2½c, and rye ¼c lower to 1⅜c higher for the week. A marked improvement in the export and domestic demand for lard caused a sharp upturn with closing trades at gains of 22½@55c, while ribs gained 10@60c.

General selling by longs was on in wheat early with opening sales showing 1@3½c under the close of the previous day, with September leading. Stop loss orders were caught on the way down and it was not until December got under $1.05½ that any material support was found. Bulk of the trading at the start in December was between $1.05½ and $1.06, and the greater part of the day's business was around these figures. Houses that were the leading sellers of the previous day were the best buyers on the break.

Export Demand Quiet.

Export demand was reported as quiet and the firmness in premiums at Winnipeg was due to buying to fill an old export sale. There was sufficient uneasiness over the near east situation to prevent local traders from taking the bear side in an active manner. Milling demand here was the best in some weeks. Farmers continue to sell freely in the Canadian northwest.

Corn and oats were affected by the action of wheat and ranged lower, closing well toward the bottom. Trade was mainly of a local character. Country offerings to arrive were the smallest of the week, with premiums on spot corn about ¼c lower as compared with September. Shipping demand fair.

Trade in rye was largely of a local character, with longs liquidating early, while shorts were the best buyers. Action of other grains was the main influence. The two northwestern markets received 196 cars.

Provisions Show Strength.

A continued good cash demand was reflected in buying of nearby deliveries of lard by the leading packers, and with hogs strong, an advance was easily attained. Weakness in grains had little effect. Deliveries on September contracts were 50,000 lbs. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the season to date aggregates 3,502,000 against 3,283,000 last year. Prices follow:

WORLD'S-GRAIN MARKET-NEWS

Grain traders were more generally evened up on the markets at the close yesterday than at any time within a week. The action of the wheat market in losing about half of its recent advance was not a surprise to many, as they figured that the short interest had been heavily reduced and unless sensational news was received a reaction yesterday would have been witnessed anyway. With the war scare still the dominating influence, a majority of traders had no fixed opinion as to the probable action of the market on Monday and preferred to await the over Sunday developments before taking a decided stand.

Regardless of the political news from abroad, there are some traders who feel that wheat prices will not decline materially from the present level under any consideration, and look for a big foreign demand to develop as soon as the market steadies down. Others look for much lower prices ultimately and call attention to the immense Canadian movement with deliveries by farmers on Thursday to inferior loading stations estimated at 5,250,000 bu, with the probability that over 20,000,000 bu will be delivered during the entire week.

"That Turkish trouble may be temporarily averted is the belief of political leaders in Europe," says R. W. McKinnon of Thomson & McKinnon, who returned yesterday from a European trip. "We motored over France, and while we found the country people all busy, there is a feeling that the recent war did not last long enough to bring about a final settlement of all troubles. More time was sent in investigating the political situation and getting the viewpoint of the country people in general. Reconstruction has been rapid and there is an immense amount of work to be done. Little attention was paid to the grain situation."

Weekly weather forecast suggested generally fair, with normal temperatures in all sections of the grain belt.

Tax Exempt Securities.

The question of investing in securities which are tax exempt from the federal income tax is of importance to the investor in direct proportion to his wealth. To the man of moderate means this tax-exempt feature may have little or no value, but to the man whose income is large and who, with every additional thousand dollars of income, becomes subject to a higher rate of normal tax and surtax, these securities are of vital importance. A very wealthy investor now must obtain a yield of from 5 to 5.75 per cent on taxable securities in order to compare favorably with a yield of 4 per cent on securities which are exempt from taxation.

Several different forms of securities are available which are exempt from federal, or both federal and state income taxes. These can now be bought to yield a return of from 3.90 to 4.75 per cent, and, in the main, combine a high degree of safety with the tax-exempt feature. Of these, municipal securities form by far the largest part. It is estimated that new offerings of municipal securities are being made at the rate of about $1,300,000,000 a year. The exemption of such a vast amount of securities from the income tax has been the cause of considerable concern to the treasury department, but it would take an amendment to the federal constitution to subject them to such taxation, as the constitution provides that the federal government shall not tax any state or political subdivision thereof and this includes their securities.

Philippine government and territory of Hawaii bonds, which also enjoy tax exemption, offer sound investments. The former can be bought to yield from 4.50 to 4.75 per cent and the latter to yield about 4.15 per cent. Then there are the various issues of Joint Stock Land bank bonds and Federal Farm Loan bonds, which can be bought to yield from 4.50 to 4.70 per cent. These bonds are considered instrumentalities of the government of the United States, and the Supreme court has held that they are legally exempt from federal, state, municipal, and local taxation.

Those whose incomes are large, or growing to a size where they are being seriously affected by taxation, will do well to consider whether or not they can save money through the purchase of tax exempt securities.

STOCKS STRONG AS WAR CLOUDS LIGHTEN ABROAD

The New York Times.

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Most of the last week's somewhat bewildering fluctuations on the stock exchange were undoubtedly attributable to professional speculators, and since these financial experts had been occupied every day with reversing the position which they had taken the day before, it was not to be supposed they would leave an extensive speculative account outstanding over Sunday.

No one has seemed to feel sure whether and to what extent the Dardanelles dispute has actually been the governing influence in the last week's markets. But so far as that singular episode has colored financial impressions, there was always the chance of such rapid change in the cabled news as to leave the "eastern crisis" no longer visible Monday morning.

Stocks Show Some Recovery.

Naturally, there was also the chance of greatly increased tension; but neither stock market nor foreign exchange market appeared to entertain that expectation. On the stock exchange, today's irregularly distributed recovery brought some stocks 1 or 2 points above yesterday's closings. It left most of the stock market, however, with equal or larger losses for the week, and the bond market with extremely irregular changes.

All that can be said with assurance of the last week's markets is that they have at least reflected the prevalent financial state of mind, which is characterized by much uncertainty and some disappointment, but little actual uneasiness. The sense that arrival of autumn will probably [as it usually does] bring some new and unexpected financial influences into play has naturally deepened as it grew apparent that the influences which had steadily predominated during the last six months were losing force.

Foreign Exchange Rates Firm.

Except for sterling, practically all the foreign exchanges ended today above yesterday's closing rates and above those of a week ago, but considerably under the rates of the first week of September. That the German mark should have sold today above the price of a week or a month ago—this notwithstanding the unheard of outpour of paper marks and the tightening German credit situation—has caused some surprise. But everyone knows how much of the immediate future is foreshadowed and measured in a "panic market" such as that which swept down mark exchange in August.

Owing to the rise in call money on Thursday to 6 per cent, the highest rate since last February, the weekly statement of the New York clearing house banks today received more than ordinary attention. It disclosed an increase of $55,859,000 in loans, which naturally might be attributed to the special demands that center around the quarterly tax day and to the increased demand for credit in connection with the taking of imported merchandise from bond just before the enactment of the new tariff law.

Autumn Brings Credit Expansion.

These are both temporary influences, but there are more lasting factors at work to cause expansion of loan accounts and these are the annual needs of the crop moving season for credit and the autumn movement in general trade, which has received special stimulation from the settlement of the coal and railroad strikes.

Along with the increase in loans, net demand deposits increased $63,431,000. Time deposits increased $2,842,000. Surplus reserve, after a decrease of $60,504,610 for the week, stands at $39,582,850.

(A Business Editorial)

GOOD WILL

The whole difficulty is to gain good will—to keep it is easy.

Whenever a business is started, an attempt is made to gain the confidence of the public. This favor is hard to attain, as the people have to be shown.

After the confidence is won, a careful guidance of policy and service will preserve it. Wise men know that the way is long on the Road of Service unless we get a lift from Favor.

The old established stores have gained the good will of the public and through hard work and constant watching have been able to keep it.

Otherwise, would they endure?

Paint— Puts Your House Above Par!

You have a definite idea of what your home is worth—to you. You know its many comforts. Living in it has made you love it.

What it is worth to others—depends on first impressions—on appearance.

To give your home the value to others that it has to you—keep it looking tip-top. Paint it! You'll find it takes on added value even to you after a good paint has been applied.

JEWEL
Mixed Paint
Pays—Three Ways

This is a beautiful, durable, economical, ready-mixed paint. It has all the qualities that make a perfect decorative and protective covering—free flow, good body and a handsome, permanent gloss.

It will pay you by making your home worth more, by extending its life and by adding to your pleasure in it.

Be sure the label on the paint you use says JEWEL Mixed Paint.

"A Skin You Love to Touch"
By WALTER BIGGS

You, too, can have the charm of "A skin you love to touch"

THAT mysterious charm which is only found in the skin of a beautiful woman —you, too, can possess it!

You, too, can have a soft, clear, radiant complexion. Each day your skin is changing —old skin dies and new takes its place. This is your opportunity!

If your skin has been unsatisfactory in the past—too dry or too oily—pale, sallow, or subject to little defects, such as blackheads, blemishes, etc.—begin now to overcome this condition. Find the treatment suited to the special needs of your skin in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around each cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap. Begin using this treatment tonight.

In a week or ten days you will be surprised to find how much your skin has improved.

To keep your skin smooth and clear, use Woodbury's Facial Soap regularly in your daily toilet. The same qualities that give Woodbury's its beneficial effect in overcoming common skin troubles make it ideal for general use.

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25 cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for general toilet use, including any of the special Woodbury treatments.

A complete miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations

For 25 cents we will send you a complete miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations, containing:

A trial size cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap
A sample tube of the new Woodbury's Facial Cream
A sample tube of Woodbury's Cold Cream
A sample box of Woodbury's Facial Powder
The treatment booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch"

O, joy of trying for beauty, ever the same,
You never fail, your comforts never end;
O, balm of this world's way; O, perfect friend!

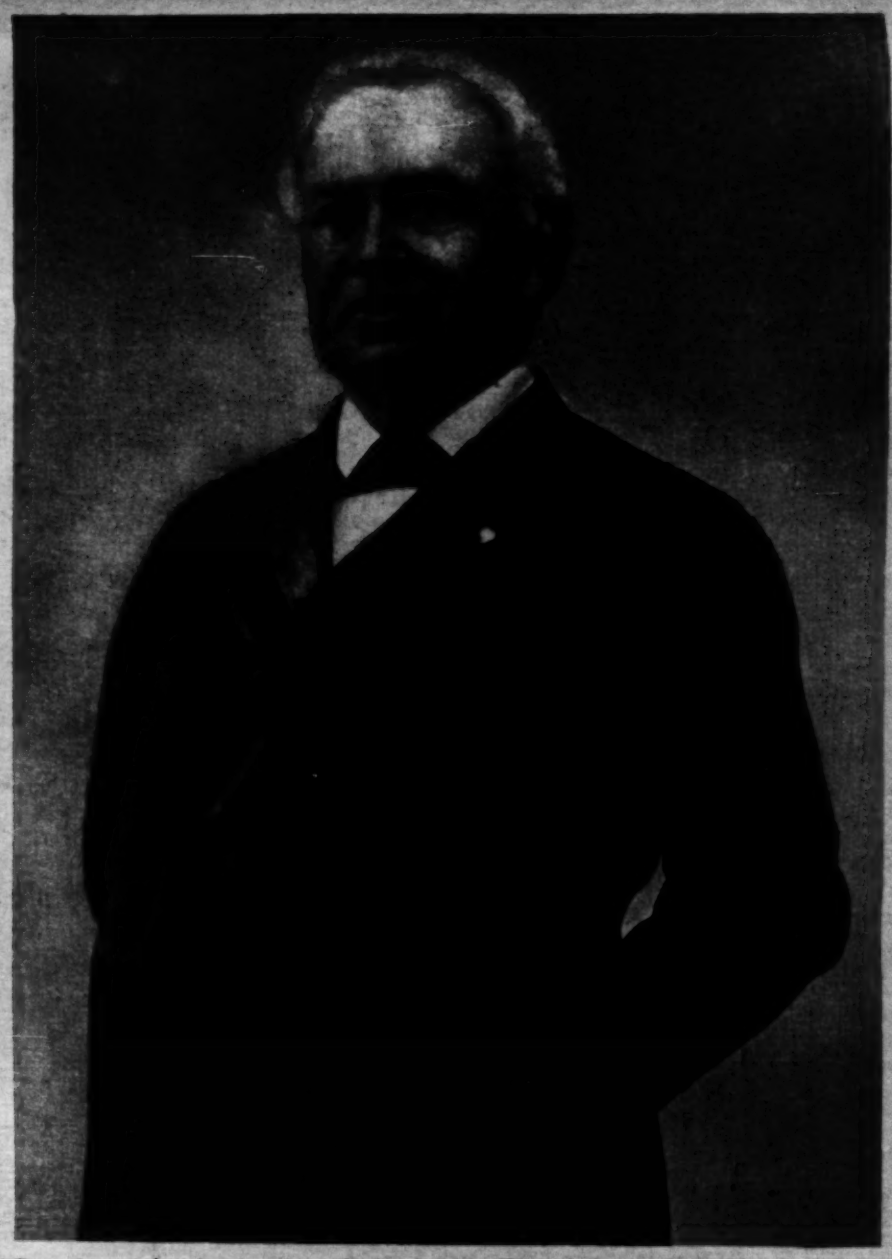
—John Masefield.

The Porte du Croux
at Nevers

A beautiful old French fort erected in the fourteenth century. Regard this building solely for its pictorial quality. The new Tribune home will be a model of efficiency of course, but a critical stranger surveying Michigan avenue will not be as interested in how carefully the building has been apportioned into offices and corridors as he will be in taking away with him a visual draught of architectural beauty!

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS for designs of the most beautiful modern building! Over fifteen hundred architects, representing many countries, are now in competition for the prizes. So you see how carefully The Tribune goes about building its contribution to the architectural beauty of upper Michigan avenue!

DO YOU REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN ----



JAMES H. McVICKER WAS A FAVORITE DRAMATIC STAR and a power in the theatrical world? The pictures show him in costume as the grave-digger in "Hamlet" and as he appeared in later years when he was the Nestor of Chicago managers. Born in New York in 1822, he came to Chicago in 1848 after forsaking the printing trade for acting. He built the first McVicker's theater in 1857. It was destroyed in the great Chicago fire, but was rebuilt. And now another McVicker's theater, fourth of its line, on the site of the old shrine of the spoken drama, where Edwin Booth appeared, is opening as a motion picture theater.

ROSE COGHLAN, the English actress, became an American citizen in 1902 and took up stock raising in Montana?

MRS. WILLIAM K. VANDERBILT JR., formerly Miss Virginia Fair, had her picture taken in this natty costume?

VIOLA ALLEN was starring in a notable series of Shakespearean revivals that began during 1903?

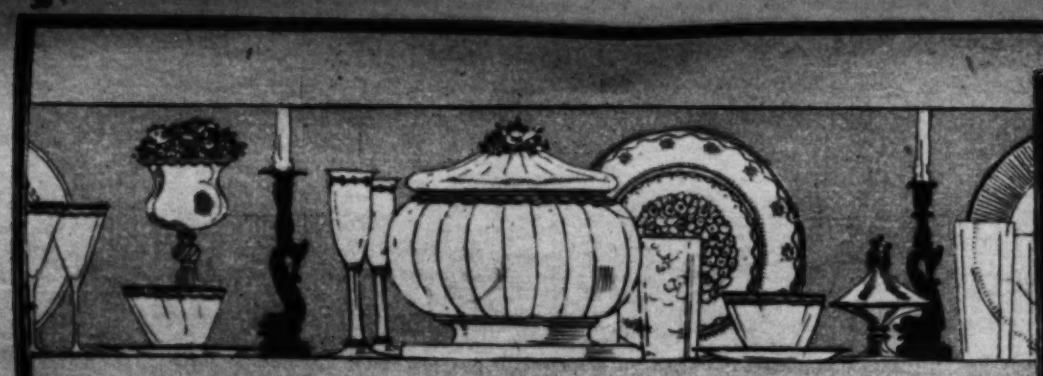
DO YOU REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN ----



And now—relief from the three-times-a-day ruining of the hands

THREE times every day your hands are in the dish pan. Don't let dish washing be a hardship to them.

One tablespoonful of Lux — hot water — and your dish pan is full of rich bubbling lather pleasant to the most sensitive skin. In the pure Lux flakes there is no ingredient that could possibly redden or roughen the skin.

Women themselves discovered this use for Lux. Women who for years had been getting such satisfaction from Lux for silks and woolens tried it for washing dishes.

Thousands of letters have come in to us saying that Lux suds leave your china beautifully clean and at no cost to your hands, and asking us why we never mentioned it.

Try Lux today. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Just a tablespoon to a pan. A single package does 44 dishwashings — all the dishes for more than two weeks

LUX

FOR WASHING DISHES

Lux leaves your glassware sparkling without a trace of soapy film—your silver lustrous, your china spotlessly clean

Guaranteed Harmless

Brownatone is guaranteed not to injure hair, scalp or skin. The active coloring agent of this popular hair tint, being vegetable, rather helps the natural, healthy growth of the hair.

Gray, faded or bleached hair, when Brownatoned, quickly regains its original color, whether golden, any shade of brown or black. And, with the color, is renewed the glossy splendor and softness of the hair.

Weaving Magic Was Needed to Do This!

As amazing as the wonders worked by any ancient magician are the skilled processes that convert a cotton yarn into this shimmering, silky-surfaced fabric:—

Lingette

Everybody thinks it's silk

made in lovely new patterns for Autumn frocks, coat linings, lingerie, bloomers, and a host of other uses.

The real Lingette retains its silkiness and resists wear—so be sure the word "Lingette" is on the selvage or in the label!

For thorough cleansing—
a special cream

Your skin pays for every dusty ride you take. Dust and fine particles of dirt bore into your pores and ordinary washing cannot remove them. Your skin becomes dull. It loses its clear fresh look.

IF you wish your skin to keep its youthful freshness you must give it a thorough cleansing after every dusty trip. For this you need a cleansing cream with just enough oil to remove every bit of dirt from the pores and never stay to overload them —Pond's Cold Cream. This cream is soft and light and will not stretch the pores as stiff creams do.

Smooth it on with the finger tips. Let it stay a minute and it brings out all the dirt. Now gently wipe off both cream and dirt with a soft cloth. Notice how soft and refreshed your skin feels after this. Regular use of this delicate cleansing cream will keep your skin soft and white.

Use this special cream after every dusty trip and regularly for the nightly cleansing. Smooth it on any little fine lines on your face. The oil will keep your skin supple. Pond's Cold Cream contains nothing to promote the growth of hair. The Pond's Extract Co., 131 Hudson St., New York.

To complete the care of your skin another kind of cream is necessary. Pond's* Vanishing Cream *protects the skin against exposure and holds the powder on for hours. Always smooth it on before going out and before powdering.

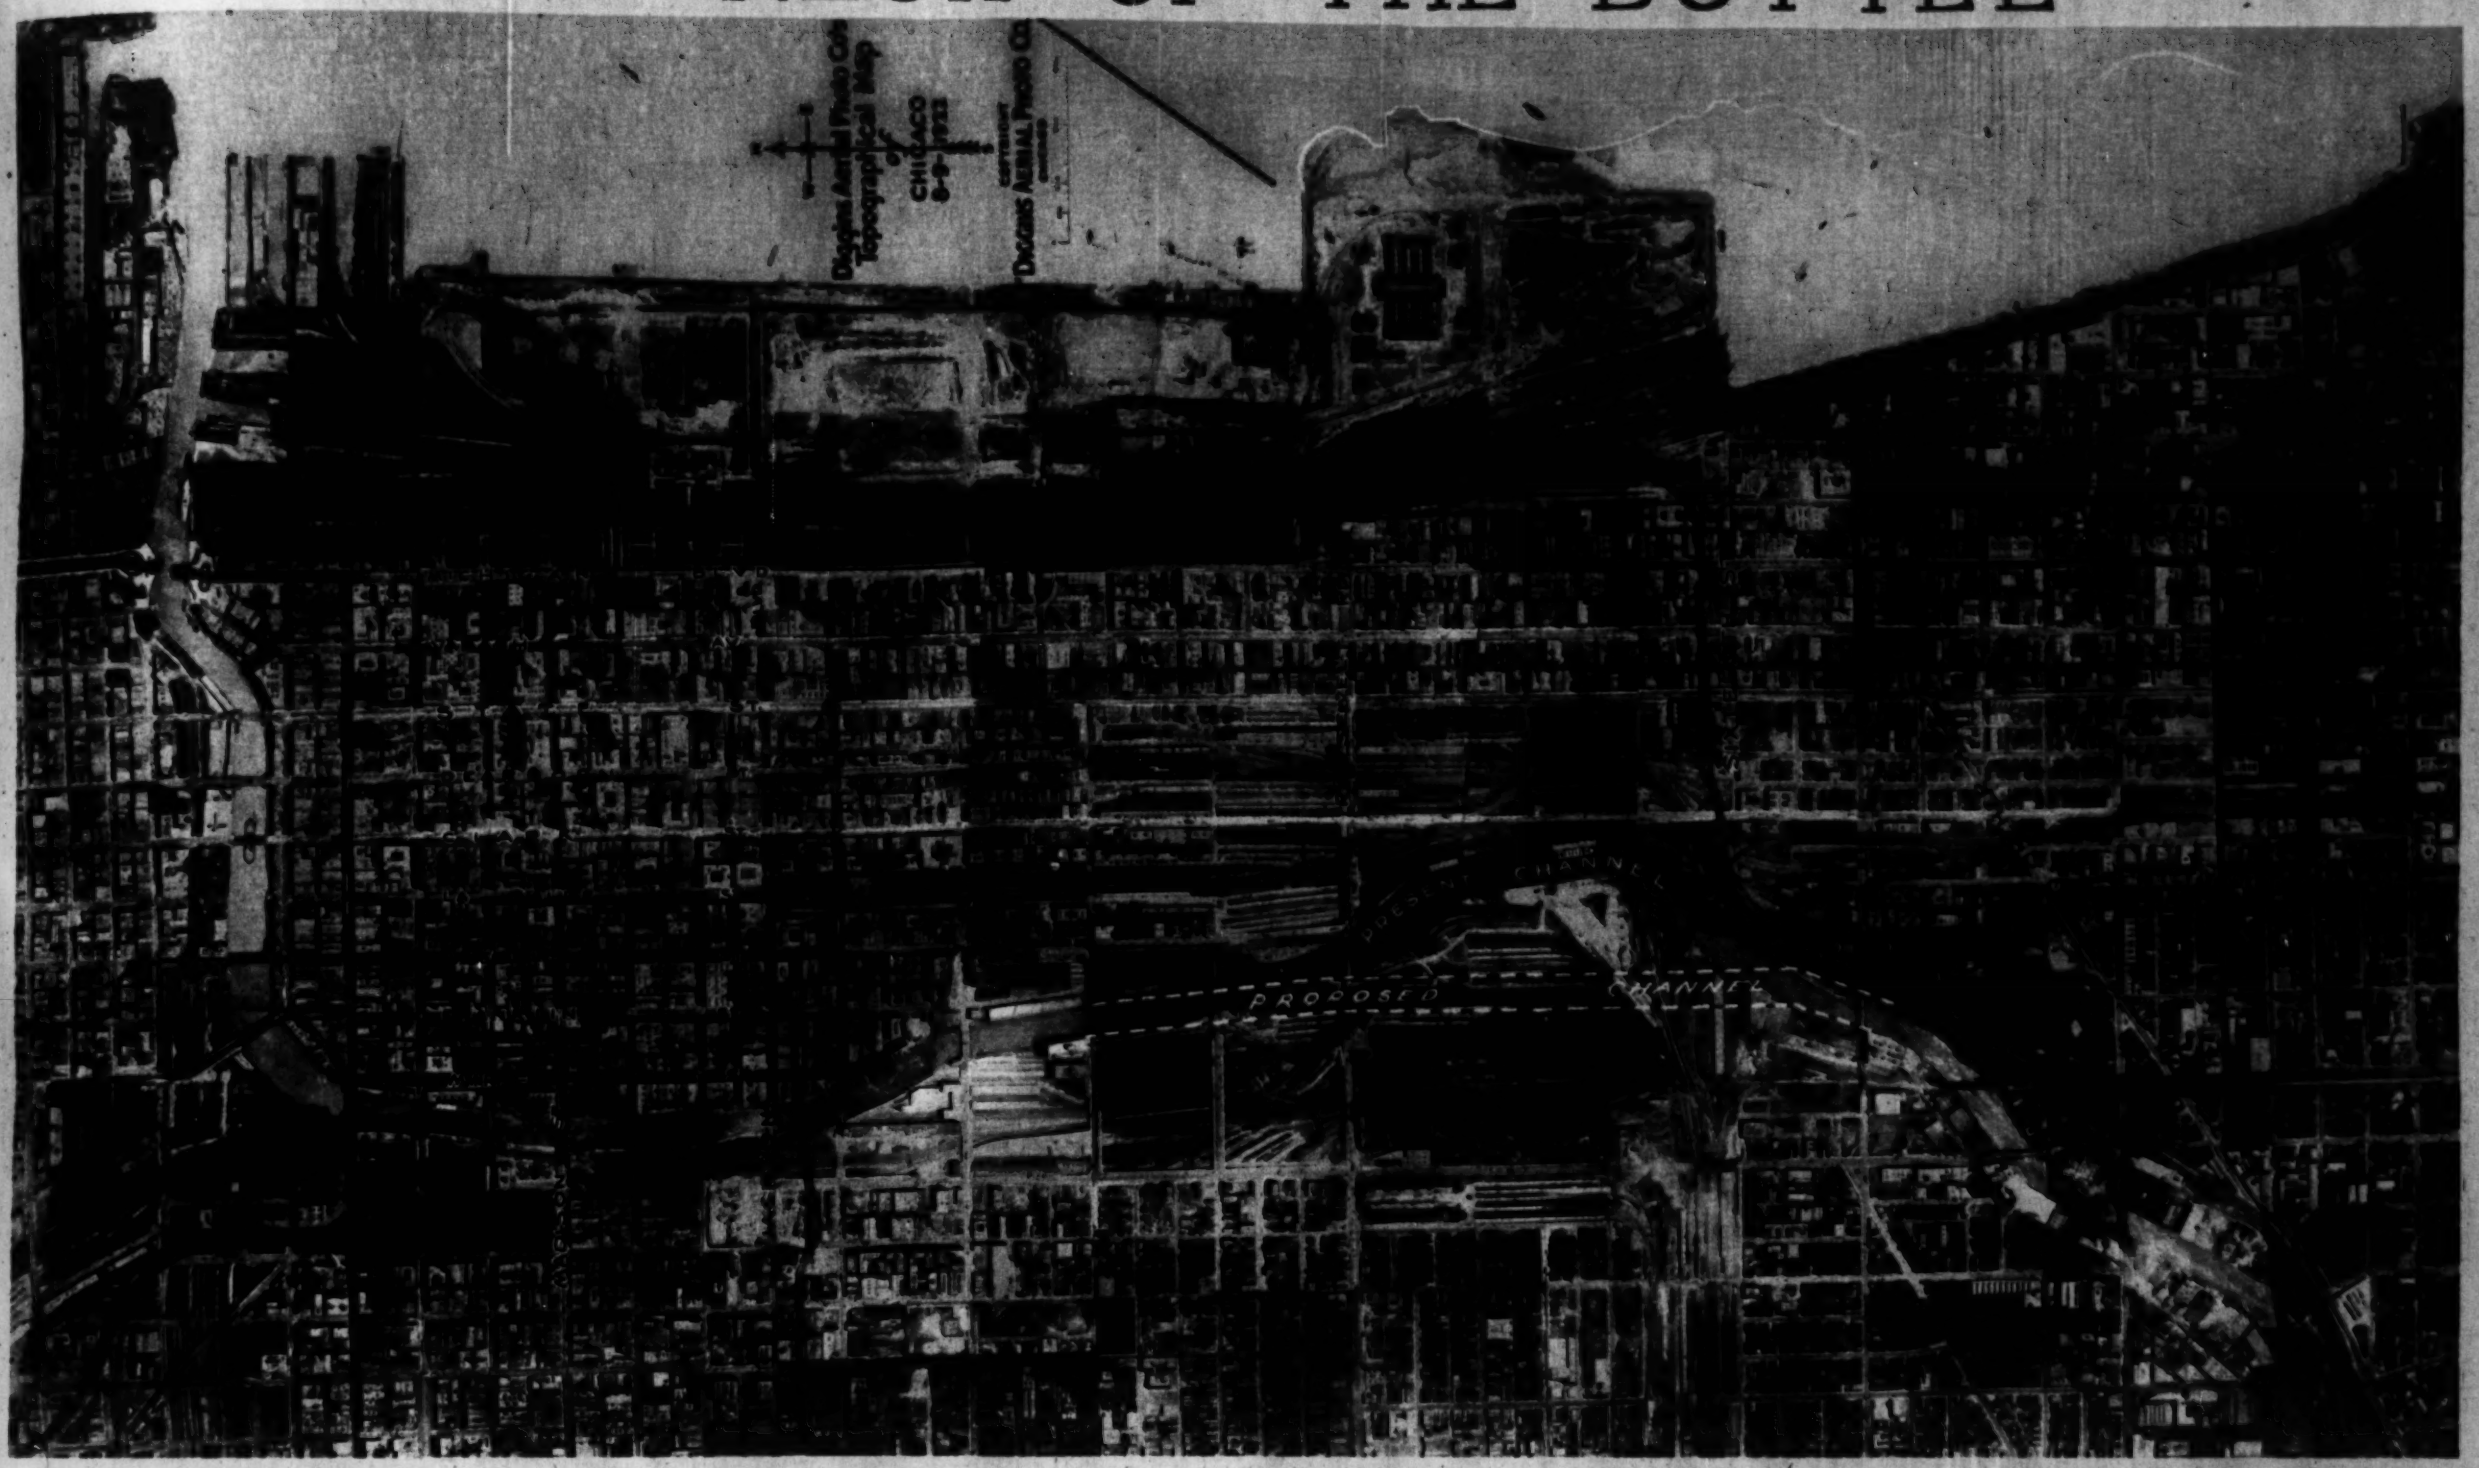
THE NECK OF THE BOTTLE



THE TRIBUNE HEREWITH PRESENTS AN AERIAL PHOTOGRAPH OF CENTRAL CHICAGO depicting, as a bird would view it, the "bottle neck" created by railroads, terminals, and switchyards to the south of the loop, a situation which is choking off development in that direction and which the $20,000,000 river straightening plan of the city railway terminals commission is designed to correct. The photograph was made by the Diggins Aerial Photograph company. It was notched together from forty or fifty negatives snapped by a camera in a plane coursing to and fro above the city. This composite photograph is one of a series showing the entire city, with an area of 200 square miles, which the company is making. The big map brings home the necessity for the opening of the four new streets to the loop from the south recommended by the terminals commission in March of 1921. At present the crook in the river, together with the railway trackage lying south of the La Salle street depot, throws all north and south-bound traffic on to four streets—Michigan avenue, Wabash avenue, State street, and Clark street. Straightening the river would permit the opening of Dearborn, La Salle, Wells, and Franklin streets to Sixteenth street, ending in a plaza, from which Blackwell street, widened to 200 feet, Wentworth avenue, Clark and State streets would carry the traffic on south. All "through" passenger service now entering the Dearborn, La Salle, and Grand Central stations would be transferred to the Roosevelt road lake front station to be constructed under the tri-party lake front development agreement. The remarkable map shows Chicago's heart in detail. It will be noted that the link bridge is open and that a boat pulled by a tug is about to pass through lakeward.

She Was Russia's "Empress of Beauty"

—and her wonder-working beauty secret now is YOURS!

By Georges A. Breon.

IN PARIS they called her "Russia's Empress of Beauty," and well she deserved the title. I cannot say her figure was superb. And, in form and regularity of features, she was not superior to millions of other women—particularly American women. Surprising, too, she was no longer young, as years are counted. Yet, when she passed, men forgot not to stare and women admittedly beautiful failed to conceal their envy.

Such is the irresistible power of a beautiful complexion—and that was her charm. Her complexion was perfect! Neither the horrors of war nor the severities of varying climates had put upon it the slightest flaw. As a pale orchid her skin was tinted. As the rarest silk it was soft and smooth. Withal it had the glow of health and firmness—unmarred by line or flabbiness. And the secret of that wonderful complexion—which I assure you, any woman can possess—was nothing mysterious, although for years it had been guarded carefully by "the Empress." It was vacuum skin cleansing! No, not with any mechanical device, but by a simple method which you, Madame or Mademoiselle, can easily use in the privacy of your own room and with immediate success—a success so amazing you will say: "It is a miracle!"

I was introduced to this beautiful refugee by a friend who, like me, is a chemist. Not ordinarily would this meeting have come about, for she was of the Russian nobility. But, in the Great War and the revolution she had lost family and fortune. So, fleeing to Paris, she found herself, like many others of Russia's aristocracy, without means. Thus finally she was obliged to reveal for money the wonder-working secret to which her beauty was due. It was while she was so negotiating with my friend that I met her.

"How old is she?" he asked as we returned to his laboratories. When I guessed 24 years, he laughed; and since her identity is to remain always a secret, I may tell you with propriety his reply.

"By chance, I know," he said, "that she is thirty-nine. It was because I knew her age that I was willing to pay the large sum she demanded for her beauty method. It seems to be a veritable renewer of youth.

Such, indeed, we found it to be. In hundreds of cases I have seen a single treatment by this method virtually remake a complexion—lifting out blackheads, removing eruptive waste, diminishing wrinkles and enlarged pores, restoring to flabby tissues the delicate graces of youth and leaving the skin like beautifully tinted velvet. So impressed was I by the results of this quick vacuum cleansing treatment that I obtained from my friend the right to prepare for American women the wonderful plastique—for such it is and in this country is known as Breon's Vacuum Plastique.

But I beg you not to confuse this Vacuum Plastique with any cold cream or the so-called "beauty muds" or "clays." It is in every detail a high-grade, refined laboratory product, composed of most expensive ingredients, and contains nothing which can stain, scratch, roughen or otherwise injure the most delicate skin. On the contrary, it is, without exception, the most remarkably soothing of skin treatments—a healer and a cleanser combined. In texture, my Vacuum Plastique is as smooth as cream; in odor, like the flowers; in effect, delightful as well as beneficial, causing a pleasant, pulling sensation—a little tingle so that you actually feel the impurities being drawn from your skin and the fallen or saggy parts lifted back to their proper contour, for the Plastique has a true vacuum action, the greatest of all tissue builders. Apply it just as you would a cold cream, let the vacuum process go on for 20 minutes, or longer if you wish, then remove the Plastique with damp cloths and—behold! you will find the skin as soft, lively and rosy as a child's!

Regardless of the condition of your skin, a single treatment with my Vacuum Plastique will produce results at which you will marvel most happily—a single treatment, which you can complete in 20 to 30 minutes. I am so sure of this that I will bargain with you to send you a large $2 tube of the Plastique on condition that, if satisfactory, it costs you only $1 and that if it fails or disappoints you, it costs you nothing.

Send me no money—merely your name and address on the coupon below, putting a little cross before the name of any conditions you find most troublesome. (This will enable me to fit a treatment to your exact needs.) Your supply of the Plastique—the regular $2 size—enough for several months—will come to you fresh and potent, as I make the Plastique up as needed—fresh every day. When the Vacuum Plastique is delivered, please pay the postman only $1 and postage. Then give this delightful vacuum cleansing method a trial. If the first treatment—the very first treatment—fails to do all I say and to more than delight you—if it is not equal or superior to beauty shop treatments costing $5 to $10 each—simply write me and I will refund your dollar by the first mail.

This special guaranteed, half-price offer is in effect solely to hasten the introduction of the Vacuum Plastique to American women. It may be withdrawn at any time. Therefore I urge you to send the coupon today—not only because you will get a bargain by so doing, but because, if you act now, you can have virtually a new complexion one week from today! Is that not sufficient reason why you should put the coupon into the very next mail? Please address me at my nearest laboratory.

Georges Breon Laboratories.

I accept your offer of a guaranteed trial of Breon's Vacuum Plastique. You may send me a regular $2 tube, for which I will pay the postman $1 and postage on delivery, with the understanding that you will refund my money if I find the Vacuum Plastique not as represented. We Stop Falling Hair in 3 Weeks

Grow New Hair Within 90 Days— This New Way

or your Money Refunded

Science discovers falling, lustreless hair due to simple infection (Sebum). Now quickly overcomes it. Hair actually grown on 91 heads in 100!

Note this New Way

—It Massages the Treatment Directly Into the Follicles of the Hair

You can see from illustration that Van Ess is not a "tonic." It combines a massage and lotion in one treatment. You do not rub it in with your fingers. Each package comes with a rubber massage cap. The nipples are hollow. Just invert bottle, rub your head, and nipples automatically feed lotion down into follicles of the scalp where it can do some good. At the same time the nipples give your head a massage.

It is very easy to apply. One minute each day is enough.

This is to offer you new hair—lustrous, beautiful, attractive—or money refunded.

It offers, too, to stop falling hair in three weeks.

If we fail, the treatment costs you nothing. Your own druggist signs the guarantee. Hence you assume no risk.

Thousands of women have made this test. Results are amazing. The charm of wonderful hair is now available to any one who chooses to have it.

Why 6 Women in 8 Have Dull, Unattractive Hair

Science has recently made amazing discoveries. It is now known that hair roots seldom die. They can be revived—given new life.

We have proved that conclusively by growing hair on 91 heads in 100.

The method we use is new. Years of exhaustive laboratory experiments were spent perfecting it.

Now world-great dermatologists employ these ingredients. Many charge $500 for the same basic treatment.

Falling hair, dull, lifeless hair; hair without sheen or lustre—6 women in 8 have it.

The reason is a very simple infection. An infected scalp oil called Sebum. This new way quickly overcomes it. It starts to act instantly. The effect is soon marked.

Costs Nothing

Unless we grow hair. The Van Ess treatment is absolutely guaranteed. You are the sole judge. The warrant is signed by your own druggist. You assume no risk making this test.

The Infected Sebum in Your Hair

Sebum is an oil. It forms at the follicles of the hair. Its natural function is to supply the hair with oil.

But frequently it becomes infected. It cakes on the scalp; clogs the follicles and plugs them. Go to the mirror and you can see it in your hair, either in the form of dandruff or in that of an oily excretion at the hair roots.

Germs by the millions breed in it, then feed upon the hair. Soon your hair begins falling. You note, too, how lifeless it appears. In a short time all the natural lustre and beauty are gone.

But—and note this scientific fact—remove the Sebum and the hair reverts back to the softness and brilliancy it displayed when you were a school girl.

The Van Ess treatment accomplishes that result. We know you will doubt it. So we guarantee it.

New hair grown in 90 days. Falling hair stopped in two weeks. Your own druggist gives you our guarantee to do these things. He signs it. If we fail, your money will be refunded without argument.

We urge you to give this new way a fair trial. It is folly not to test it; for remember, you take no risk.

Go to any druggist or department store today. Ask for the Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage. Written guarantee accompanies it.

We Stop Falling Hair

THE OUTLA[W]

Blue Ribbon Fiction

By ARTHUR STRINGER

It all Started when Cosgrave Set Out to Arrest the Girl whose Turban Was of Forbidden Herring Gull Plumage, Topped Off with a Snowy Egret.

COSGRAVE first saw the snowy egret as he turned into Fifth avenue at Thirty-third street. He had intended walking south, to his publisher's office, but he promptly headed north. For that egret was to him very much what an aniseed bag might be to a beagle or what a red rag might be to a bull.

Nor was it the snowy egret alone that awakened his anger. The thing seemed doubly offensive because the wind-tossed white feathers cascaded about a small and slightly tiptilted turban most unmistakably made of herring-gull's plumage. And both were interdicted; were illegal as hat ornaments. He had no knowledge as to who was wearing these forbidden decorations, but he had his own opinion of the woman who would deck herself out in such things. She was a violator of the law, an enemy of the precious wild life that her petty vanities had all but exterminated.

Yet so briskly did she walk up the early morning avenue that Philip Cosgrave was compelled to follow her for three blocks before catching up with her. When he did so he tapped her on the arm, very much as a patrolman might. She turned sharply, at that unlooked for affront, and made her shoulder movement away from him a perceptible one. But his stern eye was fixed on the snowy egret.

"I suppose you know you're breaking the law in wearing those feathers," he proclaimed, noticing for the first time that the soft gray of the herring-gull plumage matched the soft gray of her eyes.

"What feathers?" she demanded, with open hostility on her face. It was a pretty enough face, but Cosgrave had no intention of permitting a pretty face to come between him and a moral obligation.

"The feathers on your hat there," he announced, with all the acerbity at his command.

"Is it any particular business of yours what I wear on my hat?" she challenged, resuming her walk up the avenue and compelling him to fall into step or be left behind. She was looking straight ahead of her by this time, and he noticed the quick flush of annoyance which had deepened the coloring of her oval cheek.

"It's very much my business," asserted Cosgrave, nettling under her obvious contempt. "It's my business, not only as a member of the Migratory Birds' Protective association and an officer of the Audubon society, but also as a decent citizen decently interested in seeing our laws enforced."

"From which I am to infer that I'm not even a decent citizen," she said, smiling for the first time. Her face, he noticed, was not as hard as he had expected. The head wearing the snowy egret, indeed, had just nodded gayly to an old lady in sables, stepping out of a limousine.

"That," he told the girl at his side, "is not the important point."

"Then what is?" she demanded.

"The fact that there's a law against the use of the snowy egret and herring-gull plumage as apparel and that you are at the present moment breaking that law."

Her gloved hand went up to the tiptilted turban, giving it, if possible, a slightly saucier angle than before.

"Would you be good enough to tell me about that law?" she said, quite solemnly. And Cosgrave explained to her the enactment of the migratory birds' convention act, after which he told her, as graphically as he could, how the dorsal plumes of the American egret, the Ardea candidissima, were

"I loved you and wanted to be with you."

plucked during the breeding season, and how such pot-hunting for venal milliners had almost succeeded in exterminating one of the loveliest of the native herons.

"You know, I never thought of that," she said, favoring him with her first oblique glance of appraisal.

"Too few of you do," snapped Cosgrave, determined not to be sidetracked by any last-moment parade of humility.

"But in some cases," she gently suggested, "there may be extenuating circumstances."

"That," he coldly announced, "is a matter for the court to decide."

"The court?" she echoed, sweeping him with still another sidelong glance.

"They are maintained for precisely that purpose," he announced.

"Am I to understand, then, that you insist on proclaiming me a lawbreaker?"

THE peach-blow that had come into her cheeks, Cosgrave noticed, had now given way to a gardenia-white.

"Since you're breaking the law, I intend to see that you're arrested," he said, with a firmness which kept her silent for a full half block.

"Do you realize just how humiliating that might be to me?" she finally asked.

"It should be humiliating to any woman of imagination, of imagination enough to perceive how much suffering her vanity can impose on the dumb creatures of this earth!"

He spoke with more heat, perhaps, than he had intended. But in the tiptilted turban and the woman beside him he found something on which to center his nebulous hatred for these city peacocks who decked themselves out in feathers and furs ravaged from the bodies of God's helpless creatures of the wild.

"You accuse me of cruelty, of unthinking cruelty," the girl beside him was saying. "But don't you think that deliberate cruelty is quite as bad as the other kind? And you are being deliberately cruel with me."

"My own feelings," he announced, "are not important. The law exists, and you broke it."

"But aren't you really breaking another sort of law?" she quietly inquired.

"What law?" he demanded.

She glanced up at his face again before she answered him. And he resented the momentary show of timidity in her eyes.

"The law of chivalry, of tolerance," she told him, "of generosity toward the weak."

"You don't impress me as weak," he curtly informed her.

"But I am a woman!"

"A woman subject to the laws of your land," he corrected.

"But we have so many laws," she protested with a serio-comic little gesture.

"And an equally regrettable frequency of violation," he amended, set in his purpose that no feminine blandishments should steer him away from the straight and narrow paths of duty. And that duty seemed plainer than ever as he looked up and saw, a block ahead of him, the blue uniform of a policeman on patrol.

"Can't we go somewhere and talk this over quietly?" the girl suggested, also conscious, apparently, of the officer's approach.

"I imagine we've said about all there is to say," was Cosgrave's altogether unsympathetic rejoinder. He had been examining her with a less impersonal glance. It annoyed him, in a vague sort of way, to discover her crown of interdicted plumage perversely added to her beauty.

"And you insist on this public humiliation?" she asked, without looking at him.

"I insist that a law which I helped to frame should be respected," he maintained. And she nodded, comprehendingly, after turning that statement over for a moment or two.

"You must hate me very much," she said, with her meditative Mona Lisa smile.

He resented that essentially feminine tendency to reduce everything to the personal. His one desire, he reminded himself, was to remain judicial. And he strove to sustain that pose by staring pointedly at her headgear as he remarked: "I am a member of the Audubon society."

"Which means, I take it, that you love birds much more than you do human beings," she suggested, not without bitterness.

"I'm afraid you will be quite unable to argue me out of what I've accepted as a matter of conscience," he announced to the Philistine in silken hosiery and serge beside him. The only soul she could claim, he began to feel, was that shining shell of one which she got every morning from her milliner and her masseuse.

"O, it's conscience!" she said, with a small hand gesture of enlightenment. And he flushed, in spite of himself, as she added: "That, of course, leaves it quite hopeless!"

YET, even as she spoke, she quickened her pace and stepped slightly ahead of him. Before he could fully realize the meaning of that maneuver she stopped short before the approaching figure in the blue uniform.

"Officer," she promptly proclaimed, "this man is annoying me."

The opaque Celtic eye leisurely and none too approvingly inspected Cosgrave's person. Then it quite as leisurely and much more approvingly inspected the girl wearing the herring-gull turban.

"Do yuh know him?" inquired the policeman.

"I never saw him before he accosted me here on the street," was her spirited reply. And Cosgrave winced perceptibly at the "accosted."

"Do yuh want him arrested?" inquired the officer.

"I certainly do not want him annoying me," retorted the girl.

"Will yuh lay a charge?" insisted the arm of the law, with another none too flattering inspection of the man beside her.

Cosgrave, at that, felt that he had endured about enough.

"On the contrary, officer, I want this woman arrested!"

"So yuh want her arrested?" repeated the still impassive Celtic giant. "And just why should yuh be wantin' her arrested?"

"For breaking the law in wearing those egret feathers on her hat," announced Cosgrave.

Timothy McArthur, the officer, inspected the egret feathers. He did so with a leisured approval which did not add to Cosgrave's peace of mind.

"And how'm I t'know them's eaglet feathers?" inquired the large bodied man in blue.

"Egret," corrected Cosgrave.

"Well, whatever yuh call 'em, they suit the lady fine, to my way o' thinkin'! They may be eaglet feathers and they may be rooster feathers. But yuh've got a divil of a lot to do, yuh big omadhaun, wanderin' around and pokin' your long nose into what a gerrl's wearin' on her head. Yuh'd better be gettin' back to the millinery department. I don't care who yuh are or what yuh are. Yuh be on your way. And if yuh speak to this gerrl again I'll gather yuh in so quick yuh won't know an eaglet feather from the tail of a Cochin-China!"

The one thing Cosgrave noticed was that the oval face under the herring-gull turban was wearing the softest of smiles.

"We'll meet again perhaps," she said, over her shoulder.

"I hope that never happens," retorted Cosgrave, with a glance at the nightstick of the intervening Celtic giant, implacable as fate, pointing in a direction opposite to that which the girl in the snowy egret was taking.

BUT Cosgrave and the snowy egret girl did meet again. They met quite unexpectedly on the second evening after his lecture on "The Gulf Bird Sanctuaries," when he was dining at the Wolcotts'.

He was unaware of her presence there until a footman, going from group to chattering group, passed around the cocktails. She turned on him suddenly as he took a diffident sip of the amber mixture which meant so little to him.

"Doesn't your conscience trouble you?"

THE ANGEL FAMILY By Penny Ross
Series II The Little Ones

THE TEENIE WEENIES.

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

AND THE DUNCE SLEPT THROUGH IT ALL. BY WM DONAHEY.

IT happened the night the General's party came home with two truckloads of frog hams and wild rice. It was late when the trucks pulled in, so they were parked in the garage, to be unloaded next morning.

But they were never unloaded at all! For at midnight there was a sudden flash of light, a roar of flames, and when at last the sun came peering under the rose bush the pretty little Teenie Weenie village lay a heap of ashes. Every building had been burned to the ground!

As the dreadful truth became known, sorrowing, anxious friends gathered to offer help and sympathy. It was hard for anybody to get the facts of the fire, for the little people were terribly excited, but bit by bit it came out. Mr. Lover was the first to give the alarm. He had been awakened by the loud growling of Fred, the Twins' pet pinching bug, and had been horrified to see a bright red light in the direction of the schoolhouse. Running to another window, he saw the schoolhouse, the garage, and the hospital wrapped in flames!

He and his plucky little wife had given the alarm at once, but in the short time it took to rouse the sleeping Teenie Weenies the flames had spread to every building in the village. None ever knew how the fire started or why it spread so rapidly, but it was suspected that the Dunce had not carefully covered the coffee cup half full of gasoline that stood in the little garage, and the Old Soldier always insisted that the Twins' bonfire had not been entirely out when they left it. At any rate, the big fire now was sweeping all before it.

Teenie Weenies in their nightclothes came tumbling from the buildings, carrying in their arms all sorts of odd things they were trying to save. Anxiously the General stood counting his well loved family to be sure that all were there.

"Where's the Dunce?" he cried, and Gogo, who was passing with an armful of watermelon pickle, grew absolutely gray with fright. "Land sakes—he done be in dere asleep!" cried the colored Teenie Weenie, and without a thought of his own safety he climbed the porch and vanished through the window of the Dunce's room, to appear again, dragging the still sleeping Dunce by the arms. "Cain't no more wake him den if he was a door knob," cried the colored boy; "somebody catch him quick." And he rolled the heavy Dunce down into the arms of the Turk, who dragged him off to finish his deep sleep in a safe place.

The Lady of Fashion sat on a stone crying because all her pretty clothes were gone. "Not a stitch to my name but a pair of shoes and a hat," she wailed, while the Doctor growled, "Then don't cry—you're better off than I am. I've got just my pajamas. I'm glad enough I'm safe inside them. What's Grandpa roaring about?" For the old gentleman had set up a roar that drowned the sorrows of everybody else, and yet he seemed better off than most, for he wore a full suit of red flannel underwear, his fuzzy old hat, and in one hand he held his cane and a bunch of woolen socks, while with the other he waved a long knitted scarf.

"Jimminie fishhooks, scickle duff, blicker dang," bellowed the old man, "I'm ruined!"

"I'll take another slice of grape, and cut it thick," broke in the voice of the peaceful Dunce, who was talking in his sleep, and the sight of him so enraged Grandpa that he roared louder, "I'm ruined, I tell you."

The General smiled sadly. "It looks as if we were all ruined," he said.

"But you don't understand," cried Grandpa wildly. "I can't eat, I tell you—I can't eat."

"Humph—none of us can eat. Everything's burned up—every scrap," mourned the Cook, his tears falling on the pet carving knife he had managed to rescue. "You're no worse off than the rest of us."

Poor Grandpa grew so angry his white whiskers stood out like the quills on a porcupine. His face grew as red as his underwear, and the Doctor was afraid the old fellow would have a stroke. "It's my teeth," he shrieked. "You numble heads—my false teeth are burned up."

"There, there, Grandpa," soothed the Doctor kindly, "I'll make you another pair as soon as I can."

"What are we to do?" sobbed the Lady of Fashion. "All our lovely furniture, which our friends, the children, have sent us, is burned. And all our clothes! O, I'm so c-c-cold!"

"And how we keep clean?" demanded the Chinaman. "My nicie tubs all blurned. All me savee just washie board. No got one cake soap!"

When the sun was up the frightened, shivering Teenie Weenies looked over the ruins of the entire village. Shoe Hurst, the Lovers' Bungalow, Box Hall, the schoolhouse, garage, hospital, laundry—all were gone.

"My poor friends, we are now wanderers on the face of the earth," said the General sadly.

"Yas, sah," murmured Gogo. "We all's no better off dan de flees on de back of a dog."

she demanded, with an accusatory eye on the glass in his hand.

"Why should it?" he asked, noticing that she was looking lovelier than ever in her dinner gown of nasturtium red. But there was no mistaking the enmity behind her pose of levity.

"Don't you know that you are breaking one of the laws of this land?" she magisterially inquired.

"I never thought much about it," he retorted as he put down his glass.

"But there are so many who never think much about it," she pointed out with mock solemnity. He was able to laugh a little, but he could see that she was still intent on making him seem ridiculous.

"Few of us are perfect," he observed, though he was wondering at the time why nothing stood so devastating as the scorn of a beautiful woman.

"Yet so many of us demand perfection in others," she proclaimed. She said it lightheartedly enough, but he was not unaware of the saber sheathed in rose leaves. He stood studying her face with an impersonal intentness which brought the faintest touch of color into her cheek.

"I fancy it's going to be hard for us to be friends," she observed, with her discounting small smile.

"I rather imagine it's going to be quite impossible," he found the brutality to retort.

HE was sorry, the next moment, that he had said it, and he was still sorrier when, a few minutes later, he found himself confronted by the lugubrious pleasure of taking her to dinner. He had no wish to nurse grudges. But he was not unconscious of the enmity which she necessarily entertained for him. And he had small liking for the type. He flattered himself that he knew it only too well, the youthfully arrogant and unchallenged, the indulged and self-indulgent and blightingly derisive jeune fille of modern America, imperious in her pursuit of pleasure, trading casually on her beauty, and cynically persuaded that both the problems and the laws of this world were for persons other than herself. What began to puzzle him, however, was her sustained air of meekness. It reminded him, in a disturbing sort of way, of the dissimulative wounded bird movements of the mother pheasant when frightened from the nest.

"It's a small world, isn't it?" she observed toward the end of a dinner which could still show perversely pleasant moments to him. "Especially to the evildoer!"

He asked her why she said that.

"Because I've discovered that it's on Lake Trevor you have your bird sanctuary. And I find that I'm to spend a month with the Wolcotts, almost side by side with it."

"I shudder to think of the consequences!" He was able, however, to smile as he said it.

"Your fears, I feel, are quite groundless," she countered with her quiet smile. "I intend, in fact, to find out a great deal about bird life."

"I trust it will change your point of view," he remarked, wondering why she should sit studying him with such a meek and meditative eye. Yet his sense of triumph in scoring against a too open-handed enemy was not as enduring as it might have been. For, a few minutes later, he had the dubious pleasure of hearing her recite to a youth whom she addressed as "Kennie" the lines of a new song which she lightly asked him to set to music.

"It ends up, Kennie, something like this:

"Remember, gentle neighbors, then,
'Tis wrong to tease the bat;
Embrace the badger in his den,
Be friendly with the rat,
And love the little birdies when
They love you, tit for tat;
And never pluck the jenny-wren
To decorate your hat!"

Cosgrave turned slowly about and looked at the girl with the flushed cheeks. It seemed strange that he could both despise her and admire her in the same breath.

"Your poem," he solemnly informed her, "is much prettier than the motive which inspired it."

She merely shrugged a slender shoulder under its slender metalled strap.

"Motives," she casually remarked, "are so terribly hard to fathom!"

Cosgrave, with the advance of spring, found himself an unexpectedly busy man. He was not so preoccupied, however, that he failed to note when the over elaborate "camp" of the Wolcotts was opened for the season. Nor was he, with his trained sharpness of vision, altogether unconscious of the arrival of an alert bodied young lady, who in rather resplendent sweaters and peg top breeches went paddling and tramping and angling about his beloved demesne. She halloed to him once, across the bay, and he quite solemnly halloed back to her. So when he came face to face with her, while fungus hunting in a bit of woods on the mainland, she seemed reprovingly reserved in her manner and he went on his way again, oppressed with a vague sense of disappointment.

But he found himself unconsciously on the lookout for the resplendent sweaters and the alert young body which wore them. The thought of her wandering about his lonely hills added an unfamiliar warmth to that familiar landscape, sending him about his devious tasks with a feeling of being immersed in a wide but undefined adventure. He tried to cooper together a claim that he disliked this intrusive young person with the perplexing mocking eyes. But he was never quite able to make out a case. And when young men arrived at the Wolcotts' for the week-end Cosgrave was indeterminately jealous of those gayly apparelled youths who disturbed his nesting water fowl and went fishing on his private preserve.

IT was when returning from an investigation of certain of these depredations that he unexpectedly encountered Caroma Reeder. He found her beside his hilltop trail, huddled against a rock. He stopped short, disturbed by the quiescence of that customarily active figure.

"Are you hurt?" he asked.

"I'm afraid I've sprained my ankle," she replied with her fingers clasped about one of her high laced tan brogans.

He knelt down beside her and examined the injured foot. She winced as he pressed on the leather covered ankle.

"I'm afraid we'll have to get this shoe off," he announced, and proceeded to unlace it. And he noticed that she winced again as she carefully worked her foot out of the shoe

"Now the stocking," he proclaimed.

But she demurred at that.

"It hurts too much," she objected, coloring a trifle.

So he reëxamined the ankle through its ribbed woolen stocking. He could detect nothing alarming in its condition. There was no swelling that he could see, and there were obviously no broken bones, though she ventured a little cry or two of pain as his strong fingers explored the injured area.

"Can you walk?" asked Cosgrave, looking for the first time directly into her face. It impressed him as a singularly appealing face, with its misty gray eyes and its turkey spotted small nose and its mobile red mouth with just a trace of willfulness about the curving line of the lips.

The girl shook her head in negation.

"I tried," she acknowledged. "But I couldn't quite manage it."

"Shall we try again?" he asked, quite impersonally.

"All right," she agreed, with no great parade of hopefulness.

They had considerable trouble in getting the shoe on again.

It was Cosgrave who laced it up, repeatedly asking if he was making it too tight. And it was Cosgrave who helped her to her feet and supported her with one stalwart arm while she essayed a none too promising effort to hobble along at his side.

"It's no use," she said, sitting down on a stone and nursing the injured ankle between her clasped fingers. "I think you'd better leave me here."

"And then what?" he asked.

"You might send somebody up from the Wolcotts to come and get me," she suggested, adding with unlooked for meekness: "If you will be so kind."

Cosgrave laughed.

"I imagine I can manage you as well as anybody from the Wolcott house," he announced.

"How do you mean manage me?" she asked, massaging her foot with a meditative hand.

"I'll have to carry you," he told her, speaking as impassively as possible.

"But you couldn't do that," she said, without looking up at him. And still again he laughed.

"It's a little over a mile and a quarter," he admitted. "But we'll manage without any trouble. I carried a deer hunter with a broken leg over four miles of broken country once—and he was a trifle heavier than you."

She inspected him with an appraising eye.

"I know you must be strong," she admitted. "But it doesn't seem——"

"Doesn't seem what?" he inquired almost brusquely, as she broke off.

"Doesn't seem fair," she said, evading his eye.

"We can decide about that later," he told her. "The important point is to tell me when you're tired. Then we can try a new position."

HE seemed very businesslike about it all. She had thought at first that he would carry her in his arms. Instead of that, however, he carried her in the approved manner of the woodsman when faced by such contingencies. He carried her "pick-a-back," with the weight of her body resting along his spine and her arms clasped about his neck and his own hands linked under her knees. It was, she supposed, a sensible and comfortable way of carrying people. But it began to impress her as deplorably lacking in dignity. She might have been a bag of meal on a miller's back or a bale of jute reposing on a stevedore's shoulder blades. And her gallant knight, as the journey proceeded, betrayed no undue tendency toward conversation.

"Would you mind letting me down a moment?" she said in a somewhat stifled tone of voice as they emerged from the wooded higher land and came within sight of the Wolcott lodge.

He did as she asked. He let her down as casually as though she were a child grown tired of a gambol. But his eyes were solemn as he studied her somewhat flushed face.

"I think I can manage by myself for the rest of the way," she found the courage to suggest. But Cosgrave would not hear of it.

"You're tired, of course," he admitted, "So this time we'll try another position."

"But it's you who must be tired," she protested.

"Not a bit of it," he stoutly asserted. "So take hold, and I'll have you home in ten minutes."

The "taking hold," she found, consisted in being compelled to wrap one arm closely about his neck, for this time he was carrying her in his arms. And in this way he carried her right to the wide veranda of the Wolcott lodge, which he mounted with his silent and slightly flushed burden amid a small chorus of ejaculations from the assembled company.

Cosgrave made it a point to ignore those jubilant and slightly derisive cries. The one person he found it hard to forgive, however, was the knickerbockered youth with a languid smile who clicked a camera as Caroma Reeder came up the steps in his arms. That, Cosgrave felt, was going a bit too far.

"No, it's nothing serious," he solemnly assured Mrs. Walcott. "It's merely that Miss Reeder has sprained her ankle. As you see, she's not able to walk. So I'll send Doctor Angus over as soon as I can get in touch with him. I've found him a very dependable physician."

Then Cosgrave turned to the young man with the camera.

"I'd prefer," he announced with unexpected spirit, "not perpetuating the ridiculous." Whereupon he violently took possession of the camera, flung it to the floor, and crushed it with his heel.

There was a moment of silence as Cosgrave wheeled about and went down the steps.

"Isn't it amazingly like something out of the Bronze Age?" murmured a young woman in a rose silk sweater.

"And a most amazing disregard for other people's property!" added Kennie Fillmore, the rueful eyed owner of the camera, as he stooped with a shrug to gather up the ruins. . . .

IT was a week later, when Cosgrave and Doctor Angus were fishing for rainbow trout in the back hills, that the man of medicine was prompted to comment on the case.

"Say, Phil, I'm afraid they've got the laugh on you down at the Wolcott cottage," he observed as he bent over a book of flies.

Cosgrave, without looking up, inquired as to the reason for this.

"You remember that city girl with the sprained ankle I went down to see?"

"Yes, I rather remember her," acknowledged Cosgrave.

"Well, there was nothing more wrong with her foot than there is with mine."

"You mean she could have walked if she wanted to?" asked Cosgrave, with deepening color.

The doctor nodded as he threaded a Coachman.

"I may be wrong, but I've got a lurking suspicion she laid a bet she'd make you carry her in."

Cosgrave sat thinking this over.

"Well, I carried her," he finally said.

"For about a mile and three-quarters, as I figure it out," commented the other, with just the ghost of a smile.

"I don't regret it," announced Cosgrave out of a second long silence.

"I shouldn't think you would," observed Angus with a tug at his wader straps. "She impressed me as something pretty easy to look at."

"What do you mean by that?" demanded the solemn eyed Cosgrave.

"I suppose I mean that she's an extraordinarily attractive young woman," said the man of medicine, who was left wondering why his companion of the reel should remain so morosely silent for the rest of the afternoon.

PHILIP COSGRAVE wakened up to the fact that something was wrong with him. He was moody and abstracted and found little interest in his work. He also found himself thinking about Caroma Reeder a great deal more than he cared to acknowledge. He tried to tell himself that he disliked the girl, still doing his utmost to carpenter together a case against her. Then he found himself just as eagerly fabricating excuses for her and wondering when he would have the good luck to see her again. He thought of a hundred things to say to her when that meeting should come about. And he ended up by asserting that he had no wish to see a person who had done her best to make him ridiculous.

Yet his customarily steady pulse quickened a little when he caught sight of her, one warm and limpid evening, on the sloping, sandy shore of Lake Trovor. She was sitting on a many antlered pine root, as motionless as a beach bird, watching the sunset. And she merely smiled her Mona Lisa smile as he came and stood before her.

"I've a confession to make," she said, after a moment of silence.

"I don't want to hear it," he told her, almost roughly.

"But I think you ought to know it," she asserted, with her eyes on the black fringe of the pines that brought the sunset closer.

"Ought to know what?" he asked, with an involuntary glance down at her saddleback shoes.

"That I've contributed five hundred dollars to the new bird sanctuary fund," she quietly announced.

"What prompted you to do that?" he inquired.

"You did," she acknowledged, turning her face to him. It impressed him as a singularly lovely face. And it also impressed him as an honest one at the moment. But he studied it long and earnestly, apparently in search for some trace of guile.

"I see you still don't approve of me," she finally asserted.

"It's your different efforts to make me appear as ridiculous as possible that I don't approve of," he amended.

"I'm sorry," she said with her barricaded smile.

"Why?" he demanded.

"Because I really wanted to know more about these things you're so interested in. I had no chance before of understanding." Then she added with just a touch of color in her cheeks: "The saints, you know, are only the sinners who kept on trying."

He sat down on the sand in front of her.

"I wonder if you'd actually let me teach you a few of the things I've learned about nature?" he questioned. The twilight was deepening slowly about them and from far out toward Thor island a bittern cried.

"Would you?" she asked, with her solemn gray eyes on his face.

He stared back at her for a full minute of silence.

"On one condition," he said, with quite unlooked for grimness, as he rose to his feet.

"What is that?" she asked, following his movement.

He looked at her with an eye which might at first glance have been accepted as a hostile one. Yet it betrayed more of the emotional upheavals which were making a small Vesuvius of his heart than he imagined.

"What is that?" she repeated, with the last of the laughter gone from her lips. And they were adorable lips, he felt, with their poised half pout of solemnity.

"That you marry me!" was his abrupt declaration. And that ultimatum seemed to surprise him almost as much as it must have surprised the young woman confronting him. It became, in fact, her turn to remain silent for a disturbingly prolonged space of time.

"I'M sorry you said that," she finally observed.

"Why?" he inquired.

"Because that's something which Kenneth Fillmore has just asked me to do!"

He felt that the bottom had dropped out of his world. But he did his best to bear up.

"Who's Kenneth Fillmore?" he demanded.

"That's the man whose camera you smashed up the other day," she casually explained.

"Then I wish I'd smashed more than the camera," he retorted, though he laughed a little as he said it. "And are you going to marry him?"

"That was what I was thinking about as I sat here. Kenneth, you see, doesn't take life very seriously."

"While I rather imagine you'd accuse me of taking it too seriously," he prompted.

"On the contrary," she quietly amended, "I'd accuse you of taking yourself too seriously!"

That seemed to give him a great deal to think over.

"Life with me has been rather a solemn business," he finally acknowledged. The unexpected note of humility in his voice seemed to disturb her.

"While with me, obviously, it hasn't been solemn enough."

"Then we each ought to have something for the other," he sturdily maintained.

She laughed, but her gray eyes were as sober as the light above the black fringed pinelands.

"I'm afraid we've made a very bad beginning," she ventured.

"Then we ought to work hard for a better ending," he valorously informed her.

Her sigh was an audible one.

"I'm afraid," she observed, "we still don't understand each other."

"But I want to understand you," he found the courage to say.

"I imagine law breakers would never greatly appeal to you!"

He winced at that. But the mere fact that he could smile seemed to imply that she had already shaken a little of the solemnity out of him.

"I break a few myself," he countered. And she rewarded him at that with a smile. It was plain to see that he was getting on a bit.

"But if I told you I was already engaged to Kenneth Fillmore what would you do?"

"I'd be sorry," he replied.

"Is that all?"

"What else could I do?" he demanded.

"I'm afraid," she said, and her sigh this time was an inaudible one, "that you're much better at hunting birds than human beings."

He couldn't quite catch the drift of her thought. But her allusion to bird hunting brought his none too happy mind back to what she had already said about studying nature with him. And he asked her, meekly enough, if he couldn't hope for at least one day with her in the open.

She found it necessary to give this considerable thought.

"Yes," she finally agreed. "You can take me canoeing tomorrow afternoon if you care to."

A load went from him at that. And in his confusion of impression he vaguely wished that he had given less time to the study of carnivorae and more to that of woman.

"That, at least, will be my day!" he proclaimed.

"Perhaps," she reminded him, solemn eyed, "the last one!"

And that small speech magnified the cloud hovering along the horizon of his happiness.

"How about young Fillmore?" he inquired, extracting a wayward relish from what impressed him as an adjective of derogation.

"Do you want to take him with you?" she asked with her enigmatic smile.

"Not much!" retorted the dour eyed Cosgrave.

"Then we'll have to take the law in our own hands, won't we?" she said with her inscrutable small laugh as she turned homeward along the hard packed sand against which the lake water was lisping so musically.

COSGRAVE did not sleep well that night. He had too much to think about. What slowly but surely assumed the aspects of the great hour of his life seemed too close. And he seemed unable, as he lay holding postmortems on his lost and wasted life, to cope with an emergency which called for characteristics which he did not possess. For it appeared to be only too true what Caroma Reeder had said. He had spent more time in studying the ground squirrel and the shorebird than he had in studying men and women. Especially women. And the bewildering light that could come and go in a woman's eyes. And especially when they were gray eyes, the unfathomable gray of woodland valleys and wind stirred waters. Women, in fact, had always remained an enigma to him. He had always taken them too seriously. And now that he longed above everything else to win the confidence of one particular woman, to understand her moods and the motives behind her over-paradoxical movements, he merely intimidated her with his uncouthness and antagonized her with his solemnities.

That he did long to win Caroma Reeder's confidence became only too self-evident as he made her comfortable in the bow of his slender bodied Rice Lake canoe and pushed off from shore. But it was more than her confidence he wanted, he realized as he headed for Thor island, lying low on the wind riffled water, a good seven miles away. He knew then that he wanted the woman herself. He wanted her so badly that he could think of nothing more desirable than merely to keep on paddling, to keep on with her into never ending waterways until all the rest of the world was left behind them.

"I think I like you best this way," she said as she watched his sinewed brown arms send the tilted canoe along the hooker green surface of the lake.

"Why?" he asked as he noted the odd mixture of gold and mahogany in her hair.

"Because you look masterful," she told him. "And women like masterful men."

That, like so many of her little speeches, gave him a great deal to think about. It also revived in him the impulse to keep on paddling into the ever receding distances.

But instead of doing so they landed on the desolation of Thor island, where he beached the canoe and lifted out the carefuly packed supper things, after which he took her scrambling over rocks and briars and reedy swales and showed her one of his precious wood duck nests.

She knelt beside him as he lifted away the screening litter of sticks and twigs and showed her the protective down plucked from the mother bird's breast and the warm eggs beneath it, explaining how that covering of down could keep the eggs from chilling for a whole day, if need be, should the mother duck be driven away from her nest. Then he adjusted his binoculars and let her study the grebes and divers and sandpipers at long range, and led her to a red wing blackbird's nest filled with its clamorous young, over which the wondering girl emitted little cries of delight. And they wandered about the desolate little island until the sun began to slope down toward the west and Cosgrave awakened to the much more desolate discovery that his day was slipping away.

So he found a sheltered spot and gathered what wood he could and left her to feed the fire while he went back to the canoe for the supper things.

He went with a heavy heart, glancing morosely back at the vital young figure bent over the smoking campfire. He walked dourly and deliberately to the little cove where the canoe had been beached, stopping still again to look back and making note of the fact that the girl's stooping body was no longer in sight. Then, after a moment of grim silence, he did an unaccountable and an inexcusable thing. He slid the canoe slowly down into the water, let it float there for a second or two, and pushed it out on the lake.

It drifted away in a languid half circle, veered about again, and felt the impulse of the gentle offshore breeze. Then it moved less languidly. By the time he had gathered up his camp blanket and skillet and belt hatchet and hamper of provisions it was a good fifty yards away, bearing for the open lake.

Half way back to his campfire he stopped and looked again. By this time it had doubled its distance from the cove, standing high in the water and getting the full effect of the breeze. And he knew that it was gone for good.

There was a grimness to the set of his jaw as he rejoined Caroma beside the fire. His silence, in fact, caused her to look up and sweep him with a quick glance of interrogation.

"What's wrong?" she asked.

"Why?" he temporized as he turned to put more wood on the fire.

"You look so solemn," she light heartedly affirmed.

"I've just discovered how hungry I am,"

She was a violator of the law.

he equivocated as he fell to work preparing supper.

SHE did what she could to help him in that jovial task, both marveling at the adroitness of the old time camper beside her and protesting that she loved to see life made so simple it approached the primitive. An odd spirit of hilarity, indeed, seemed to overtake Caroma during that meal in the waning evening light. She appeared waywardly youthful and carefree, impressing the brooding eyed Cosgrave as very much like a child intent on getting the most out of her holiday. He tried not to think of the future, but he was not of the breed that can live its moment alone. Yet he wished, above all things, that the clock of the world would stop.

The clock of the world, however, does not stop at the wish of mere mortals. Even the girl looked up, eventually, from the narcotizing glow of the embers, with a glance about at the gathering dusk.

"Don't you think we ought to be starting back?" she asked out of the silence which had fallen over them.

He sat studying her face.

"Supposing we don't go back?" he suggested, more solemnly than he had intended.

She looked up at him and laughed. And he found something fortifying in her matter of factness.

"I'm afraid we haven't any choice in the matter," she asserted.

"No, we haven't much choice in the matter," he repeated as he watched her rise to her feet.

"There are certain rules of the game, of course, that have to be observed," explained the girl as she busied herself in gathering up the camp outfit.

"Laws that mustn't be broken?" he supplemented, as he, too, rose tardily to his feet.

"Or some solemn eyed person will be stepping up to remind us that we've broken them," she was inconsiderate enough to assert.

Cosgrave seemed unable to find any adequate reply to this thrust. He remained oddly silent as they picked their way out to the narrow curve of the beach where they had first landed from their canoe. The enormity of his offense was not at the moment troubling him. He was too occupied in wondering how she was going to accept the situation with which she was about to be confronted. Yet faintly but persistently the solitariness of her figure as she stood scanning the lonely shore line disturbed him. He began to realise that he had carried her a long way off from the world where she belonged.

She stopped suddenly and looked down at the sand, where the mark of the canoe keel was still discernible. Then she glanced about the shallow cove.

"Where's our boat?" she asked, with her eyes directly on Cosgrave's face.

Instead of returning that gaze he preferred looking out over the darkening lake water.

"It's gone," he announced.

"But how could it go?" she asked, much more quietly than he had expected.

"It must have got adrift and blown away in this offshore breeze," he told her.

She was silent a moment.

"Have we any other way of getting back?"

"None whatever," he was compelled to acknowledge.

"Then what can we do?" she demanded

"We'll have to wait here until somebody comes and takes us off."

STILL again she stood silent. A loon cried, upwind, and a star or two showed in the high arch of the sky. There was a lonely sound in the lisp of the water at their feet.

"Do they know where you are?" she asked in a slightly sharpened voice.

"Who?"

"Anybody."

"No," he replied. And still again she stood silent.

"I told Kennie I was coming here," she finally said. "But they'd never think of looking for us until morning. And then it would be too late!"

"Too late for what?" asked the man at her side. And the girl's laugh was a slightly acidulated one.

"For our good friend Mrs. Grundy," she explained.

"I thought that lady belonged to the Victorian era," he contended.

"On the contrary, she still moves in the very best circles. And the better the circle the more terrible you'll find her disapproval."

"What does that mean?"

"It means I'm lost," was her dolorous reply.

"Lost to what?"

She preferred apparently not answering that question. And Cosgrave began to see that the situation wasn't as simple as he had imagined.

"I can swim for it if you want me to," he told her.

"How far is it?" she asked.

"It's seven miles to the nearest mainland. I think I could make it in a couple of hours."

She looked at the water and turned away with what he thought was a shudder.

"No, no; you mustn't do that! Something might happen!"

"Would you care?" he asked. And for the second time she left one of his questions unanswered.

"I suppose we could try a signal fire?" she finally suggested.

"Yes, we could do that. But I don't imagine they'd understand."

"No, I don't imagine they'll understand," she admitted as she sat down on the sand. He unfolded the waterproofed camp blanket and draped it about her shoulders. More than ever she impressed him as something infinitely fragile, as something infinitely fragile betrayed into hands unworthily rough.

"What are we going to do?" she asked, staring at him through the uncertain light.

"We're going to stay here," he proclaimed.

"No, no; I don't mean that," she corrected. "I mean afterward."

"I'm afraid you'll have to marry me," he announced, as impersonally as he was able.

He waited for her to speak, scarcely breathing.

SOME FAMOUS HOLLYWOOD TWOSOMES

JANE MURFIN AND STRONGHEART are the sort of pals who don't need a lot of conversation to make them interesting to each other. They are shown here enjoying a few moments' silent communion between scenes of Strongheart's coming picture.

GERTRUDE CLAIRE AND RUSSELL SIMPSON furnish the background for some of our best pictures. They are not related —excepting occasionally on the screen. Here you see them as they appear in "Human Hearts." Mae Tinee.

HELEN JEROME EDDY AND RAY CARROLL will be happy girls if "Love's Coming of Age" proves a success. Miss Carroll wrote the story and Miss Eddy will play in the screen adaptation. Here's hoping! Mae Tinee.

T. ROY BARNES AND HIS PURP (name unknown) here demonstrate what it is to smile through whiskers. Mr. Barnes has been engaged to play a tramp and supply comedy for the cinema version of "The Old Homestead." Apparently he's pretty good, for he makes his own dog laugh. Mae Tinee.

THE OUTLAW

"Because the situation demands expiation?" she quietly inquired.

"No; because I want you so much," he just as quietly told her.

"How much?" she asked.

"More than I can ever tell you," he said.

She started to laugh, but it ended in a sigh.

"I'm afraid you're only trying to make the best of a bad bargain," she protested.

"I don't care what it is so long as it brings me you!"

"But how about my feelings?" she demanded with unlooked for spirit.

"Let's not talk about it now," he protested as he reached for his belt hatchet. "I think we ought to go back to the fire, where I can make you comfortable."

"I'm afraid that's out of the question tonight!"

BUT she let him lead her back by the hand to where the bed of embers still lay. He left her there and groped his way out to the upper end of the island, where the scrub growth was a trifle heavier. It took him some time to cut enough branches for a windbreak and a bed. When these were carried back he fell to gathering what wood he could find for the fire. When the smoldering sticks broke out into an open blaze he put up his small shelter of cedar and jack pine. On the windward side of it he built a bed of evergreens, carefully "feathering" the branches so that the softer ends lay along the top. Then he went back to the beach and gathered up the rest of his duffel. When he returned to the fire he found the girl kneeling before it, watching the flames. Her silence filled him with a vague trouble.

"You must be tired," he suggested as he placed the canoe cushion on the bed of evergreens for her.

"I was never more wide awake in my life."

"But I want you to wrap up and keep warm," he told her, conscious of the sharpening tang in that upland night air.

"All right," she said, with consolatory matter of factness.

She stood docile as he wrapped her up, mummylike, in his camp blanket. She remained equally impassive as he picked her up and carried her to the wind break and adjusted the cushion for her head.

"You're not going away?" she said, sitting up and leaning on her elbow, a moment later. For he had retreated to the far side of the bed of coals.

"I'll stay up and keep the fire going," he explained.

"That doesn't seem fair," she protested.

He added fresh fuel to the coals before he spoke.

"There's only one thing that keeps this from being the happiest night of my life," he told her as he sat down, with the fire between them.

"What is that one thing?" she asked, staring up at the star spangled vault of heaven.

"The thought that it's the only night we may ever have like this," he replied. "Do you mind if I smoke?"

"Of course not," she said in a slightly flattened voice.

"He filled his pipe and struck a match.

"Which are the Pleiades?" she asked, out of the silence that had fallen over them.

He pointed them out to her with his pipe stem. She stared up at them for a long time.

"Are you comfortable?" he finally asked.

"It's heavenly," she said with a small sigh of contentment.

"And you're not—not altogether sorry?"

"Are you?"

His face was unduly solemn.

"Yes," he said at last.

"Why?" she asked.

"Because I have something on my conscience."

"I can't imagine you doing anything very bad," she said after a moment of silence.

"But I did do it," he asserted.

"When?"

"Today!"

"I'd rather not talk about it," she surprised him by saying.

"But I want you to know."

"What is that big star going down in the west?" she quietly interposed.

He told her that it was Venus.

"And is that Orion, almost over our heads?"

He acknowledged that it was.

"And those lights along the water?" she asked a moment later. "What are they?"

He swung around and stared out over the lake. Then his heart sank.

"That must be the Wolcott launch," he listlessly admitted. "Yes, there's her searchlight! And she's heading directly for us!"

The girl threw off the camp blanket and came and stood beside him.

"Are they coming for us?" she asked in little more than a whisper.

"They must be," he decorously acknowledged.

"You don't seem glad!"

"I'm not!"

She surprised him by moving a little closer to him in the darkness.

"Neither am I," she said, very softly.

"Why do you say that?" he insisted.

"Because I'd rather be here with you," she found the courage to admit.

"But I've got to tell you why you've had to be here with me," he proclaimed.

"Perhaps I know already."

"No you don't understand. But I want you to." He had to take a deep breath before he could go on. "That canoe didn't go adrift this afternoon. I pushed it into the water and let it go, deliberately."

"Why did you do that?" she asked with her hand on his arm.

"Because I forgot about everything except that I loved you and wanted to be with you."

She moved still closer in under his shoulder.

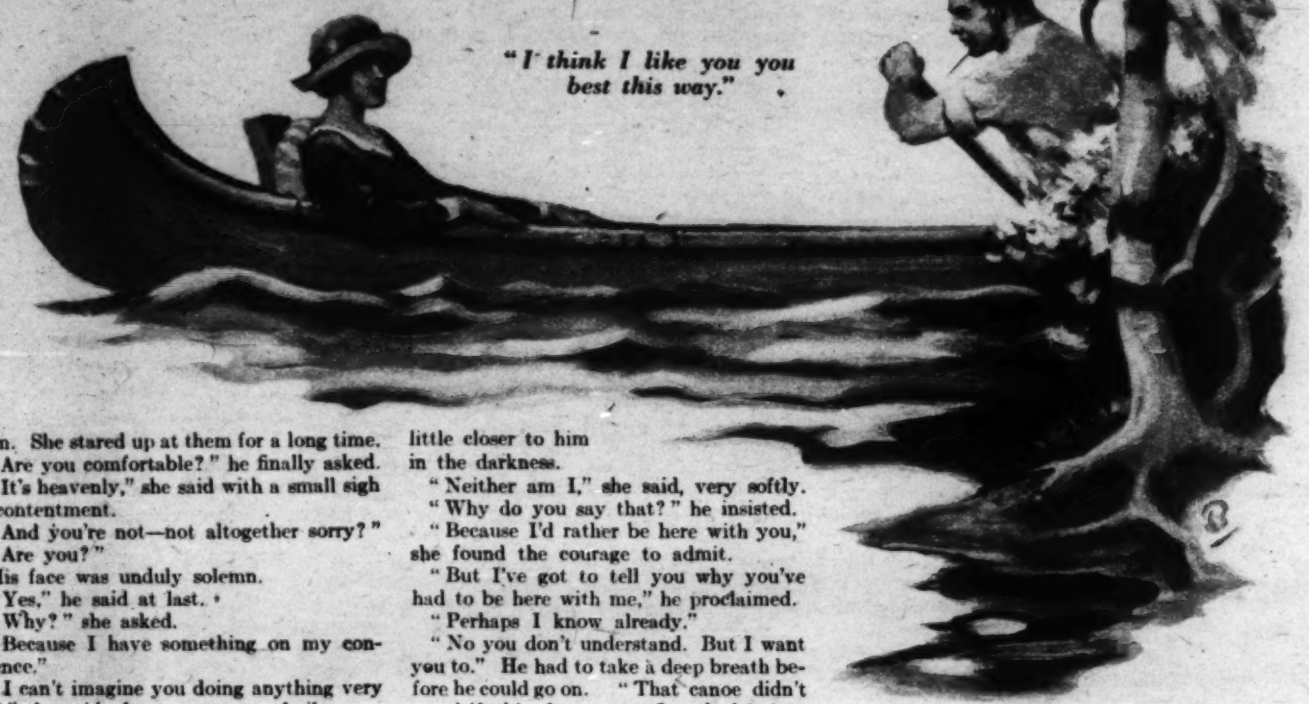
"Then kiss me quick, before they come," she said in an abandoned small whisper.

He gathered her in his arms and held her close, with her upturned lips warm against his own.

"You know what this means?" he demanded as the voices calling across the water brought him back to a forgotten world.

"What?" she asked with a little catch in her voice.

"That we'll have to tell them," he said as he faced the approaching lights, "how we belong to each other now."



"I think I like you you best this way."

"Perhaps we won't need to," said the girl at his side.

"Why won't we?" asked Cosgrave, with her hand imprisoned in his.

"Because I warned Kennie this afternoon," she said with quiet candor, "that I was going to set that canoe adrift. But you didn't give me the chance, this time, of being the outlaw. And that's why I feel there's still some hope for you!"

THE KING by Gene Markey

IT WAS late afternoon, during the racing season at Havana. Out at the Jockey Club a certain horse named Strawberry had won by two lengths, and I, having profited thereby, entered Jolly Joe's Bar in a mood of pleasant, if thirsty exultation. The place was thronged with a motley assortment of sailors, Cubans, tourists, touts and bookmakers, and I found myself sharing a table with an unshaved man in a soiled, tattered linen suit. It seemed only courtesy to offer to buy this unkempt individual some sort of refreshment.

"Thanks," he smiled wanly, "I'll take a beer."

"Bring me," said I, "a gin rickey." And the waiter departed.

Instantly I beheld a strange expression cross the face of my chance companion.

"Funny thing," he mused, "your orderin' that gin rickey. . . . I don't suppose you realize you're buyin' a drink for royalty."

"Royalty?" I repeated in amazement.

"O, I'm perfectly sober, all right." He grinned, and leaned forward over the table. "A year ago today I was a king. You may not believe it, seein' me now—but I was. A king!"

"How," I queried politely, "did you lose your throne? Revolution?"

"Hell, no. Prohibition!"

The waiter had brought our drinks.

"I can't look at a gin rickey," continued my royal friend, "without thinkin' of it. 'S a curious story. . . ."

I assured him that I should be delighted to listen to its narration.

"TWO years ago this June," he began, after a preliminary sip of his beer, "I shipped aboard the steamer Ella Jones, out of Frisco, bound for Australia with a cargo of grain alcohol. Well. . . . somewheres between Honolulu an' the Marquesas we run into a typhoon one night, an' the Ella Jones went to pieces on a reef.

"Next mornin' the storm had cleared, an' the sun was shinin', an' I woke up on a strip of sandy beach. . . . One of them pretty little islands in the South Pacific. I was the only thing that come ashore off that wreck—I an' a dozen barrels of alcohol. But in the same storm a fruit steamer must have gone down, too, for as far as I could look the beach was littered with limes an' lemons.

"Well . . . I crawled up under the shade of a palm tree, an' lay there a while, kind of thankin' my lucky stars I was alive, an' watchin' the sunshine play on the blue water. Out beyond the reef a single funnel showed—all that was left of the Ella Jones—an' I could see three or four shark fins circlin' round it. . . .

"Then all of a sudden I discovered I wasn't alone on that island. First thing I knew, there came a blood-curdlin' yell from behind, an' a platoon of mean-lookin' native warriors surrounded me, all carryin' spears, an' shakin' 'em, an' doin' some kind of a dance-step. I swear they looked like a chorus out of an old-fashioned musical comedy. I laughed.

"But I didn't laugh long. Right away I found out there was nothin' musical comedy about them fellas. They wasn't foolin'. All of 'em chattered at once, shakin' their spears, an' from what I could gather they was tryin' to make up their minds as to whether I'd make a choicer menu as soup or roast. It was a pretty doggone ticklish situation.

"An' as I stood there shiverin', just ready to fall down an' say my prayers, my eye lit on some bushes growin' close by. Juniper berries! An idea hit me right between the eyes.

"'Hold on, gents!' I hollers out, 'Wait a minute—I want to show you somethin'. Heap big magic!' They all looked at me kind of funny. I could see the word 'magic' got 'em. 'Heap big magic,' I says again, an' made funny signs with my fingers. Well . . . they put down their spears.

"So I got a stay of execution, an' with the whole hungry mob standin' round, I set to work. First I picked some juniper berries, an' opened a barrel of alcohol. Then I rigged up a little heatin' apparatus. What? Sure you can guess. I distilled synthetic gin right before their eyes!

"Next I run down an' collected a hatful of limes off the beach, squeezed 'em, an' in no time at all I set up gin-rickeys for them bozos—the first they'd ever tasted. Did they like 'em? Did they? Say! Two hours later they crowned me king of the island.

"Well . . . it was pretty soft for me from then on. You prob'ly never been king of an island in the South Seas? No? Then you got no idea what high livin' is. Two dozen wives I had; two dozen of the sweetest, most beautiful creatures that ever—but I mustn't start talkin' about 'em. It always makes me homesick. Ah, them was the happy days for fair. . . .

"They sure had some wonderful customs down there. For one thing—no divorce. If a man got tired of his better-half, he just sent her home to her mother. An' she went! Leavin' the happy husband free to pick another bride. You can see how that simplified matters. Then, too, there wasn't such a thing as a profiteer. Chopped their heads off, the people did. Profiteer's life wasn't worth a dime. No landlords down there, neither. The last landlord on that island was clubbed to death in 1902.

"Well . . . you can imagine how everythin' was for me. I made the laws, commanded the army, an' mixed the drinks. I was the whole works. An' maybe you think I didn't enjoy life. Nothin' to do all day but sit in the shade, under the palm trees, an' consume gin-rickeys. . . .

"The nights, though. Ah, the nights was best of all! Big round tropic moon up over the palms, an' me in a rockin' chair out in front of my straw palace, smokin' a long cigar (them natives made better cigars 'n you can buy in Havana!), surrounded by my two dozen beautiful wives, listenin' to music. An' how them subjects of mine could play! They had a jazz all their own that was better than—why, say, there ain't a jazz orchestra in New York could touch 'em! An' every few minutes the palace servants 'ud bring out trays of fresh gin-rickeys.

"Then the dancers 'ud come on. . . . My own troupe of South Sea dancers. (You never saw such women in your life—not even in the Follies!) An' they'd dance for me in the moonlight. . . . Hot dog!"

He gulped his beer feverishly, as if the memory of the dancers were particularly disturbing.

"Talk about the lure of the South Seas! Ah, that was the life."

HERE the king sighed deeply, and a look of melancholy overspread his gaunt countenance. For a time he was silent, and the unromantic clamor of Jolly Joe's Bar broke in upon us.

"And so," I prompted, "you reigned happily on your island until——"

"Ah," he sighed again, "into every paradise there comes a serpent. That idyllic existence of mine went on for nearly a year . . . Until one night another terrific storm shook up the old Pacific, an' a steamer hit the reef, an' pounded to pieces an' went down with all on board before mornin'.

"I say 'all on board'—I mean, almost all. Long about daybreak I took a stroll down clause or a comma in one that is not in the other. You still look upon it as a fool thing?"—curiously.

"Yes. But as I'm something of a fool myself," said Bancroft, "it doesn't matter."

"A young fool! Don't make any mistake, Mr. Bancroft. There is nothing else so glorious as a young fool. If I could be young again, I'd be a fool with all my heart. We don't go forth with lance and shield any more; but we go forth with the same spirit, a bag of tools hanging from the shoulder, or a painter's brush, or a writer's pen, in the pocket. Life is, has always been, and always will be, a quest. Read them over carefully."

Bancroft did so, studying the documents word for word, comma for comma, and found them identically the same. It was an ordinary agreement between the Great Adventure Company and whoever signed it; there were no flourishes, no rodomontades; a document of less than five hundred words, as unvarnished as anything Lawyer Snell could have produced. All the bombast began and ended in the prospectus. Not typewritten, but printed upon a single sheet of paper known as vellum, imitation sheepskin. . . . "It is also herein stipulated that the party of the second part absolves completely the party of the first part from all untoward accident or mischance." . . . There it lay, thought Bancroft. All untoward accident or mischance. This man could kill him and this document would absolve him; partly, at any rate. And yet it was perfectly logical that this clause should be inserted. If there was a trick, a menace, what, in God's name, did the man want of Collingswood Jeremiah Bancroft?

He returned to the desk. "Which one do you wish me to sign?"

Silence, save that from the adjoining room came the conventional clatter of the typewriter. So it goes. In all great moments, some matter of ordinary daily routine intrudes, upon the eye or upon the ear.

"Whichever one you please." Stewart pressed a call-button on his desk. The clatter of the typewriter ceased, and the woman appeared. "Go across the hall and ask Mr. Dornan to come in with his notary seal."

"Yes, sir."

Stewart then arranged the two contracts upon the desk so that only the dotted lines were visible. "You understand the reason?"

"Yes. It is not necessary that witnesses should know anything of the body of the contract."

Twenty minutes later the room was cleared of the witnesses, and the party of the first part and the party of the second part were once again alone together.

"The adventure begins," said Stewart, his eyes merry. "Recollect? You'll be peering into alleys, areaways; you will enter your room at night, cautiously. If a man stares at you, your wonder will be set in motion. You will have a good deal of fun from now on."

"Battle, murder and sudden death!" said Bancroft; and he laughed. The psychology of it was this, that all the nervousness, the unruly pulse, the bewildering questionings had been energized by the approach to the act; the act committed, all his native courage was flowing back into his heart. "I shall not ask any questions."

"That is wise, for I should refuse to answer them. I would not rob you of an atom of the fun that lies before you. From this hour you will begin to live in thrilling suspense. Everything now will have an interest unknown hitherto: walls, doors, windows, faces, sounds. It may break tomorrow; it may not break for weeks; and so the suspense will grow. Young man, I envy you. Now I shan't see you again until you return to make the final payment."

Once more Stewart's hand went out, and a shadowy smile touched his lips; but it was a smile no one but he himself could interpret. This time Bancroft wrung the hand sturdily, as if to prove that he, too, was strong.

Again in the street, the inclination to laugh seized him. But he sensed the danger of it in time, for, if loosed, it would be nothing more nor less than the laughter of a madman. He had done it! He had put his signature to a crazy thing like that! . . . "Untoward accident or mischance!" As the desire to laugh subsided, another took its place, equally the notion of a madman: to tear at his hair. Battle, murder and sudden death on the one hand, and innocent if exciting foolery on the other! . . . And not to know which!

With the other madman there was not such need of control. He became the embodiment of fury. He looked about for something to rend, crush, pulverize. Daring not to tear apart the chair, to turn it into kindling, which would have satisfied the craving, he picked up a cigar and ground it to powder between his palms. Fourteen years! Fourteen years! This young fool! —trying to match a boy's wit against his! He broke into laughter.

As he walked toward Broadway, the atoms of hysteria began to readjust themselves in Bancroft's mind, which once more became a normal thinking apparatus. It occurred to him as a first rate notion to buy one of those magnifying glasses such as near-sighted readers employed. With the careful scrutiny of the biologist, he would go over the contract. There would be a flaw somewhere, but beyond the discernment of the unaided eye. So he searched for an optician's sign, found a shop, and made the purchase of a glass.

What next? Should he go armed? He decided at once against this. There was always the fear of being overexcited: he might shoot at the wrong time and injure some innocent bystander. For a while, anyhow, he purposed to depend either upon the skill of his fists or upon the fleetness of his feet. He was never going to let a foolish pride interfere with his running abilities. An actual danger, visible, he would not hesitate to face; but a hidden one, with no knowing from which direction the thunderbolt would come, or when, that was a matter for discretion and not for any foolhardy valor. It was all dark, and he had no conception of what lay within this darkness.

Instinct. All his acts were based upon nothing that he had seen or read or heard; something primordial, perhaps; a reversion to the days when his hairy ancestor listened to the wolf's long howl in the night. It was not actually paid Kennedy in full, nor Johnson's dramatic conclusions, nor his father's queer existence, nor yet this man Stewart and his absurd company; it was something innate, within himself, elusive, that had inspired his conduct. Instinct, the surviving animalism in the human being.

He knew now exactly what he was going to do. He would use all the acumen he possessed to evade, to nullify, this contract with the Great Adventure Company. He would keep to crowds and lights. If he received any mysterious notes which would serve to lure him into quiet places, he would ignore them. There would be in all this a species of hypnotism; but it was well known among the savants that the rebel mind could not be successfully overcome. He was beginning to admire his well stocked brain; it was comfortable to know that he could think clearly.

This complacency, however, was of short life. Suddenly out of nowhere Irony jabbed him painfully in the metaphorical short-ribs. He had been hypnotized!—and the man Stewart had accomplished the feat! Stunned, he stopped midway in the street, and was nearly run down by a taxi, whose driver was a master of invective; but his verbal accomplishments were sorely wasted in this instance. Bancroft ran for the curb, automatically, practically blind and deaf to all things but one, that he had been hypnotized. He knew that the sleep-walking phase was generally a hoax, but that any human being might become hypnotized by a suggestion, as he now discovered himself to have been.

When he arrived home he was in a humble state of mind. For the second time that day the knowledge of his youth bore down upon him.

He set the table under the lights, got out the contract, and began the study of it through the magnifying glass. He studied it from all angles, upside down, from right to left, close to the lamp; but the contract remained what it was, a clear, concise agreement between Daniel Stewart and Collingswood Jeremiah Bancroft. The first agreed to furnish a series of episodes "herein called the adventure"; and the second agreed to pay ten thousand dollars, one thousand upon the signing of the instrument and nine thousand upon its fulfillment.

"Herein" and "Whereas" and "Wherefore" took the likeness of demons, pricked and jabbed and pummeled him far into his dreams that night.

Meantime, he saw with dismay that it was after nine o'clock. He had missed his dinner and Nancy's first entrance, and had, up to this moment, forgotten Jenny's party in Foster's studio at midnight. So he dressed; and forgot things, mislaid his razor, couldn't find his comb, forgot to change his shoes, lost a shirt stud under the bed, but attacked each problem with philosophical quiet.

His wallet, containing the emeralds and seven thousand odd in currency, he slipped into the inside pocket of his waistcoat.

At last he went into the street, his fedora hat wrong-end-to.

The street was deserted; it always was at this time of night. He started off briskly toward the elevated. When he had gone a hundred yards, he stopped abruptly and wheeled. The street was still empty. No one was following him tonight, anyhow. He came to an alley, and hurried across the gap. No; that would never do. Soon he would have jumping nerves if he let every break in the wall quicken his step. So he returned to the alley—black enough for any desperate adventure—and strolled leisurely half its length and back, without encountering anything more active than the odor of boiled cabbage. He laughed; and somehow this laughter set him to rights.

After all, what a big thing for human beings it would be if there really was such a thing as an adventure company! Homely young girls and shy young men brought together: crusty old bachelors and fussy old maids: the forlorn shopgirl and the spectacled clerk. Adventures for the lonely and the unhappy. Why, here was the sweetest philanthropy that had ever entered the human mind. Not this lordly youth, handsome and vigorous; romance and adventure crowded upon them from all directions. But the forlorn and forsaken, the futile dreamers, the wistful: to send them galloping over house roofs, to invest them with harmless if breathless episodes, to thicken their blood and toughen their spines! Some day . . .

There were no seats left when he reached the theater; but he was content to stand.

At ten o'clock The Shadow and Bellman knocked on Stewart's door and were bidden to enter. Their faces expressed nothing beyond the normal curiosity which would attend an order from the Professor to appear at once. Their minds were active enough. Both were convinced that the end had come to "something pretty soft."

Stewart took out two packets of bills. One he handed to Bellman, the other to the youngish man known as The Shadow. Bellman counted his bills carefully, but The Shadow stuffed his into a pocket.

"It's all over?" asked Bellman.

"Yes."

"The boob has signed that contract?"

"Yes."

Bellman laughed.

"The first honest money you two ever earned," said Stewart. "What are you going to do with it? It's none of my business; still, I'm a little curious."

"Well," said The Shadow, "I've concluded to give the straight and narrow the once over. I can buy a half interest in a pool-room on upper Broadway for two thousand."

"Good luck. And what are you going to do, George?" Stewart's eyes were neutral.

"I'll take a whirl at Monte Carlo. I may never get the chance again. I'm rather lucky at games of chance."

"But you never can tell," said Stewart. "Well, good-by, Shadow. Stick it out; it's healthier to be honest. I want a word with George alone."

"Yes, sir. Good-night," and The Shadow went to the door. "Where'll I pick you up, George?"

"At the hotel. I haven't cleared out yet."

"I'll look you up about midnight."

"So long."

The Shadow out of the picture, Stewart rose and stood in front of Bellman, who replied to the sombre inspection truculently. He crossed his legs and began to teeter the upper.

"Well?" he said, at length.

"You're a clever young man," was Stewart's observation.

"I know I am. The Shadow is what you highbrows would call meticulous—timid. He goes away perfectly satisfied, while I look upon this money as a retainer, as the law sharks say."

"I see. You expect to blackmail me out of several more packages."

"Correct."

"I have here," said Stewart, "three letters. One is from the chief executive, one is from the warden at Sing Sing, and one is from the commissioner. The police no longer have any interest in me, my goings or comings. Do you want to read these letters?"

"No. I'm not going to trouble you on that score. I am going to wait and see what your game is with this boy from the country."

"And if I rook him, you'll turn about and rook me."

"Exactly."

"I have killed a man."

"Not in cold blood. According to these letters of yours—and I can guess their contents—you are a free man. After all those years up the River, you're not likely to risk this freedom for the fun of croaking me."

"We learn a lot up there, Georgie. There are a dozen ways by which you could be made to vanish."

"Manslaughter is one thing; premeditated murder is another."

"O, I shan't murder you, Georgie. You are simply going to vanish. You are not going to Monte Carlo."

"O, I am not, eh? And who's going to stop me?"

"I am," said Stewart, gravely. "If you hadn't talked, I shouldn't have known what to do with you, even though I suspected you. Keep your chair; there's no hurry. Clever! You lay all your cards on the table, before such a man as I am, and call yourself clever! Very good. I can send you to Sing Sing, but I'm a fool for tenderness. You shall simply leave the scene of your endeavors—for four or five months. You are going to sea, Georgie, on a square-rigger, and your destination is Cape Town, South Africa. Now, it takes a square-rigger a long, long time to criss-cross the Atlantic. When you return, Daniel Stewart, or the Professor, if you'd rather it that way, will be at his desk as usual, in the office of the Bolivian Emerald Company, and you can tell him all about your wonderful adventure; and it will not have cost you ten thousand, either, Georgie. Ha!—would you?"

Bellman had leapt to his feet and was making for the door; but Stewart was upon him, with cold ferocity. He flung Bellman to the floor and set a knee on the rogue's chest.

"Come along in, men," Stewart called.

From the bedroom issued three bulky persons, with brick-red countenances and vivid blue eyes. Deep-sea sailormen was written all over them. They grinned as they approached. One of them produced a whisky flask which he gave to Stewart.

"Knockout drops, with good honest whisky to disguise the superpoison. For, Georgie, you're going to be shanghai'd as neatly as ever was. When you get aboard, step lively; the first mate is a roughneck. Now, then!"

Bellman fought for awhile; but it was either swallow or smother. Half the pint was forced down his throat, then he was bound and a handkerchief tied across his mouth. For a space he twisted about on the floor; but the chloral was too potent, and presently he relaxed.

"Unbind him and take him away," Stewart ordered. "And remember, no brutality. Make him toe the mark, but don't beat him up beyond what is normal. There may be the makings of a man in this poor thing. Give him his chance."

"Yes, sir."

The three sailors hoisted Bellman to his feet, and they shifted his weight among them so that he had the appearance of over-indulgence rather than of insensibility. They bundled him into a taxi, which at once set off at something over legal gait.

Then Stewart set upon his reading table some absorbent cotton and a small bottle of colorless liquid. Next, he pinned the Great Adventure Company contract tautly upon a small drawing-board, and began carefully to wash away the body of the document. It vanished magically under the gentle application of the cotton. In the end there was nothing left on the sheet but the autographs of the witnesses and the signatories and the notary's seal, which was, naturally, an impression.

"Because the situation demands explanation?" she quietly inquired.

"No; because I want you so much," he just as quietly told her.

"How much?" she asked.

"More than I can ever tell you," he said. She started to laugh, but it ended in a sigh.

"I'm afraid you're only trying to make the best of a bad bargain," she protested.

He added fresh fuel to the coals before he spoke.

"There's only one thing that keeps this from being the happiest night of my life," he told her as he sat down, with the fire between them.

"What is that one thing?" she asked, staring up at the star sparkled vault of heaven.

He acknowledged that it was.

"And those lights along the water?" she asked a moment later. "What are they?"

He swung around and stared out over the lake. Then his heart sank.

"That must be the Wolcott launch," he listlessly admitted. "Yes, there's her searchlight! And she's heading directly for us!"

The girl threw off the camp blanket and close, with her upturned lips warm against his own.

"You know what this means?" he demanded as the voices calling across the water brought him back to a forgotten world.

"What?" she asked with a little catch in her voice.

"That we'll have to tell them," he said as he faced the approaching lights, "how

Scientific Salesmanship May be All Right for Selling Goods, but How About Winning a Wife?

THE speaking stopped. The eight guests in Kitty Nast's apartment stole a last furtive sip from their glasses, dabbed hastily with serviettes, and then settled down in an air of expectancy as Henry Carter prepared to speak.

One always expected something good, something with a punch in it, from Nick Carter. He was named "Nick," you see, after the famed novelist. Some jokester saw the connection. It was inevitable.

"Fellow eaters," said Nick, in his ever attempted droll fashion, and paused. A titter. "You all know I am a salesman. I drip salesmanship. In business hours I've sold each one of you something, and that's not all. I'm going to sell you again. Get that! I'm going to sell you again.

"But that's not why I'm here. I'm here to tell you about the biggest sale old Nick Carter ever put over in his life. It is a sale that kept me plugging night and day. It took sand and grit, and, if I do say it myself in shrinking modesty, I stuck at it and sold my prospect."

Another pause while Nick Carter drained a glass of water with the flourish that only the seasoned after dinner speaker has. There was some wonder on the countenances of his listeners. Into each other's faces they looked for an explanation, and, finding none, returned their attentive gaze to him. He told them.

"My biggest sale, my friends, is this. I've sold myself to Kitty Nast. We're to be married. It was hard work, with my handicaps. (Dignified laughter.) But I knew I could do it, and in the final analysis I proved that my theory was sound."

From the eloquent Carter the diners grouped around the table turned their attention for a moment to Kitty. Her expression was puzzling in the extreme. She smiled prettily and covered her confusion, but through it all there was the giddy whirl about her head as if she had been struck smartly with a tack hammer.

Kitty counted ninety-nine years as they went by amid a babble of conversation and scraping chairs. She found herself smiling and shaking the hands of those who pressed about to congratulate her. Thoughtfully, the guests took their departure, and when Nick had let the last out the atmosphere began to clear somewhat.

She looked at him in amazement. He pulled a chair up close to her own and grinned broadly. Nick appeared to be quite satisfied with himself, with her, and with the way things were going. He made no attempt at explanations.

"Whatever possessed you," she at last asked with brittle severity, "to get up there and make that foolish talk? Are you out of your head, or am I? O, I never have heard of such a thing. When did I ever promise to marry you? When did you ever ask me? Is this a practical joke, or just what is it all about?"

Nick made no effort to hurry his answer. He drew out a sleek cigar, cut its end, lit it, and looked circumspectly at the lighted tip to see that it burned straight after the first puff. Then he drew out his gold pencil and began scratching figures on a slip of paper—a little trick of his that he knew carried a certain amount of conviction with it.

"All right, I'll tell you. I'm a salesman, as I've said. I think salesmanship is the biggest thing in the world today. If you're not altogether 'sold' right now you will be when I finish outlining my reasons.

"I've sold men that other salesmen considered hopeless. I've bucked up against every kind of odds and difficulties and came out on top. It began to look like the game was getting tame. I longed for new fields to conquer, as they say. It dawned on me that the acid test of direct selling would be to get me a wife.

"All right. Instead of coming on bended knee with a mouthful of pretty phrases, I decided to win you with twentieth century methods—with salesmanship. There you are."

He patted her hand in an affectionate, careless way, and without questioning the success of his coup relighted his cigar. If Kitty were "sold" it was doubtful on the surface.

"You're way up ahead of me," she protested. "I don't exactly see your point. If you were trying to 'sell' me, as you say, why didn't you concentrate on me instead of convincing those eight people without letting me in on our engagement first?"

Nick moved his head from side to side and made a clicking noise with his lips. He smiled, although it annoyed him to have to explain so much on a thing that was so obvious.

"Maybe this will make it more clear," he said. "When I was just a kid I got the salesmanship bug in a circus. I watched a vendor going among the incoming crowds and selling ornate programs at twenty-five cents each. He had brains, that boy had. When he'd see a young couple coming his way he would hand the girl a program with a polite bow. She, thinking it gratis, would accept with thanks.

"Then he would touch her escort on the shoulder and point out that it was twenty-five cents. In every case the girl would attempt to hand it back, but the young man with her, not wishing to appear cheap, would persuade her to keep it and then would pay the vendor. I thought it was pretty slick."

Kitty's eyes opened their widest. She was amazed and her voice showed it.

"But how does that psychology—I guess you'd call it psychology—apply itself here?"

"I just calculated that you would be less apt to refuse before so many onlookers. The psychology is that most of us try to avoid scenes. It not only would have embarassed me, but would have created quite a turmoil had you sprung to your feet and denied it. I knew you would not do that."

"But don't you think that that's taking an unfair advantage?"

"It was on the part of the circus peddler, but not on my part, because all's fair in love, war, and salesmanship. Sell your man. That's the main idea. Listen here, old girl. You know I've liked you for a long time, I know I can make you happy. It just amazes you because you've never heard of any one resorting to my methods in courtship. Let's consider it all settled now."

"But just one thing more, Nick. Did it ever occur to you that I have a mind of my own? Did it strike you that there might be some one else?"

He smiled confidently.

"Certainly it did. But my job was to make your mind run along beside mine. As for the other, I knew you were a little thick with Jimmy Haddon, but I can't say I've ever noticed that you were madly in love with him. I just looked on his chances and mine as about fifty-fifty. I didn't think you loved him, and I took it for granted you loved me. It's what you take for granted that gets you somewhere in salesmanship."

That was just like Nick. He took everything for granted. Evidently he considered the case as one wherein his brain, by pure dynamic impulse, had mastered her own and made her his fiancee. Nick Carter confidently believed that he could overcome any one's objections to anything and sell him. Doubtless he had plans made for selling Satan patent flues and things, or St. Peter Jiffy Shine-Brite for the golden stairs, depending on where destiny took him.

Nick lived, breathed, and ate salesmanship. He sold everything. Insurance was his mainstay. It brought him his greatest revenue. Every one was a prospect to him. He could almost sell insurance to statues. When breaking in he used to stand before Rodin's "The Thinker" in Washington park and talk the law of averages and other life insurance data to that thoughtful bronze for practice.

When Nick Carter went into a man's office it was a good wager that he would sell that man something. Nick had many "lines." He always began on life insurance. If that got him nowhere he would not leave until he had an order for the quick windshield wiper for which he was exclusive agent in his territory, for an appliance that took the scratch out of phonograph music, for his wonderful fire and burglar alarm, or for an encyclopedia that told how many prairie dogs roamed Nevada in 1920 and just what Alexander von Humboldt had accomplished in this world.

The pity of it was that his prospects did not know Nick. If they had they would have bought something at once, before he loosened his torrents of facts on them. None escaped him.

He considered Shakespeare a good sort of chap in his way and made certain allowances for Dryden and Goethe, but confined his reading to such practical literature as "From $30 a Week to $50,000 a Year. Sam Priest Did It. Why Can't You?" and "Selling as a Science" and "Sales-O-Grams." Long ago he had been sold on the theory that business was a science, fun, sport.

The words that opened barred and studded doors for him were: Stamina, action, enterprise, direct selling, personality, service, more service, spirit of service, final analysis, success through service, stability, playing the game, and, again, service.

Nick Carter never blundered in on a prospect and tried any old method of salesmanship. He studied them. He knew by the crow's feet at their eyes and the slant to their chin whether they were in the market for twelve volumes on "Fifty Famous Authors" or some of the goo that one daubs on the shoes to keep rainwater out.

Kitty hadn't had a chance, then. He had sized up his prospect, to put it that way, indexed her weak points, and subjected her to high pressure methods. He had waited for the psychological moment and decided at her little dinner party that that moment had arrived. Some day—when he got time—he would write a book on how salesmanship could be applied to courtship. Big market for that.

With the same confidence that he had announced their engagement Nick took his departure. With another pat on the hand he bid Kitty good evening, never asking whether or not she were "sold." He took it she was.

The first mail delivery in the morning brought Kitty what Nick Carter would have called his "follow-up letter." It was written in the terse phraseology that convinces you that your $10,000 of life insurance is not enough, that you should and must have $25,000. It was freckled with hyphens. Nick believed that in the frequent use of the hyphen there was much punch, much individuality, much psychology. It sort of drove the facts home with a whu-u-sh! Picking her way through the dashes, Kitty read:

Miss All-I-Have-to-Live-For—

Ben Franklin said—'Doest thou love life? Then—do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of,—

Those are my sentiments—Let's squander no time—Let's do it NOW! To delay is to fail. Jump into your roadster—NOW—and motor out to Ferguson. That's 30 miles out on the north and south road—We'll elope. To elope shows ACTION—

Meet me at noon in the town hall. We'll get our license—Then to the parson—That's all—

Come on, dear old girl—Don't be afraid to burn up the gas—

In the nick of time, NICK.

At that moment Nick Carter was burning up the road to Ferguson in his own car. Apparently he did not come by to get her because he didn't wish it to appear that he was kidnaping his bride. It was giving her a chance to back out if she desired. But he was not expecting her to back out.

He reached Ferguson at 11 o'clock, an hour too soon. That was another of Nick's points in salesmanship. Never be late. He never was. As the hands of the clock flirted nearer and nearer noon he paced up and down before the town hall, watch in and out of hand.

It occurred to him that it would be funny, after all, if Kitty backed out and didn't put in an appearance. He dismissed the idea with the reflection that if she did there were other prospects. Nick wasn't so intent on marrying Kitty as he was on "selling" her. He made up his mind right there that he was going to win a woman by salesmanship if he had to make a canvass of all there were on earth.

There came a roar of a motor up the road. His straining eyes descried Kitty Nast's roadster, showing the pavement how to take a joke. There was some one with her. Perhaps that should have been written: Curses! There was some one with her.

Yes, it should have. The some one was Jimmy Haddon.

"Ah," chirruped Nick as he helped her to alight. "Thoughtfully brought along a witness, did you? Howdy, Jim, old fellow. Glad to see you. Shake. Come on Kitty. Let's go."

There was that look in Kitty Nast's face of one who is on the brink of performing a painful duty.

"Nick," she said, "I've already gone. Jimmy and I were married in the last town we came through."

Nick Carter's amazement demanded an explanation.

"You see," she continued, "you brought me books on salesmanship from time to time. I don't know why. I haven't anything to sell. Let me see. There was 'Hitting It Up on High' and 'Are You a Self-Starter?' and 'Jes' Pluggin'' and 'Grit.' Last week I gave them to Jimmy to drop into one of these charity hospital boxes on the street corner, but he took them home and read them and became a sort of salesman himself. In fact, he sold me."

In an instant Nick's disappointment, if he were disappointed, had changed into intense interest. He didn't like to see any one get ahead of him.

"What method did he use?" he asked.

"Why, he came on bended knee. I like that old fashioned salesmanship."

"Yes?"

"And he said, 'Kitty, I love you.' You forgot that, you know, Nick. You put your stuff across with a rush, but you forgot your best closing argument. I call it bum salesmanship."

Nick made a note of that, probably for his book on "Salesmanship as Applied to Courtship."

"Well, I'm going to sell you something before I'm through. Jimmy, congratulations and everything, and just as soon as you settle down I'm going to interest you in some real estate that's the best location for a bungalow you ever saw. You'll need life insurance, too."

As Mrs. Jimmy Haddon seated herself down, down in her low hung roadster, she called back:

"Sorry, Nick, that you wasted an entire morning out here when you might have got a few prospects in town."

"I didn't waste a minute. I sold the sexton in the graveyard a new bell that will be delivered in two weeks. That's not all. I sold the city registrar an adding machine. Benjamin Franklin said——"

"Yes. But as I'm something of a fool myself," said Bancroft, "it doesn't matter."

From the bedroom issued three bulky persons with brick-red countenances and vivid blue eyes.

I've given you hold? What I am about to sign, circumstance is forcing me to sign. Nothing can dissuade me, Mr. Snell. If you won't take charge of this, I'll have to trust to strange lawyers."

"It's debatable whether it will hold or not; but this firm can back you in court, and my testimony would have weight. What, in heaven's name, boy, are you intending to sign?"

"I can't tell you."

"Does it concern your father?"

"I don't know, but I suspect it does. I'm in the dark, the same as you are."

"Something you've discovered that touches Johnson's tale?"

"I haven't discovered anything; I only hope to."

"Well, I'm tinker-damned! You'll sign this document, whether I protest or not?"

"Yes, sir." Bancroft began to show signs of weariness.

"Very well. I'll have this typed and witnessed."

"I shall want a copy."

"That, too. If you are determined, why, there's nothing but a wise old man's advice. When you've signed this damfool thing, bring it to me."

"I can't do even that, sir. Because on the face of it, it is a damfool thing."

"A contract of any kind, signed by you and properly witnessed, is active in law. The witnesses need know nothing of the content. They are witnesses that you signed without being forced, that you are apparently in your right mind; of which I have my doubts. Boy, some crook may take everything you have away from you!"

"No. I shan't sign anything that promises to do that. But this instrument, as you call it, of mine will tend to nullify what I sign?"

"If you can prove that you were coerced. I don't like it at all," said Snell, vehemently.

"Neither do I," Bancroft agreed; "but I'm going through with it."

Snell pushed a button, and to the clerk who answered the call he said: "Have this typed twice and return to witness them. And no comments. Bring the notary seal."

"Yes, sir."

After Bancroft had carefully put his copy of the astonishing instrument into his wallet, he held out his hand to Snell.

"It sounds and looks crazy, I know; but I've got to have it settled, one way or another, for peace of mind. I'll tell you this much. It's only an instinct, and I don't believe I've voiced the notion to myself. I feel that there is in this world a man who hated my father bitterly, terribly; and I've got to find out why, if my father was the honest man you say he was."

"He was the honestest man I knew."

"You see, then, I've got to go on."

"Since it is for your father's sake. And God go with you! And remember, I'm always here to back you up in anything you may do," and Snell put his hands upon Bancroft's shoulders and gently pushed him toward the door.

IT was a long day. Bancroft spent some of it riding the busses up and down Fifth avenue, some of it in the public library, some of it on the park benches. It was exactly four o'clock when he opened the door of the Bolivian Emerald Company and entered the outer office. It was like any other office —a typewriter girl and an elderly bookkeeper behind a grille. Maps and diagrams hung from the walls. He was quite astonished at the steadiness of his nerves; it had been whiling away the time that had irked him and made him fidgety.

The typist—middle aged and kindly of countenance—came to the gate and inquired what his business was.

"I have an appointment with Mr. Stewart."

"Are you Mr. Collingswood?"

"Yes."

"Go right in; Mr. Stewart is waiting for you." She indicated the inner door marked private.

Bancroft opened this and stood on the threshold . . . of he knew not what! Battle, murder, and sudden death—or tomfoolery. That was the madding part of it. Suddenly he felt himself profoundly young and inefficient.

"Come in and draw up a chair, Collingswood," said the emerald merchant.

Stewart held out his hand, which Bancroft took with open embarrassment. The hand was warm and dry and powerful. But, behold!—the man smiled! There was mockery in the smile; but it suggested to Bancroft old Professor Miller's smile when the pupil marched boldly into some mistake he should have known better than to make.

On the desk, which was a roller-top, lay a heavy automatic. Stewart patted it.

"Bandits; you never know where they'll turn up next," explained Stewart. "But I never carry more than three or four thousand dollars' worth of stones. The market gobbles them up as they come. Just a moment, and I'll show you some of the stones."

He opened the safe and returned with a tray of tissue paper packets. He unfolded one of these packets and displayed a score of beautiful green stones that made Bancroft recall the bottom of the trout stream at home.

"Green things, eh?" said Stewart. He shifted the stones, using a small pair of metal tweezers. "Half-carat stones. I employ two cutters, Amsterdam experts; but where they live is known only to me. Look nice, wouldn't they, on the white flesh of a young woman's arm? By the way, did you find your umbrella at the hotel?"

"Forgot all about it!" Bancroft admitted, still in a daze over the manner of his reception.

"It was a rough night. I had a puncture, halfway to town," said Stewart. "See anything here you like?"

"How much for the lot?" asked Bancroft.

Stewart made some computations on a tab. "Twelve hundred; my price to the market."

"I'll take them," said Bancroft, abruptly. He drew out his wallet and counted out the sum.

"That's a lot of money to carry about, young man"—speaking to cover his astonishment. The boy was actually buying emeralds! He refolded the tissue, and secured it with a rubber band. "There you are, Mr. Collingswood. Does the young lady know what is in store for her?"

"No," answered Bancroft. "But I may offer them, later."

Inwardly he was fuming. For his life, he could not broach the real object of his visit. He was buying these emeralds merely to prolong the interview, hoping that Stewart would give him some definite opening: which Stewart was determined not to do.

"Know anything about emeralds?"

"Nothing."

"Interesting study," said Stewart. "It is properly the green beryl. The oriental stones —those dug up in modern times—are properly a green corundum, often magnificent, and much harder than the true emerald. The difference is in the cleavage. What I mean is, the little lines or angles which resemble cracks. Interested?"

"Very much."

Stewart then proceeded to go into the history of all green stones: which would have entertained Bancroft at any other time.

"Where is this mine of yours?" asked Bancroft, rather desperately.

"Near the Peruvian border; probably a run-out of the lost Spanish mines." Stewart reached into a cubby-hole and drew out a card. "Go to this place to have your stones set. You will not find half so much originality on Fifth avenue at ten times the price. And remember, they look best in platinum."

Twelve hundred, for stones in which he had only a casual interest and which he had not the least conception what to do with! He could not offer them to Nancy; he could not offer them even to Jenny. He would have to carry them about or resell them. He was a cowardly fool!

"I'd like to have a look at that Great Adventure Company contract," he said, almost shouting the words.

"Sh!—not so loud," warned Stewart. "Those two out there know nothing of this side of the business. Are you sure you wish to see it?"

"Absolutely sure," Bancroft declared, suddenly finding himself at ease.

STEWART went to the safe for the document and stored the tray of emeralds. He returned shortly and laid upon the desk a set of documents—two—which were as original as the first perpetual-motion contract, but executed with a far better understanding of human emotions.

"Take the chair over to the window," said Stewart, "and read them carefully. I don't want you to imagine that there will be a

THE STORY THUS FAR

AN adventure for $10,000—this is the bizarre offer made to Collingswood Jeremiah Bancroft, who has just inherited his father's $7,000,000, by Daniel Stewart, who represents the Great Adventure company. Jerry, failing to note the stranger's evil glances, scoffs and then ponders, remembering his own 24 humdrum years, his father's mysterious death—of fright, according to reports—and a memorandum in his father's effects, reading, "Paid Kennedy in full." Then out of the storm comes beautiful Nancy Bowman, an actress, rain drenched and lost. Jerry escorts her to the railroad station and afterward, trailed by agents of Stewart, goes to New York, where he takes lodgings as "Jeremiah Collingswood," a poor youth, in one of his own buildings, only to find Nancy and her chum, Jenny Malloy, also have rooms there. He sends a detective to Bolivia to search for traces of the mysterious "Kennedy," or "C. J. K." Nancy's puppy having been banished by the janitor, Jerry secretly orders his agent to rescind the edict; then he, Nancy, and Jenny start out for dinner and a visit to the cafes. He again meets the seller of adventures and announces he intends to visit the offices of Stewart's emerald company, a prelude to signing the adventure contract.

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT.

Signing the Contract—and After.

BANCROFT discovered a distinguished looking stranger chatting pleasantly with Nancy and Jenny. The stranger was not seated.

"O, Jerry! This is Mr. Craig; Mr. Collingswood," said Jenny.

The two men acknowledged the introduction pleasantly, though there was hidden resentment in both minds. To each the other spelt danger.

"Sit down," said Jenny, affably.

"Is that agreeable to you, sir?" asked Craig.

"Why, certainly, sir," answered Bancroft, uttering his first lie to the altar of social amenities.

"We were talking about Miss Bowman's puppy," said Craig.

"I love all manner of dogs," replied Bancroft.

"In that case you and I can always meet upon one common ground."

Bancroft thought this over carefully. It conveyed the hint that there might be no other common grounds.

"Mr. Craig gave me the puppy," said Nancy.

"And I have not seen him since," replied Craig.

Bancroft could not have explained why, but this statement lessened the tension of belligerent thought. If Craig had not seen the puppy it signified he had not yet called in Ninth street. Still. . . .

"And now I may have to lose him!" said Nancy.

"Mannheim would be glad to keep him in the office at night," suggested Craig.

"But that's just when I want him," Nancy declared. "I'm almost sorry you gave him to me. The only happy person is one who bestows no love upon living things."

"That's the most futile philosophy there ever was," said Craig. "You no more can help loving something than you can deny the air which lets you live. The human being who denies giving love to something is a liar. But we must find some way of protecting Ling Foo."

Bancroft split his apple, which had just arrived. "Won't you join us in something?" he asked.

"No, thanks," answered Craig. "I never eat anything at night. I just wander about, to chat with people I know. I'm one of those who have a horror for beds." He rose.

"Say, Mr. Craig," said Jenny, "don't forget my blowout t'morrow night. Foster has given me his studio for th' stunt. All th' real Bohemes; no long hair for th' men or bobs for th' women. Twelve until three. Lobster Newburgh an' coffee. All th' music th' police 'll permit. Nobody in th' house 'll object because we'll all be there."

"You can count on me," said Craig.

Suddenly he held out his hand to Bancroft, who found the grip warm and friendly, and he knew he was going to like the man, for all that his will was set against liking him. Did he care for Nancy? Did she care for him? Dreadful thought!

"JEREMIAH," said Jenny, as she cracked a ruddy claw, "there goes what we girls call a white man. If you want t' pass in a crowd without knicking your funnybones, watch th' way he does it. Got oodles o' money, but he spends it well. He's an all nighter, but he never stays in one joint more'n an hour. He never goes with his own crowd an' he never goes with ours, but you run int' him everywhere. He drinks hard, but the harder he drinks th' politer he gets. He's as punk—what's th' word?"

"Punctilious?" Bancroft suggested.

"Tha's him. Punctilious as John Drew in act one."

"What's his notion of wandering about?" asked the pupil.

"Wife ran away from him an' got killed th' same night. Suppose he hates t' go home on that account."

"He wasn't drinking tonight, was he?"

"Nope. Sober as a judge—some judges," Jenny modified.

The waiter put the bill at the side of Bancroft's plate. Jenny reached out a hand.

"Dutch treat, Jeremiah."

"Never in this world. You're teaching me something about the night life and naturally I've got to pay. Where do we go from here?"

"Rah, rah!" cried Jenny. She smiled at Nancy, who saw the gamin's jeer.

Bancroft pulled out the $20 bill he had deposited in his vest pocket against the needs of the adventure. Then he took up the bill and ran over the figures.

"Waiter!"

"Yes, sir."

"There's a dollar overcharge here."

"What, sir?" The waiter took the card. "Why, so there is, sir. I must have taken the wrong bill." He hurried off.

Both Nancy and Jenny watched him and saw that he did not approach the cashier's desk, but rubbed out the excess charge, loitered for a moment behind a pillar, then returned briskly. He picked up the treasury note and marched off again.

"Splendid!" said Nancy. "Some one with the courage to refuse to be cheated!"

"Jenny, Jenny," said Bancroft, "I don't believe I'm going to like this night life of yours. Do all the waiters try that?"

"It was a try out. It gets over, nine times out o' ten. Two dollars for a lobster I could get for a dollar at Jack's; 60 cents for three cups o' coffee; a dollar for endives; 50 cents each for th' apples, an' then th' waiter adds his, if he can. It's a great life, if you don't weaken."

"What shall I tip him?" asked Bancroft, now bubbling with fun.

"You ought t' tip him over, but give him 20 per cent o' th' ticket. Then we'll toddle on."

The waiter returned. Bancroft carefully counted the change; then he looked up.

"How much shall I give you, waiter, as a tip?"

"Whatever you say, sir." The gray eyes—their directness—troubled the waiter considerably.

"Would 50 cents satisfy you, considering?"

"Yes, sir." He sighed relievedly. "Considering. Mistakes will happen, sir."

"Even with the best of judges. Take the fifty—and sin no more."

Nancy's laughter rang out. It was the first time Bancroft had ever heard her laugh freely. It was a music comparable with her singing voice.

"Was that all right?" asked Bancroft, uneasily.

"Jeremiah," said Nancy, unconsciously falling into Jenny's method of address, "you're a joy! I wouldn't have missed this comedy for anything. Jenny, you'll have your hands full. But I don't know. That was altogether too smart for a country boy."

And the three of them left the restaurant, laughing freely, as youth alone is permitted to laugh.

The seller of adventures watched them until they passed from view, and the melancholy expression of his eyes remained even after he, too, departed. Youth . . . !

THE next morning Bancroft went late to his breakfast; that is to say, late for him, since he was back in his room at eight-thirty. Mrs. Jansen had tidied it up between times, so the room was habitable. Many things were going to happen this day, and for these he carried a sober countenance; but this sober countenance was, for a minute or two, touched with sunshine. There came a knock on the door, which he opened, to find Nancy. (He never could call her Miss Bowman in thought.)

She was radiant. The beauty of the Madonna was nowhere in evidence. It was the glowing beauty of the Naiad, and the music of fountains was in the voice of her.

"It is wonderful!" she cried. "It has made me so happy! The lawyers have agreed to let me keep Ling Foo. Why, I'd like to run down to their office and kiss them both!"

"They would both probably die of heart failure; for I imagine they must be old codgers. So Ling Foo stays! That's fine. I wonder what that old crab—as Jenny calls him—Jansen will say?"

"I don't care what he says. But I want to thank you."

"Thank me?"—a bit of fright in his eyes.

"Yes—for suggesting that I write a letter. I should never have thought of it, but would have accepted Jansen's dictum as the court of the last appeal. My nerves have been ragged for worrying. Did you have a good time last night?"

"Wonderful! And you?"

"Well, better than I expected. You are very clever."

"Out of books. I am more surprised than you are—that I came through without knocking over something."

She put a finger to her nether-lip, thoughtfully. "Why did you say it would be agreeable to you to have Mr. Craig sit with us?"

"Well, you see, I chanced to remember in time Jenny's advice—that a lie takes you a long way sometimes."

"I wonder."

"About what?"

"If you will always be as you are, if there isn't something hidden away in you."

"There is something hidden away in all of us," he said, gravely.

"O, I don't mean that. I mean, you may have been visiting that village house, and that you are something other than you seem."

"On my honor, I was born in that house, and have lived there all my life. My good fortune lies in the fact that I am not particularly encumbered with 'that petty disturbance of thought, embarrassment,' as an old philosopher put it. But I did not know I could fly so well until I had tried my wings."

She offered her hand, with that compelling smile with which he was now so familiar. He took the hand in his, held it until she drew it back, and let his own hands fall to his sides.

"Do you know, I shouldn't have been surprised if you had kissed it," she declared, whimsically.

"I wanted to; but if I had you would have written me down a liar."

"And why?"—astonished.

"Because it would have set in your mind the notion that I had been accustomed to act like that, that I had lived in a world where men salute women's hands in that fashion."

"I really don't know what to make of you."

"You might . . . make me a friend."

"O, that! I shouldn't be chatting to you in this manner if I hadn't already accepted you as a friend. But I'll always be a little afraid to shake hands with you."

"And I'll always be a little afraid, too—that I might act upon your suggestion."

She gave a startled laugh, turned, and ran back to her room.

As she vanished, Bancroft whispered to the empty spaces of the hall: "Come on, Dragon; come on!"

BANCROFT stopped at Johnson's desk. "How did you like the show last night?"

A touch of color flowed into Johnson's sallow cheeks. "Young man, if she is half as dangerous as she is attractive, I have some fears for your future. I don't suppose it would be of any use to warn you?"

"Not the least use. But always remember, Miss Bowman doesn't know that I have any money."

"And you'll be the last to give her hints about it, I suppose!"

Bancroft accepted the dig philosophically. However, to justify himself, he recounted the advent of Miss Bowman into his house that stormy night.

"Do you mean to tell us, young man, that she went away without inquiring the name of her involuntary host? A shrewd, clever young woman like that?"

"It's the truth."

"Well, well; my advice to your father's son is to trust not too fully in your pinfeathers. What's to prevent her writing to the postmaster and describing the house?"

"I hadn't thought of that. But I don't think she will, however." He offered his hand.

"I only went there," said Johnson, taking the full warm hand in his dry one, "because of my consideration for you, sir."

"I know it. Is Mr. Snell in?"

"Yes, sir."

Snell greeted Bancroft cheerfully. "Is the pup rescued?"

"Yes." Bancroft sat down at the side of the desk.

"Mr. Johnson tells me he saw the young lady last night."

"And has indirectly pointed out the road to hell. You understand, don't you? I am young, Mr. Snell. For the first time I am free. I can't sit here and count and recount my father's money. I am doubly free, for as yet no one in that house suspects I have these millions. I am to all appearances in modest circumstances."

"I was just chaffing you, boy. You've got to grow; and while you're growing you've got to burn your fingers on stoves and bark your shins against chairs in the dark. All the warnings in the world would not stop you; and I would not have you stopped."

"Still, I'm worried . . . about myself."

"In what way?"

"Why, I've just waked up to the fact that I haven't any ambition to do things. What I mean is, I've no ambition to be a writer, or a painter, or an inventor; and if there was any talent in me, these millions would blanket it. What am I going to do? I don't want to be idle."

"My boy, don't let that worry you. There are many kinds of genius. It took a financial genius to build up such a fortune as your father left you. It will take genius to hold it. But run and play first; it's your right. Throw a few thousand away; and then step into that empty office there and take up your father's work. I repeat to you that the noblest creation on God's earth is an honest rich man."

"As my father was?"

"As your father was."

There was a pause.

"Mr. Snell, I've got something here I want you to read, to see if it is worded right. I shan't listen to any arguments about it. Something that I've got to do."

"Let me see the paper." When Snell had read it through, he cried: "Young man, what the devil does this mean?"

"Exactly what it says there, that anything I sign hereafter, outside of this office, will be due to moral or physical coercion."

"Are you thinking of signing some document? Bring it here, where it belongs."

"That's it; I can't bring it here."

"Well, then, don't sign it."

"But I must!"

"A woman?"

"No, no! But will such a document as

The Marked Down Sale

"But, my dear, think of the price!" Mrs. Volney Jump of Pittsfield, Mass., is attending a shoe sale. She has found a perfectly remarkable line of footwear at 20 per cent off what they were selling at home. The slippers are just a little bit wrong and the shop is just a little bit wrong, and Mrs. Jump will look just a little bit wrong when she wears the new slippers. "But the price, my dear! Think of the price!"

Mrs. Walter Powle, of Brockton Center is about to purchase a pair of ground grippers. Comfort first is Mrs. Powley's motto.

What to expect from shoe salesmen. The young man on the extreme left will hope to die if the shoes you want in a hurry aren't home by the time you get there. Yes, siree! And just to show how much he likes you he'll write "Special" in great big black writing all over the box. Four days later you get the shoes. The tired gentleman in the center is down at the bottom a kindly soul, whose life has been warped by too many lady shoppers who insisted they had been told the shoes would be returnable after a month's wear if they got tired of the baby Louis heels and decided on the Cuban. Truthful outside of business hours. Tells you without a quiver that the shoe will stretch over the instep. It's your instep, not his. The furthest young man is the very grand type. O, but he's grand! "No, madam," he comes back with, "only the cheaper shops carry that line." And then he will look very pained and move away—in a very grand manner.

"Yes, sir." He sighed relievedly. "Considering. Mistakes will happen, sir."

"Even with the best of judges. Take the fifty—and sin no more."

Nancy's laughter rang out. It was the first time Baycroft had ever heard her laugh freely. It was a music comparable with her

"And I'll always be a little afraid, too—that I might act upon your suggestion."

She found again the glow and sparkle of perfect health

Sparkling eyes—vivid coloring—that charm of personality which fairly radiates from a superbly healthy body—

Why do so many women who could possess these natural powers let them slip by?

Health and vigor are normal, not exceptional. Thousands lose them because they neglect the body's two most vital needs:

—Building up the worn-down tissues from day to day.

—Removing daily the poisonous waste.

The fresh, living yeast plant in Fleischmann's Yeast cake, contains a natural food—with the very elements which help the body perform these two vital functions.

Like any other plant or vegetable, yeast produces the best results when fresh and "green"—not dried or "killed." Fleischmann's Yeast is the highest grade living yeast—always fresh. It is not a medicine, it is a natural food. It helps to "tone" up the whole system and assures regular daily elimination. Results cannot be expected unless it is eaten regularly.

Everywhere physicians and hospitals are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast to correct constipation, skin disorders and to restore appetite and digestion.

"And now I never need laxatives"

A business girl writes that the extra work of a busy summer had exhausted her. "I was run down and badly constipated" she says, "and had one boil after another."

For several months she added 2 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast to her diet every day, "the boils disappeared after the first week and now I never need laxatives."

Eat two or three cakes a day regularly—plain, or spread on crackers, or mixed with water or milk. If you prefer, get six cakes at a time. They will keep in a cool, dry place for two or three days. Begin at once to know what real health means. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast.

What woman grieves over these things?

NOT every woman can be a glowing queenly creature with a golden crown and a purple velvet cloak, nor can all of us be dark-eyed, fascinating, temperamental. But what woman of sense grieves over these things when, with a little care and the help of Bourjois' [bourjoe-wah] Java* Face Powder she can maintain the velvety softness of her own natural complexion and at the same time increase and enhance it with the beauty that Bourjois puts into this uncommonly fine old French Face Powder.

ASHES OF ROSES* ROUGE

is a hand-made French Rouge, a shade darker than Rouge Mandarine.* If you like a softer and a more delicate red, use Mandarine; but for a rich, deep red, use Ashes of Roses. Both rouges and Java can be seen in the Bourjois Cabinet Assortment of twelve leading products at your drug store.

THE PERSIAN NOTE STRUCK IN LATE

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—A millinery shop this autumn is a kind of Cook's tour conducting you painlessly into all lands. The dashing tricorne of the Venetian marquis of the eighteenth century; the Hindoo and Persian turban; a beret or Tam o' Shanter such as might surmount the masculine smock of the Quartier Latin; the picturesque sweep of the Velasquez brim an echo of the Amazon style of the Second Empire—all these and more consort together in a strange medley of style.

Perhaps the most spectacular of all these hats is the tricorne. This was a direct result of the Grand Prix ball, with its emphasis on things Venetian. Consequently, the tricorne of the present is a different spectacle from the calculated primness of our continental three cornered shape. The fact of it is that this hat is just as apt to be a bicorne or a quatrecorne as to observe the rule of three. And so moody are the points, whatever their number, that we often have as much difficulty in determining what is a tricorne as we do in determining what is a suit. Sometimes, for example, a point at one side and one at the front are balanced against a back and an opposite side where the brim is rolled stiffly back. Usually points have a wide space between, and there are all sorts of unexpected curves and indentations to relieve the designer from any charge of regularity.

So it comes to us from Paris—this Venetian tricorne—with a coast line as bold and irregular as that of Africa. The favored material used for it is black hatter's plush. Indeed, this material is prominent in all the millinery of fall. Where color is attempted, however, the tricorne is achieved in velvet, and the velvet is apt to be of some shade of brown.

I am showing a conservative model of the tricorne at the extreme left. Here the material is black hatter's plush, trimmed with two plaited and fan shaped pieces of black taffeta ribbon. The veil is gold lace.

But the tricorne is not the only type of millinery with such scenic veils. This item is, in fact, stressed on many of the most successful French models. A frequent appearance of the veil is as a drapery of the crown ending in tabs which droop down over the brim on either side. Another decided point of interest centers about the coquettish curtain-veil—this not quite an inch deep—which is sewed on under the brim perhaps a little distance back and which certainly achieves the most becoming barrage for any type of eyes.

This system of cloistering only the upper part of the face is in direct opposition to the veiling methods of the Orient. But such is our only point of departure. For the draped turban of Persian pattern is with us even more frequently than is the tricorne. I have already spoken at length of this type and so I shall content myself with a mere description of the models on this page which speak of Persian influence.

The most confirmed Persian on the page is the hat worn by the standing figure at the right. Here a crêpe cashmere in pomegranate red, black, and white design is draped over a close fitting band of a plain reddish brown crêpe. As a rule, the feather trimming on such hats stands up straight in front—for all the world like a fountain at work—but here the uncurled ostrich which occurs in shade to match the band droops down over the side. With this is worn a dance frock of hydrangea blue taffeta possessing a circular skirt cut high in front to show a petticoat of gold lace. The note of gold is repeated in the leaves forming the shoulder straps and outlining the decolletage in the back. Gold tissue also alternates with bands of the dress material in forming the twisted belt.

The hat at the left of the cabinet is an orchid felt lined with georgette of deeper tint and draped simply with a handkerchief of Persian design and coloring. The final example of eastern influence on the page is another crêpe cashmere—this in purple and gold tints—which you will find in the center of the cabinet decked with a swish of pheasant feathers.

Brown is simply boiling over in the new millinery, and it includes all the real tones and some of the imaginary ones. Another color much liked by the French millinery is framboise or raspberry, and this is developed frequently in the new and costly changeable velvet, which is one of the thrills of this present millinery season. However, the figure at the left presents this modish tint, not in the new changeable velvet but in duvetyn, which is simply trimmed with a bow of black cire ribbon. This hat forms the completing touch to an autumn gown of framboise crêpe with a draped skirt developed from a new kind of girdle, and black cire satin collars and cuffs.

I could write a whole chapter of Walter Pater prose about these changeable velvets. Those in the violet tones seem to me particularly lovely. When this fabric is used but little outside aid is brought in. Why should there be? It is quite ornamental enough in itself, and consequently we see it most frequently dependent only upon the finesse of draped line for effect. Now and then, too, a flower or a chou or some other device fashioned of the velvet itself completes the model.

On the seated figure at the left we encounter this changeable velvet resigned to some outside influence. Its tint is here almond green, and over the graceful white brim droop black coq feathers tipped in gold. This idea of having feathers with edges and tips of gold and silver is practiced constantly just now. Indeed, the metallic influence is strong in French millinery and, in addition to the gold and silver veils already noted, we find much metallic ribbon, big flowers of gold and silver, and feathers which are not only tipped with but dipped in metal. Also, there is a great deal of aluminum embroidery and of discs in the same ware. The aluminum flowers of some months ago are, thanks be, a thing of the past.

One finds the quaint little directoire poke exploited nowadays at many a smart shop. Also, one sees quite a great deal of suede, and particularly of suede combined with velvet. Both millinery manners are illustrated in the delightful model at the lower right of the cabinet. The top of the hat is wood brown suede with braided self material encircling the crown. Through this is stuck a quill of dark brown velvet, while velvet of an intermediate tone faces the brim.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

GOOD HOUSES OF THIS SEASON.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—This is the season when all visiting delegates are divided into camps and are stoutly taking sides on the important issue of which house has the classiest clothes. Argument runs high as to who takes the palm.

"I don't know whatever made me waste my precious strength on this house," said she who molds the taste of a large area of America, and she shrugged her shoulders as she said so. "Their things are distinctly third class, and that's the way they're considered at home."

But the old dowager who has grown a little stout in the service of coming over here twice a year—she who has flat eyes like a hen—narrowed them in a wise remark over that young thing. Just because a house is considered third class in America one year isn't any reason why it doesn't hop to the first round in France next season, and you have to have individual taste strong enough as well as good enough and agile enough to keep pace with their sinking spells and the quick recoveries they make.

One of the awfully good houses of the season is Premet, who has such smart suits and dresses suitable to put on, whatever your activity may consist of, and wear from day to day.

Even the French themselves seem to be getting fatigued with the terrible irksomeness of changing some four or five times for the different events of a day. Costuming is, on the whole, getting a little less highly specialized as a consequence, and, to use one word to cover, clothes are getting practical for France.

One of the smart things of the year is their leather and mercerized rain suit. Almost every American when she makes Europe for the first time demands to know why in the world they dress you up as if for an exhibition and send you out into one of their well known rainstorms in clothes that dissolve when they get wet. Now they have mercerized crepes—still, to be sure, a little dressy, but awfully smart leather coats, straight and belted, with snug collars, long, straight sleeves, and some of them with capes.

But of all the exhibitions I believe more people select Poiret as having a nicer collection than any one else. I am among those thinking so, and the nicest dress in it to my taste is the first shown herewith. Was anything ever lovelier than that bare shoulder below the neckband and descending under it that long, tight sleeve?

Black velvet evening dress with bodice embroidered in steel beads. | Mary Queen of Scots dress done in black velvet. | Evening dress of silver and blue brocade by Poiret. | Manteau, circular in cut, of beige broadcloth.

The dress consists of a black velvet skirt with a bodice entirely embroidered in jet and cut steel with a look to it a little like armor. It comes into a point in front and carries the nice movement round the low waist—which is equivalent to saying round the hips—Poiret does this on many of his dresses this year. But a gem of art is that round neck, those long sleeves, and that bare expanse of shoulder.

Of course, there are two conceptions of evening dress. You can let the dressmakers get you up into their conception of what you should look like, with a gown grounded on a chemise foundation, the whole conception serving as a background for jewels, or you can make yourself into a type. And this year the smart thing to do is to select yourself a type to go in for heavily. The above is what a great dressmaker does when he makes you into what he wishes you to look like, and he is so progressive as to wish you to represent a type.

The second offering also represents Poiret when he is in the mood for carrying us back into history. This is his famous Mary Queen of Scots dress—so designated by all Americans. It is of black velvet, with long, full side panels, straight, smooth sleeves, and a little standing collar of point lace, repeated on the cuffs.

As a style generalization keep your sleeves as tight as your taste will permit. Small dressmakers are still making them full right here in this style center, but the advance outposts of fashions are showing sleeves tight. The accompanying dress is described as close fitting but not tight. The hat accompanying it is of black velvet, garnished with a biege plume, uncurled.

The third is a lovely evening dress by Poiret, with a bodice edged with fur. How one keeps it on is no concern of mine. It opens on one side. It consists of bands of blue and silver, running horizontally, and the silver is covered with embroidery. The skirt is of blue and silver brocade and it falls in soft folds.

To get down to practicalities, the fourth offering is a manteau which has enormous chic and possesses the additional advantage that it can appear before 4 in the afternoon. Nobody in the world can use yards and yards of material with the ease of Poiret. You can observe for yourself that this wrap is cut in circular folds. It is of biege broadcloth, edged with brown fur round the collar, and the whole point to it is that when it swings it is full of Poiret and proclaims his name and his art.

A great deal of the studding with horseshoe nails is done in designs, and the favorite design is a series of scallops. Sometimes they run up the length of a skirt like an overdress and sometimes edge it like a flounce. The ruffles going round the bottom of many skirts (in the style started by Cheruit) are not among the most popular of the models, for, as everybody in the Mississippi basin can inform French dressmakers, a ruffle round the bottom does not swing prettily unless your gait is exactly suited to it, and it attracts too much attention to the feet.

Belts are suffering an eclipse; many dresses are entirely without them. Of course, if those of a type mentioned earlier, that gather on one side of the waist line, or without them and substitute a false buckle in embroidery where the gathers start. Some belts do not go all the way round but encircle one side of the body from the middle of the back to the center front, leaving the other side free.

A COMPLETE, EXCLUSIVE SPECIALTY SHOP FOR WOMEN

Presenting the Autumn Mode

Quality, individuality in style, more effective use of interesting materials, the newer things and these attractively different—are the ideas back of our Fall Fashion Display. Only a house of exclusive specialists can hope to achieve them.

A Specialty Shop that offers the breadth and variety that can be equaled only by the largest stores, and yet retains its exclusiveness is a unique one. Such is ours. The first as well as the largest exclusive Specialty Shop in the Middle West.

Frocks, Intrinsically Lovely

SO exquisite in coloring, so gorgeous in fabric, the new Autumn frocks are closely allied to the Persian, Egyptian and Spanish influences which have inspired them.

Trimmings are scarcely more than a lovely cabuchon buckle to add a touch of color, braid, embroidery, or fur. When materials desert simplicity they have rich designs and intricacies of their own—brocades, cires, matelasse, gold cloth, and velvets. Even wool materials show a richness of embroidery.

The new silhouette follows the long line. Even though straight, simple and demure by day, it changes into billowly, picturesque bouffancy for evening wear. $45 to $115.

MISSES'—THIRD FLOOR. WOMEN'S—FOURTH FLOOR.

Blouses Linger Long

THE blouse has captured the long waist line, which extends over the hips, and Fashion finds it so suitable as well as so stylish that it will undoubtedly stay. Hand embroidery, with minute beading, plays an important role in the designing. Many of these are copies of Paris models. The prices are $12.50, $15.00, $18.50 and up.

BLOUSES—THIRD FLOOR.

Stevens' Mannish Coats

IT seems that the mannish and English coats have firmly established themselves on the necessity list of the well-dressed woman. We have just received a wonderful collection of Burberry coats, direct from London, and we always have a complete assortment of Hart Schaffner & Marx Man-Tailored Coats. They are made from double-faced English woolens and are wonderful garments for motoring, sports or general wear. $25, $35, $45.

Sports Coats, from $25 to $85.

SPORTS SECTION—FOURTH FLOOR.

Hats Are Charming

OUR French Section is now complete with the loveliest models imaginable, featuring hats of gorgeous materials. Prominent among the new shades are the wood browns now so much in vogue, and the new shade, ember, which is a reddish henna. Prices range from $18.50 to $75.

MILLINERY—FIFTH FLOOR.

Coats—a Way of Their Own

COATS and wraps have suddenly achieved an individuality which is worthy of this important garment in the winter wardrobe. They choose only the most beautiful materials and are marvels in the modern perfection of workmanship and fit. A great number of the winter wraps exhibit gorgeous furs for collars or cuffs. Others depend upon embroidery and stitching, ornamental fastenings and fancy bells for their smartness. In addition to wraps, there are sleeve wraps, blouse effects, coat effects, capes and top coats, and beltless effects. $65 to $275. Fur lined coats, $150.00 to $500.

WOMEN'S—FOURTH FLOOR. MISSES'—THIRD FLOOR.

Suits to Be Popular

THE beauty of the new Autumn suits alone assures their popularity this season. Among the dressy models are many three-piece effects of heavy, luxurious materials trimmed with handsome furs, collars and cuffs, or bands of Fox, Wolf, Squirrel, Beaver and Fitch. There are also plain tailored models, and sports suits. The length of the coat varies from the jaunty hip length to the extremely long model. The skirts are plain, wrap around or draped models. The colors are the varied shades of Brown, Black and Navy. $55 to $225.

1923 • EYEBROWS

by Antoinette Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Hay on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me, have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, enclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The scant and skimpy eyebrow was last sighted rushing madly down 5th avenue in company with an abbreviated skirt, headed, it is rumored, for the warehouse where feminine foibles are mothballed and stored away for a possible future revival or to be forgotten entirely. Hot in pursuit was the ankle length skirt and a pair of brows looking more like nature's own design than they have been seen in many a moon.

One accusation they cannot make against us wimmin is a half heartedness about anything we attempt. When we commit beauty sins, they are not venial. When we reform, we reform all over, as illustrated by the accompanying change of the eyebrow depth with the new skirt length.

If you appear on the street now with a long skirt and a hairline brow you are going to be embarrassed to death, that's all. Nope, the eyebrows must be visible lambrekins for the windows of the soul.

Pruned but Not Plucked.

I went the rounds of the Plaza, the Ritz, Sherry's, and upper Fifth and Park avenues studying faces to substantiate my story of the departed shade (line) and it stands substantiated by the ultra smart and beautiful. Also, I visited several beauty parlors with smart clientele where I found no evidence that massacre had been done there of late to full grown healthy brows.

Some of the observed brows did not look as though they had been put on a reducing diet at all. Fairly weightily they emerged from beneath shaded hat brims. Pruned, yes! But not plucked!

It is reasonable to believe that eyebrows had on their initiation some place in the scheme of beauty. Quite a place—when you think it over, because you cannot consider them necessary to health or of use to any of the five senses, so they must have been intended as a purely decorative touch. I suppose when the first face was made there seemed to be something missing after the eyes and the nose and the mouth and cheeks and chin were all set up—and so the eyebrows were thought of. At any rate, there they are—providing a dash of character, if not yanked out by the roots with tweezers, and an effectively symmetrical line to the face.

1923 Lines Graceful.

I am thankful for the long skirt if it brought back the eyebrow au natural. It may be just coincidental that they came back together, after doing a long term in the aforesaid storage place. For if my memory serves me right, they went out together to make way for the short skirt and denuded brow.

Certainly the 1923 edition of the woman beautiful is a delightful thing to have around the home, with her alluringly graceful lines and the old time rein to the imagination she provides. It follows, too, her dancing is going to be a more pleasing sight for a sensitive eye on account of the restricted skirt width and length. One might be led to believe from all of the signs of beauty and fashion appearing on the horizon that the pendulum has swung a revival of the old fashioned girl in all her feminine glory.

Tweeze Out a Few at a Time.

But whether the skirt goes down to caress your ankles or not, the eyebrows should be coaxed to maturity, for such is the beauty dictum for 1923. There's no reason why you cannot have your own advanced showing, however. If you have two full sets of hair follicles eyebrowing profusely, you may step right up on the stage and bow your own thanks. If they need pruning, stay behind for a minute until that is done. For, of course, no 1923 model will have her brow resembling a garden run to seed. She may get out her tweezers and deftly extract the weeds by the roots. There is a smartly defined line of eyebrow even though they be marked. The outlying follicles may shoot out hairs which, allowed to run rampant, give the same ungroomed look as stray wisps of hair falling over the ears.

For these I recommend the use of tweezers, not the razor, even though it be of diminutive and feminine gender. Tweeze out but a few at a time. Painful? Now, what's a little pain between eyebrows and a lady? It won't be like a gentle massage, to be sure, but I never heard of any one who needed an epitaph after this operation.

Maintaining Improved Line.

If there are stray hairs, noticeably heavy, between the eyes they should be tweezed out, or permanently removed by electrolysis, as they impart a sinister look to the face. The electrolysis is recommended as well for the hairs that have broken loose from the ranks and appear above or below or to the right and left of the regular column. If done efficiently, they should not return. No such guarantee can be given with the tweezers.

If the eyebrows have grown shapeless, instead of presenting a fine arch, and one is ambitious for just the correct thing, I should recommend having the work of reshaping them done by a competent aid, and then utilizing some care in the maintenance of that improved line.

You would be tremendously surprised at the improvement nicely trimmed brows make. And also what a minute's brushing them at night with one of the tiny brushes dipped in vaseline, plain yellow or white, will do. You can train them into shape and if the growth is scant there is no other way to increase it but by the regular application of vaseline nightly. Brush, of course, from the beginning of the hair arch outward.

Now all the little girls and the big little girls who have been presenting eyebrows of threadline texture would better apply this treatment if they would get in the fashion parade the coming season. They have the advantage of thus being able to train the brows from an infantile stage and shape them as they grow, and be grateful for this innovation which will successfully remove that hardness of feature imparted to so many by the bobbed eyebrow.

If the eyebrows are fair, so fair as to be barely visible, and one may trust herself to be reasonable in the application of an eyebrow pencil, use it. But err on the side of a distinct fairness rather than a heavy blackness, else all will be lost in the touch of the world, this mistake imparts. As with rouge, every woman is permitted to indulge if she is able to apply the artifice so that it may not be detected.

REAL LOVE STORIES

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago.

MEMORIES TO TREASURE.

SHE was by far the homeliest girl I have ever seen. And she wasn't the kind whose face was "at times lighted up into more than ordinary prettiness by a beauty that comes from within," but was really ugly. Thick lips, straight, muddy brown hair, watery bluish-green eyes, plus the worst of all blemishes—a bad complexion—were her gifts.

But to counteract her lack of beauty, she had the powerful root of all evil—money. As soon as she could do so, she began to travel, touring America, Europe, and the orient. Occasionally, after a long trip, she would visit her home.

It was on one of these trips that she decided to go down to a little southern town that was unknown save for a large sanitarium. On the way down some little thing happened—a disarrangement of some sort—which made her wish she had a husband to defend her.

She had always contended, and rightly, that a married woman could travel so much more easily than a single woman. She herself had often wished that she had a "Mrs." as a shield, but she had never had even one proposal.

She had been in the village but a few days when she met a man about her own age, a patient in the sanitarium, who had but a few months to live. They became good friends, often spending hours together, reading or talking.

One day she made a business proposition to him. His supply of money was giving out, he had but six or seven months left in which to enjoy life; she had plenty of money, could make him comfortable, and in return could use his name. So they were married. She remained in the town for the sake of appearances, but soon discovered, to her dismay, that she was in love with her husband.

From the day she realized the truth till his death she devoted her whole time to making his life a little happier. They refused to let the future interfere with their joy, and, due to their optimistic outlook, he lived for a year—six months longer than the doctors believed possible.

She still lives in the little town, but she is an old woman, although not much over thirty-five. He has been dead for several years, but she has never resumed traveling. She spends her time doing kind things for patients. Often in the course of the day her gaze wanders to a grave on a hill, but her expression is one of sweet content, for she is satisfied with what life has given her—tender memories of true love.

KNOWING THE MEATS.

THERE are so many ways of getting information about meats, the cheaper cuts and how to use them, the different grades and what to do with them, the prices and the geography of the meat creatures, that it is rather confusing and not easy to tell an inquiring young housekeeper what to do.

In the first place, there are the meat charts. The biggest packers have them and they are wonderfully instructive. Even the advertisements of meats today have better charts than were to be found in the old cook books. And another thing about these charts is that in general a certain cut is given the same name in all the different pictures. Formerly these were given different names by different butchers, and particularly by those east and west, while today the English names are different from ours. Do you know what Canadian bacon is or a Boston butt? You could have quite a travel experience before your kitchen table if that kitchen is so arranged as to accommodate a chair, particularly a chair in a pleasant place. Most kitchens are not, the more is the pity!

By Products Means Economy.

It is said authoritatively that the consumption of meat has fallen off 20 per cent in twenty years, or that was said a year ago or so. In the meantime the big packing houses have done worlds to educate the public in the use of the less expensive cuts, while through the work of highly trained chemists they have turned many a product which was formerly wasted into some expensive medicine, into soap, into fertilizer, into brushes and combs, etc. If they had not done this meats today would cost no one can guess how much.

At the same time the meat packers have established departments of home economics, and the cooks of these departments have developed recipes often working along with the chemists to the perfecting of methods of cooking meat. Anyone may write to these departments and get recipes, charts, booklets on a special meat, etc. A booklet on lamb distributed by one big firm after casual mention here was desired by a considerable number of people.

University Bulletins Free.

Our state universities have many of them done fine work on meats. At the University of Illinois, Urbana, some highly exact work was done in determining the right temperatures to use in roasting beef. The two meat bulletins prepared by their agricultural experiment station have been no end influential. I have good reason to believe that a mention of them in this column started a most influential movement by one of the largest of the packing houses.

The Illinois bulletin No. 153 issued in 1918 has sixty-four pages, with the title "Relative Economy, Composition, and Nutritive Value of the Various Cuts of Beef," and has some wonderful pictures which have been reproduced in one of the school textbooks on foods, although you would never guess it unless you read the preface. I think the information should have prefaced the pictures. The Illinois bulletin No. 147, issued in 1910, with the title, "Market Classes and Grades of Meat," has 143 pages, and most informative pictures.

The United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., has a great deal of literature on meat topics and will send out free those which have recipes and information useful to the housewife.

How to Judge Meat.

A little over twelve years ago at an international meeting of stewards, women were urged to use cheaper cuts of meat than the ribs and the loin so universally called for, and it was pointed out how the bride could tell old meat from young, cow's meat from steer's. The report of what a demonstrator said has this:

"Meat is like cloth. There is a distinct difference in its texture. Old tough meat has a coarse look. Young tender meat of good quality has a fine grained appearance. A good judge of meat can look at a cut and say at once, 'Yes, that's a young steer with a touch of breeding—Angus or shorthorn or Hereford.' You can always tell young meat from old by the bone. In young beef the blood runs into the bone and tints it pink. In old meat it does not. The bone shows hard and white and flinty. Then you can tell a cow from a steer because the cow's bone—in the loin—tends to be flat. The steer's bone is rounded."

Wasting the Marrow.

This information about the bone ought to help any cook if she will remember it. We may find recipes for grilling bones, but the main way of cooking a bone is to make soup of it, although shortrib cookery is good. The ordinary home cook wastes the marrow, although in fine cookery this is made much of. This use forms quite a story in itself. The French cut it in little lozenges, poach it, and use it to garnish a fine vegetable like celery cooked in meat stock. And in the following description of cuts which was given at that meeting of stewards there is mention of how the marrow was used at one of the great men's clubs famous for its meat cookery. The steward demonstrating said:

"Beyond the butt is the rump. This makes a good pot roast, and is a good piece of meat when it is thoroughly cooked. There is one part of the flank lying between tissues, which you can use for a steak, and a very good steak it makes, too. Nick it with a knife a little and cook it well, and you will find it really a dainty morsel, delicate and tasty. In the club where we make a specialty of steaks, we split the fore shank and remove the marrow, which we cook and serve on the side as a dressing for steaks. It makes a delicious dressing.

Pieces for Pot Roast.

Not everyone would agree with this steward about the rump being good for a pot roast. Many butchers recommend the heel of the round or what some call "the eye" for this purpose. When the butcher buys only the hind quarter of beef, you must take either one or the other of these pieces for a pot roast, but there are excellent reasons why the chuck is a better cut, and one with which a young housewife will have better success. These other cuts are duller meat, and the ordinary cook uses too much fire with a pot roast and so dries up the meat. If she uses a bed of seasoning vegetables with it she is less likely to spoil her meat, and she can see more plainly that she has, for if the vegetables are dried up or burned the meat is at least half spoiled if not nine-tenths.

By the way, those stewards or their chief speaker said: "The trouble with the women of today is that they don't take the trouble to prepare meals. Cooking is a delicate business, requiring much skill. If people knew how to cook they would use cheaper meat and make it taste better than the most expensive cuts."

Who Has Burning Sore Feet, Corns or Bunions?

Here Is Wonderful News!

"For many years the callouses on my feet, the burning, and corns between my toes nearly drove me crazy," says Mrs. Anna Beckman. "I tried all kinds of things without relief. Hearing about the quick relief and wonderful results obtained by dancers, I asked them what used Gypsy Foot Relief, my husband brought home a box. I used it a few times as directed, and to my surprise, the burning and soreness stopped, and the callouses just rolled off in my fingers, leaving the skin smooth. The soft corns between my toes started to fade away, and now I feel as if I had a pair of new feet. Before I used Gypsy Foot Relief, my feet were constantly swollen, and now I can easily wear shoes a size smaller, with perfect comfort."

NOTE: Gypsy Foot Relief, mentioned by Mrs. Beckman, is a secret from the desert! Applied in a minute, relief comes a few minutes later—the pains from sore, tender burning feet, callouses, corns and bunions disappear as if by magic! No fuss—no bother—no plasters nor bandages to use, no foot-baths nor inconvenience. So wonderful are the reports from users of Gypsy Foot Relief that Druggists willingly give back the little it costs if it fails to give successful results in any case. It is sold in this city by all good druggists including HI-GYPSY CO., New York City

The TRIBUNE Cook Book

So-Called "New Meats."

Practically all the animal glands are sold today packed as perfectly as the highest graded fruit, while some people are calling them "new meats," but hardly anything in English cookery is better known than the kidney, chiefly grilled and any one with a knowledge of folk cookery perhaps to 2,000 years back knows that the least mentionable of the glands have been commonly cooked and eaten often when they were taken from the live creature, as in caponizing a fowl or castrating other animals. The French put up these glands in bottles just as they put up the cock's comb or use it in garnishing. Of course, all this pertains to a cookery among people who have extremely scant food supplies and have not our American abundance.

Four years ago one of our leading magazines had recipes for the "new meats," and among them was one for "rolled beef melt with potato stuffing," and the statement was made that "melts are produced from beef, pork, and sheep, and in color and general appearance are similar to livers."

If you look in the dictionary you will not find this word "melt," but if you happen to know that it is the spleen of the animal you will find under the definition of that the word milt. I do not know why the trade uses "melt."

There were recipes with pictures of the dishes produced of pork ears, "meaty little pork snouts served with green peas," and "daintily served pork lips with mashed potatoes."

But, after all, these are the extremes of cheap cuts, and one almost has to be a Scotch cook to relish them. I have seen the stuffed pig's stomach or "haggis" in Scotland, and the half of a calf's head garnished with puff paste crescents, etc., but as food they seem to me most unappealing.

The Cook with Imagination.

The concoction of "made dishes" offers a more agreeable occupation to the young cook with any imagination. She can chop a cheap cut of meat and make it up into any form that her hands can mold, or if she wants to spend the money she can buy molds to use for it. It is a long story, but wonders can be performed if one will work out the details as some of the famous cooks did, writing down every item of behavior as they went along, or taking notes on their work. It makes cooking far more interesting than one would guess to do this, and finally one comes to possess what seems like a mass of new ideas on food that it is a joy to possess.

Pork chopped up and seasoned in all sorts of ways and made into little cakes with careful cooking will always suit a man, or so nearly always that it is safe to make the generalization. Try a little chopped onion and a green pepper chopped fine with half a pound of chopped pork, and serve the cakes made with a good sprig of parsley which was first quite dry and then dropped for a minute in the hot fat of the pan, the pan canted to give enough to cover it. There are no end of ways of fixing this little mixture. Note that the butcher puts a ring of a thin slice of bacon around the cakes of hamburger steak he makes and this can be done always when the meat chopped contains but scanty amounts of fat.

Good Knives Important.

You cannot know meats without study, and you cannot manage meats without good knives. The sharper the edge of a carving knife the more slices of a roast of meat will a roast yield, while the slices made are more attractive and satisfying. Irregular cunks of meat whether they are supposed to be chops—cut by some untrained butcher—or of a roast turkey or from a roast of beef or lamb show a lack of meat knowledge.

There are good reasons why every housewife should cut up her own fowls. Disjointing with a cleaver makes actually unsafe eating, because bits of bone from this procedure may get into an eater's throat. When a chicken has been cleaned to perfection it can be cut up and need not be washed after, while that cut up by the butcher must be, with loss of quality. Butchers ought not to have this work to do in general, for even the best of them will sometimes give you a lamb chop that has the decoration of a wet feather, and there are more objectionable things because the butcher ordinarily does not have too nice facilities to wash his hands, an abundance of or frequent clean towels, and an immaculate wash bowl.

If you cannot learn everything about everything just make it a point of knowing all you can about the pieces of meat you are using over and over. You can get the charts which show what section of the creature these come from, and all you have to do is to go for the special information about using them that you want. If you hear of any meetings where such things are to be discussed, go to them if you can. You will learn ten times as fast from the spoken word, especially when it is accompanied with an object lesson in cutting or cooking, than you can from any thing printed. But use the printed matter in its place, too. It has its great service. For any real study you must have it. The demonstration is just a "movie."

MY MOST EMBARRASSING MOMENT

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscript returned.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Shorter Every Minute.

One hot, sultry afternoon I was shopping and a sudden rainstorm drenched me before I could find shelter in the lobby of a building. As I waited for the rain to subside, I felt a gradual tightening—my skirt was shrinking and was getting shorter and tighter every moment.

I retreated to a dark corner. Five inches of my underskirt showed and I was almost hobbled. I sat down on a bench and cried in my humiliation. People stared at me—some pityingly—others with amusement.

Finally a woman volunteered to help me. She called a taxi and I hobbled to it as fast as I could, to get out of sight of the curious crowd that seemed to have a million eyes. I finally reached home thoroughly mortified. T. M.

What Did She Mean?

Meeting one of my club members in my home town the other day, who ran a close race with me at our last meeting and beat me to the presidency, she said, "O, I'm quite a near neighbor of yours now. We moved just across the river."

Much surprised at hearing it and not thinking, I replied: "Indeed, I hope you'll drop in some day."

When a Man Marries.

When a man is hastily packing his clothes to go over to his bride's house for the ceremony it is not surprising that he should make some stupid mistakes. What was my chagrin on discovering, fifteen minutes before the wedding, that I had left out my new dress coat, and instead had put in an old Tuxedo.

There was no time to get the right one, and I couldn't think of borrowing one from the guests. But my bride to be, with a woman's quick wit, saved the day. Her father had employed a detective to guard the wedding presents, and he was attired correctly in evening clothes. I changed coats with him. His coat was about three sizes too big for me, but there was no help for that.

After the ceremony my older brother, who had arrived in the city just a little while before and knew nothing of the coat incident, came up and congratulated me, and added, "Boy, I believe you're getting thin!"

And, of course, the members of both families who were in on the secret, had to give me the laugh. J. M.

Slow, but Effective.

My mother was visiting and I was keeping house and cooking for father. I had been successful with everything I had cooked and wanted to maintain my reputation, knowing father's ability to tease.

I decided I would surprise him by making a pan of fresh rolls for dinner, so I got up early and went to work at that task; having seen mother do it so many times, I felt confident of myself. I made the bread, but it stood there all day without rising, so as evening came on I decided I would have to get rid of the dough and keep my failure a secret. Just as soon as it got dusk I took the pan out to the garden, dug a hole, and carefully buried it.

Three days later father went out into the garden with a neighbor to show him how nice it was.

I heard him say: "What in the world is this."

There was a mound half the size of a bushel basket. My bread had raised and grown out of the ground, and my secret became public property, for everybody knew it the nxt day.

That First Love Affair

What was your "puppy love" affair? Can you tell it now without a wrench of the heart—with a laugh, say? If so, The Tribune will pay $5 for each story published on "My 'Puppy Love' Story." Write on one side of the paper and make your story brief. Address Puppy Love Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

O, THE TATTLETALE!

I AM a disillusioned woman—broken and cold. I shall sell the story of my one and only love affair and with the money I shall buy ice cream sodas and try to forget.

Many weeks ago while I was still a child I thought I loved Jimmy. He always carried my books home for me and on Valentine day he bought me the biggest valentine in our town. I was his best girl and we were happy.

And then Alice May came to our school. Alice May used a burnt match to darken her eyebrows, and she was always biting her lips so they would be red. Her hair was really straight and stringy, but she curled it every day on the iron. I could tell because I saw the burnt ends.

Jimmy never knew the difference, though. He thought her waves and her eyebrows and her lips were natural, and he fell for her from the start.

When I asked him if I was still his best girl he stuttered a lot and then he asked me if I'd mind being second best for a while. I felt hurt at first but then I concluded he meant it for a joke. Even the next day when he carried Alice May's books home instead of mine, I thought up lots of excuses for him. I still loved him then, you see.

The next morning during spelling I wrote him a note asking him if I had done anything to make him mad and also asking him to make up if I had.

And then what do you think he did? He told teacher I was writing notes to him. And then he gave her the note to read. O, how I hate him for that! The tattletale!

He has shattered my faith in all men. I think I shall become a man hater and never, never trust another man again. M. J.

An English clay that is making good complexions universal; one application, and while you sit at ease——blemishes vanish and natural color of youth returns to stay; ten years off your face in forty minutes!

NEW CARGO OF ENGLISH BEAUTY CLAY REACHES AMERICA

Efforts of Women to Obtain the English Complexion Clay that Makes New Skin in Forty Minutes is Answered by the Arrival of a Fresh Supply

Good news for women who clay—and an important message for those who don't! Old England's monopoly on perfect complexions ended with the landing of this liner.

A fresh supply of this marvelous clay that solves every complexion problem; thousands of jars are even now speeding on their way to those waiting. More jars await all who mail an early application to the laboratory.

Unless your skin is everything you could possibly wish it to be, read how quickly you can make it so.

[BY WILLIAM R. DURGIN]

IF any woman tolerates a poor complexion another week, it will be her own fault!

I have just talked with Mr. Ryerson—whose discovery made claying possible to women of this country—and he makes this announcement:

"The new shipment of English clay is here, and tests prove it to be the most potent and effective of any received. It fairly transforms any human skin it touches—and well within the forty minutes. At last, we have enough to go around; at least, it should give everybody one jar, and we are giving new applicants the preference.

"One full jar will be forwarded direct to all who are reasonably prompt in advising the laboratory of their wish to try it. Results are guaranteed, as before. It can and will transform anyone's complexion with one application; to all appearances it does indeed make a new skin in forty minutes. I know of no case to date where this natural clarifier has failed to restore full clearness and color."

How American Women Started Claying

An American girl and her father found this miraculous clay in sunny Wales. In that English province they saw only perfect complexions. Young and old, dark or fair, the women all had uniformly beautiful skins—and all because they clayed them. The girl tried it on her own skin—whose dull, sallow look had never responded to domestic preparations. Her own father scarcely recognized her following the experiment with this peculiar clay! He worked until his knowledge of chemistry revealed the way to preserve the magic properties of that clay—and brought some to America.

A few demonstrations quickly spread the news of this new facial magic. Soon there were a dozen requests for every ounce of this clay that was in America. Those who had been fortunate enough to obtain jars of the real English clay gloried in complexions which even in the sunlight showed no blemish. Skins lacking all life and color took on a natural tinge that required no artificial aid to be truly beautiful.

In forty minutes by the clock, the most hopeless skin transformed to one of baby-softness and youthful color! Is it any wonder we became a nation of clayers almost overnight?

A New Natural Wonder

Amazing as are the results everyone gets from the new claying process, they are simply explained to one who understands the science of dermatology. For a long time there have been domestic clays that some women have found helpful. These clays of commerce can impart to some types of skin a perceptibly heightened color for several hours. But this unique English clay is a permeant; so its effects are lasting. They go deep down and unseat the causes of unlovely skin texture.

Beautiful skin, like beautiful hair, has been found to be a matter of simple hygiene. This natural clay restores the skin to a natural condition, and Nature does the rest.

The Way This New Supply of English Beauty Clay Will Be Distributed

Even this huge shipment of Forty Minute Beauty Clay would soon melt away if placed on sale in the usual manner. Those who have used it would lay in a supply; beauty parlors would stock up with it; distributors would soon have the rest. So the laboratory where the imported clay is refined and compounded is portioning it out in individual jars—direct to those who are anxious to use it. Each jar contains enough for transforming any skin; enough to remove the most stubborn blemishes and smooth out the coarsest texture.

Full jars are sent for trial, although but one application brings the astonishing changes you have read about and heard about in connection with this imported clay of almost uncanny powers. The benefits are lasting, yet most women like to clay at least once weekly. By so doing, they ward off even a suggestion of returning blackheads or other impurities. And the skin clayed once a week glows with a new cleanliness and new color and freshness that seem to take about ten years off the face.

If you have not yet clayed, a new joy awaits you. Just one application of this imported clay will bring surprising improvement for which you would gladly pay the established five dollar price. But another surprise is revealed in the laboratory's generous trial offer I am authorized to print in the next column:

ONLY $1.87

for the Genuine Imported Clay!

(This offer is open to everyone who has not already tried Forty Minute Beauty Clay, and is for a regular full-sized five-dollar jar. Only one jar to a family.)

To the Public:

If you have already applied to the laboratory for trial jar of Forty Minute Beauty Clay your jar is in the mails and on its way to you.

To all others who desire to try the imported English clay, I am glad to be able to renew my offer to send the full, $5 jar without laboratory charge. For the bare cost of putting it in your hands (which has been figured down to $1.87 per jar) plus postage, the laboratory is authorized to accept applications so long as this new shipment holds out.

I wish to confirm the free trial offer; this test we are making is in every sense a trial, and your small payment of the costs is to be regarded as a deposit. Every penny of even this small sum will be returned you unless your first experience with Forty Minute Beauty Clay leaves you pleased beyond words at the benefits brought about. If delighted with results, you may keep this first jar and the $1.87 will be accepted in full payment.

You Need Send No Payment

—with this application. Pay postman on delivery. But if handier to receive the clay prepaid, you may enclose $2. The same guarantee holds however you choose to pay. Just fill out and send in the coupon that appears below.

9979—Stout woman's dress. Sizes 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, and 52 inches bust measure. Size 46 requires 4¼ yards of 36 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 36 inch contrasting and 5 yards of braid.

1289 (transfer 616)—Woman's and misses' dress. Size 16 years and 36 to 42 inch bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

1502 (hat 1503)—Sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1¾ yards of 36 inch material for the dress.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THE long lines of pattern No. 9979 will make the stout figure look more slender. It is a smart looking design and will make up equally well in one of the lovely dress woolens or satin, depending largely upon just when the dress is to be worn.

The dress should not be difficult to make. Be sure to apply your width and length measures to the pattern before placing on the material. Many women may take a certain bust measure, but all other measures will not correspond to the pattern, and it should be far easier to mark the alterations on the pattern than later on the dress.

The back and side fronts extend from the shoulder to the bottom of the skirt and the middle front is laid on a fold of the goods and is also in one piece.

It wouldn't be a bad idea to finish the neck with a wrong side facing and have the collar detachable. It would be attractive to have several different colored georgette collars, picoted on the edge—say, one of the fashionable greens, a henna, some becoming shade of blue, and one of a burnt orange. It almost makes one feel as though the dress were a different one each time.

While the dress will look well made entirely of one color, it is one that may be made of two colors, and in that case will need almost no trimming. The front panel and the cuffs may be a contrasting color to the dress, and about the waist may be worn any sort of girdle or sash. The dress is marked for a casing at the waist line, through which an elastic is to be run. Take care not to have the elastic too tight.

Two different ways of finishing the sleeves are given with the pattern—one is fitted below the elbow by a dart, making it close fitting; the other is loose at the hand. If the dart is to be used, baste it in place and try the sleeve on before cutting the material away. These darts are set in to throw the necessary fullness over the elbow and to make the sleeve close fitting on the lower half. But arm lengths and widths are by no means the same on different people, hence the necessity of care in the fitting, lengthening or shortening, letting out or taking in, before doing any cutting.

Pattern No. 1502—and the hat, pattern No. 1503—will make up into cunning garments for the small girl. I doubt if there is a more fascinating form of sewing than making clothes for a baby or small girl.

Wash materials seem most appropriate, although a pretty challis or taffeta may be used sometimes. But the sheer white materials that are used for children's dresses are the loveliest of all, and while much trimming is not necessary it is necessary to do as much as possible of the work by hand, and it must be perfect work, too.

The waist is short, and the joining of skirt and waist is covered by a band across the front to which are sewed sash ends tieing in the back. These sash ends are plaited into the band and make a pretty finish at the waist line. As a finish to a three or four inch hem on the skirt a line of single feather stitching would be dainty, and the cuff and collar edges may be treated in the same manner.

If the dress is made of one of the delicate colored chambrays, pin checked gingham could be used for trimming bands on the skirt, and where they end on the front a small design worked in cross stitch in several colors would be just the right finish. The pattern has markings showing where these bands should be put.

Nattern No. 1289 should be a useful one, and is suitable for almost any material. The dress is in two pieces and the closing is on the shoulders. A single notch on the shoulder of the pattern shows how far the seam is to be stitched together—the balance of the way the seams are to be left open and finished for closing. Small faced and extension hems are the thing; this part of the work needs to be accurately and neatly done if the closing is to be invisible.

Elastic is run through a casing at the waist line, and the long, single lines of the dress, together with the large armholes and wide, flaring sleeves, make it decidedly modish. See that the skirt length is right for you before cutting; also verify the length of the sleeves.

My Nicest Compliment

What was the nicest compliment you ever got? Was it a tribute to achievements, social gifts, learning, beauty? Was it forthright and blunt, wittily done, or something subtle? Write it out and send it to the Compliment Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

A Voice from the Tombs.

The nicest compliment I ever received came to me in a cemetery years and years ago. A sturdy cousin with whom I had quarreled, fought and played since childhood was helping me place flowers on the graves of our relatives. At the gravestone of an ancestor which bore a quaint eulogy, I said, "I wonder what will be engraved on my tombstone." He replied, "Well, Pepper, if I bossed the job, it would read, 'Here lies a good scout and the best pal in the world.'" I am still trying to measure up to that compliment, which I know he meant to apply much broader than just to our companionship. I haven't seen him for years, but I hope that when the recording angel passes over my name he will call out, "A good scout." B. M. H.

A Grouch Redeemed.

I had the reputation of being a grouch in my home town, so when I moved away I resolved to correct this fault or die in the attempt. I did not die, but after two years moved again. I felt that my struggle with myself had been rewarded when a neighbor wrote: "We miss you more than you will ever realize, for you were always so cheery." M. C. H.

He Won't Be Transferred.

The nicest compliment I have ever had came to me last Friday. The registration in one of my mathematics classes was quite heavy, so I announced to the class that in a day or two I would have to transfer about ten pupils to another class. After class was dismissed one of the boys came to me and said: "Mr. ——, please don't change me to another class. You're the only teached I can talk to like a human being." Needless to say this chap will NOT be transferred. B. F. L.

A Compliment in Time.

One day while walking down the street after a snowstorm I had to pass a crowd of boys and girls, who snowballed each passerby. All stood ready for me, but just as the command was given, "All ready!" some one in the crowd shouted out, "Don't hit her—she is too pretty!" And so I passed on unmolested. C. N. A.

PRODUCTIONS FOR SLEEP AND REST

IF you were born under the sign of Capricorn, which covers the better half of January (Dec. 21 to Jan. 20, to be astrologically correct), and you are looking for a life partner, one who will share your troubles and your happiness and be most tolerant of your shortcomings, the stars would direct that you choose one born either under the sign of Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) or else one born under the sign of Taurus (April 19 to May 20). Into the good qualities and the idiosyncrasies of your individuality the characteristics of these people will fit with most perfect ease. Other natures, of course, can be made to adapt themselves to yours, but these have the more complementary qualities to begin with.

Capricorn persons, fitly symbolized by the goat, throw their whole powers into the execution of their mental plans. They are the natural heads of the general business of life. They are thinkers, reasoners, philosophers. They are positive, executive, and determined in their tendencies, and demand to be recognized as the head of whatever they are in. They feel they should be wealthy, and if misfortune overtakes them it is difficult for them to economize in small things. They need one who will save them from sinking low, one to inspire them to new effort, and one to see they will live within their means. Their determined nature makes them difficult at times, and rare tact is necessary in their handling. Their head rules more often than the heart.

Women of this sign are happier and better wives if they have some one to do their work for them, as Capricorn people are not disposed to labor with their hands.

With one born under Virgo you have one generously inclined and with a nature adapted to any circumstances in life. These people are methodical and industrious, rather materialistic in their outlook upon life. If a crisis arises, the Virgo born will rise to the emergency in a most self-sacrificing way, showing a supply of tact and wisdom which will make things come out all right in the long run. Virgo people are not extremists in anything they do or say. They retain a fine calm equilibrium, which makes them dependable all the time.

The Taurus born provide solidity, too, along with practicality and a nice reserve. They are honest to a marked degree and reliable in both fair and foul weather. They make good in any undertaking. They have a will power which will not be downed. If through surprise or some unexpected experience the Taurus person is called upon for extraordinary action, there is apt to be displayed a psychic sense resulting in the broadest understanding and sympathy.

The best months in which the Capricorn people should marry are either February or October. During the months of June, August, and December things are not destined to go so well for January people. Their lucky colors are blue or gray, and the lucky stone, the onyx.

Beauty Answers

WORRIED: HAVE PUT UP AT the druggist's a 25 per cent solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water to prevent perspiration. Apply it every other night for three nights and then once a week to prevent return of the trouble. Do not use it oftener than this. If you find this solution a little strong dilute it by splashing water under the arms before applying it. Apply it the last thing before retiring, and keep clothing away from it until thoroughly dried. Do not us eit before going out, as it might ruin your frock. But it is powerfully effective as a remedy for excessive perspiration.

MALVINA: SURELY, I'LL SEND you as many pamphlets as you want—but you neglected to inclose postage All I ask is a stamped, addressed envelope and that you repeat the request when you write again.

MARIE: YES, I HAVE SOME GOOD exercises for waist reduction. Better send s. a. e. for them, please, then you will have them in illustrated form.

Moths work all year 'round

You don't see moths flying in cool weather but the eggs laid during the warm months will be hatching into worms all winter long. Your only real safety is in completely destroying not only the moth but the moth worm and the moth eggs as well.

ENOZ

KILLS MOTHS

(Will Not Stain)

Enoz is a powerful spray. It destroys moths and moth worms instantly. And what is more important it destroys the eggs. It is so thoroughly processed that it cannot strain or injure, or effect the dyes in the most delicate fabrics, furs or feathers. Enoz is extremely penetrating. It permeates down into the hidden places where the moth eggs are always laid and kills every vestige of moth life. Simple to use. Just spray it on.

Enoz is the original, guaranteed moth killer. Not a drop of water—not an atom of grease. It does its work so thoroughly that it has been used for years in millions of homes, also by manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers of garments, woolens, furs, feathers, carpets and upholstery to protect their own valuable stocks.

Pronounce it Ee-noz and be sure you get it. Imitations should be avoided. Enoz will not stain. Drug stores, department stores and hardware stores have it.

A pint of Enoz and a sprayer $1.60
In larger quantities the cost is much less
Also put up in large containers for industrial use

In Answer to Thousands of Inquiries

You know that a rifle powerful enough to kill an elephant will kill a coyote. Enoz kills moths—the toughest of household pests. Of course it kills other household insects.

Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxatives

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way

THE public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mildest, most easily tolerated laxative obtainable, and not a drastic physic that upsets them for days afterwards. As over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people of this country must believe that this mild vegetable compound is the proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt waters and powders that dry up the blood; coal-tar drugs in candy form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and griping.

The best constipation remedy is the one that moves the bowels without shock to your system, and such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and has been satisfactorily sold for 30 years. Unlike the harsher physics it does not produce a habit, and increased doses are not required; in fact, it so trains the stomach muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

Many take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin once a week as a health safeguard. Others use it only when required, as, for example, Mrs. J. W. Borroughs of Little Rock, Ark., who finds it equally valuable for herself and the children, and Mr. Enas S. Costa of Watsonville, Cal., whose family uses it regularly. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in constipation, biliousness, piles, headaches, sallow complexion, and to break up fevers and colds. A generous-size bottle can be had at any drug store, and it costs only about a cent a dose!

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

LOVE LETTERS

GOING OUT ALONE.

MY DEAREST: Today is our anniversary, as well as graduation day for our little daughter. How the memories come and go—they take me back to that day in June, twenty-nine years ago! Could I have foreseen what life held for me, would I have become yours? It is hard to say, and a blessing the future is veiled from us.

I have been alone now for eleven years. Our boys are grown to men; good, true, manly fellows, who do all they can to make life bright and happy for mother; two followed their country's call, but as a mother's faith and prayer brought them safely back.

Since then the oldest has married and I have stood with him at the grave of his first born, have myself gone down to the gates of death, after a serious operation. O, there have been days so blue I wished I could die, but for the children's sake I have tried to keep smiling.

But tonight, I simply must write, my heart is so heavy and I know not where you are, whether you are near, or if continents divide us. Still my heart is yours, although we may never see each other again.

Good-by—and good night. God bless you always. ALICIA.

Is Marriage a Failure?

Why do so many marriages go wrong? What are the underlying causes of happy marriage? What is the matter, if anything, with marriage, the institution?

W. Lecky, the English novelist, investigated 150 marriages. One hundred and sixteen could be eliminated as unhappy; in five cases the husband was unfaithful; in ten it was the wife; the husband failed in his wife in three; and in seven it was the wife who did the divorcing. Only nine marriages, Mr. Geoges says, were "apparently successful."

Marriage, he adds, "is on the whole before a hesitating jury."

Look over the marriages you know yourself. How many are successful? How many are failures? And why?

The Tribune will pay $1 for each letter published on the question. Marriage—what do you think of it? Address Marriage Editor, The Sunday Tribune.

Injudicious Selection.

Answering the question directly, no! True, there are many failures in marriage, but there are also many failures in business, yet we would not think of pronouncing all business a failure on account of the failures of some. The institution of marriage is all right; the basic cause of the destruction of happiness and ultimately of the home lies in the injudicious selecting of life partners.

Men are largely responsible for the failures in marriage, for the great privilege of selecting a partner is theirs, and as long as they can be vamped into matrimony, or marry without taking inventory of those accomplishments essential to home making, some marriages are bound not to be a success.

Health is the foundation of happiness, and happiness begets love. It is said that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. There is more truth than poetry in this. A poorly cooked meal followed by indigestion is not conducive to love, and chronic indigestion is an exterminator of love and happiness. A poor cook or housekeeper—they go hand in hand—is the worst investment a man can make, for she is not only an expensive proposition but may cost him his life, and if he be so fortunate as to be able to maintain servants she makes a poor supervisor.

There have been great improvements in old inventions, but where is the man who can improve the present system of home making? Imagine the chaotic condition of the world, and the domestic entanglements, without some conservative system of marriage. On the other hand, is a life of "single blessedness" a success?

O, who through choice would go through life alone?

In youth we tread a primrose path that seems to have no end, and roses oft are scattered there to shield our tender feet, but on ahead the flowers grow sparce and thorns are in the path instead. There are gullies, too, and skies overcast, and as we older grow we shrink from traveling on alone; we crave companionship, for a journey is far more pleasant when there are two congenial souls.

We travel on and pass a host of other married folks and they are just as happy as they journey on as we. True, now and then there's quarreling, and a separation, too. That doesn't make all marriages a failure.

Many and many a hand has been flexed from the arm that afforded support for years, and the last hand clasp told a story of happiness and of a marriage that was not a failure. B. C.

THE INDISPENSABLE SWEATER.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

By A. T. Gallico.

NEW YORK—[Special correspondence.]—The sweater which, once upon a time, was something with a high neck and huge cuffs, which actors wore on the stage when they wished to look like college boys, has evolved into a highly useful almost every day garment, with several distinct styles, weaves, and materials, and with the growing national love of sport a sweater is a staple article of the complete wardrobe.

Especially around this time, when the air begins to snap a little as the sun goes down, the eighteenth hole, or the last set of tennis will find you ready to don something that will retain the heat of the body and keep you from catching cold.

There are so many uses for sweaters today that when you plan to purchase one it is well to know for what purpose or purposes you are going to wear it. We divide sweaters into two classes in order to differentiate between and discuss them. The first is the college or athletic sweater. This is not limited to a campus, but takes in club teams and schools. And the other is the sports sweater.

The athletic sweater comes in both the pullover and the coat style in either "V" neck or shawl collar. The pull over is probably the more popular of the two, since it is neater and the ordinary man does not take the trouble to button up the coat. It is also more formfitting. Although these shaker sweaters, so-called because of the particular stitch used in knitting them, come in all combinations of colors or single colors according to the emblems of college or school, white predominates, as it goes better with white flannels and duck trousers when the sweater is taken from its natural habitat to general sport use. A popular college sweater seen this year has an all white body with the colors worked into the "V" neckband.

There are varied uses for the sweater outside of school and college, and of course you can get one for anything you wish to do, tennis, golf, beach, lounging, and country wear. If you wish to wear your sweater under a coat, you will want a lightweight one. There are probably more sweaters sold with sleeves than without, because the slight addition of bulk is not enough nor does it interfere with one's comfort to the extent of sacrificing them. For the sweater with sleeves may be worn upon so many more occasions without the coat than can the sleeveless type.

About the finest sweaters that can be secured in a lightweight model are some I saw the other day. They were natural color cashmere slipovers and also some natural camel's hair. Both "V" necks and straight across are being used. Some of these were of checked brown and white body with plain sleeves, in cashmere and the coat style. If you get a heavy sweater you cannot expect to wear it under an ordinary coat, but such an article would always come in handy upon any occasion when additional warmth more than style is desired.

Neutral colors in greens and blues are most favored these days. The checked idea mentioned before is found also in the heavy sweaters. Both small and large checks are used, and the sleeves are always plain colored to match the predominating one in the check.

The brushed wool sweater is a nice looking garment. Heavyweights come in slipovers with shawl or plain collars, while the coat style come nearly always with only the "V" neck. There is little call for the sleeveless in the heavyweight, as its use would be thus limited to an undercoat garment. A sweater vest is not especially popular. Occasionally you will see in the fall a man about town with a knit vest under his lounging suit.

Once again let it be emphasized that in selecting clothing, such as a sweater, quality counts first because a sweater is something which, from one year to another, finds difficulty in becoming old fashioned and, as a sweater is bought either for warmth or style, pure wool or worsted is necessary.

Answers to Queries.

M. M. C.: Since you are short and stocky and desire a suit which will give you the tallest possible appearance, I suggest the three or four button sack coat, single breasted, and with short lapel. Trousers this fall will probably be more without cuffs than with. But the bell bottom you suggest is not seen on conservative suits.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

Grandma used Sage Tea to Darken Hair

GRANDMOTHER kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

In Need of Clothing.

"After a spell of sickness which confined me to the hospital for several months I am again able to work but am much in need of clothing, shoes, etc. I wear size 38 coat and size 7½ shoes. Any assistance will be appreciated. I trust some friends who can will aid me. G. W. C."

Nine in the Family.

"We wonder if it would be possible for you to secure three mattresses and a rug for a worthy family whom we are assisting. There are nine in the family; the children's ages range from 13 years to 9 months. They have only three beds and no mattresses.

"The father fell through the floor of his house two years ago and was hurt internally. He has not been able to work since. The mother is frail. She is a good housekeeper and a devoted mother.

"We arranged for the children to have a vacation in the country this summer, and they came back filled with new ideas for a better home. We secured a davenport for their living room, which they can use as a bed, and, with a rug, the room would be attractive.

"We will be grateful for whatever you are able to obtain. F. N."

If any one among my readers has these things for the family you are interested in, I shall advise you immediately.

Magazines to Give.

"I have copies of an aerial magazine for the last two years, also a mechanical magazine for a number of months. Any one interested in aviation and automobiles who wishes these magazines may have them by calling for them before Oct. 1. R. K."

Your offer will interest some young man who is interested in automobiles and aviation. First come, served.

ARMY—NEW RAINCOATS — Most of them are in tan color and all-rubber lined. Some are plain Rain Proof Coats—but they're all new and what we believe to be coats costing up to $12 and $15. $2.95

U. S. Government Table Oil Cloth — YARD AND HALF WIDE (Not Yard and Quarter) — The Government notified us they shipped this Oil Cloth from Hampton Roads on the 12th. We're hoping it will be in on time—if not will take your order and mail it to you. Plain white. Government cost about 75c a yard, we believe. 35c YD.

GOV'T OX TONGUE — Packed for the Govt. by Cudahy; net wt. each can, 1 lb. 14 oz.; today's retail price is about $2.50 a can; price, 85c

U. S. Gov't Hunting or Aviator Suits

Brand new, lined and padded all the way through. Cost the Government about $15 to $20. Khaki color. $4.95

U. S. NAVY 6-POWER BINOCULARS

These were made for the Government in the navy's own optical plant at Rochester. We bought all they had and for the last few months have been selling them in every part of the country. We thought we had sold them out, but we got in a few hundred more from the navy a few days ago. They're brand new and have a range of about 10 miles. Leather carrying case and straps. Cost to the Government was somewhere around $85; we doubt if they are worth much less, $32.50

U. S. Government HIP BOOTS

$1.69 PAIR

We bought 150,000 pairs of these reclaimed Govt. Hip Boots. When we tell you they're every bit as good as the new boots, we're not exaggerating one bit—they are. Sizes 7 to 11. First quality American made boots.

U. S. OFFICERS' DRESS SHOES

Herman Make—Rossenwasser Make

We feel sure no Officer Shoe of equal value is sold under $7 or $8 a pair. They're all leather shoes, dressy and up-to-date. Saft toe, rubber heel and dark seal brown. Sizes 6 to 11.

$3.45 Pair

GOVERNMENT Khaki Breeches

The best breeches the Government bought. The kind all sportsmen pay around $7 to $10 a pair for. Sizes for all and for either sex, $1.85

ARMY AND NAVY FIELD GLASSES

Brand new—clearest glass made. With sun shade and fitted to the eye so it will eliminate all outside light. We can truthfully say it has range of about 25 miles. Complete with carrying case and strap, $8.95

We ship by Parcel Post, Express or Freight to any part of the United States, Canada or Mexico. Parcel Post shipments must include sufficient postage to cover cost of shipment.

Mandel Brothers' Formal Autumn Opening

Paris dominates the mode—and a wealth of imports here, selected but yesterweek by our own style envoys to France, beckons all who would really know the autumn trend of Fashion, to view the flower of Parisian creative genius in our salons, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

French Hats

were personally selected by our representative, from France's world famed modistes—including

Reboux, Talbot, Maria Guy, Lewis, Mary and Annie, Marguerite and Leonie, Rose Descat, Hermance, Germaine, Le Monnier, and others—also hats from noted American designers.

The "shapes" of this year's hats are their principal distinction. Venetian influence is seen in the drapes of lace, and the tricorne. Much stress is laid on hats of velvet and hatter's plush. French Room and Salon pour le Jeunesse, fifth floor.

FOOTWEAR for fall follows the lead of the major fashions in line and color. Strap slippers of patent leather, suede trimmed, and strap slippers of brown or black satin, brocade trimmed, are 8.50. Fifth floor.

Strap slippers of silver and gold brocaded cloth, for evening wear, 12.50.

Costumes, Wraps, Tailleurs, Furs

Wraps, taking for their material sumptuous textures richly soft, caressingly supple, model them in gracefully draped and bloused back effects, or in straight, slim lines. For adornment they choose luxurious furs and unique ornamentation.

The evening wrap pictured above, center, is a reproduction of a Besnard model, in chiffon velvet, with platinum fox.

Tailleurs interpret the mode's latest thought in three-piece models, the jackets short and fitting snugly about the hips, and in two-piece styles in straight line, slightly bloused and belted effects. They are in soft, velvety fabrics, with fur.

Illustrated is a misses' costume suit of caracul, with collar and deep cuffs of platinum fox fur; a De May original.

Costumes express their versatility in variation of sleeve effects. Often the sleeve extends well over the hand, and is large at wrist, elbow, or throughout its length. Drapery, too, is important. Evening gowns are less decollete.

Developed in beige crepe georgette and a new crepe satin is the afternoon frock, Agnes model, sketched at the left.

An Agnes model, the seated figure sketched, is in gray and gold brocade—half of the bodice is in apricot velvet.

At the right is a misses' dinner gown, after Callot—in salome velvet, with silver lace girdle and flounce.

Wrap, tailleur and costume departments—on the fourth floor.

Furs show decided changes in mode—and for the better. Strikingly different are collars and sleeves. Mink, ermine, broadtail and sable coats and neck pieces are fashioned of exquisitely matched pelts. The garment illustrated above is of summer ermine. The cape style, with chin chin collar, is appropriate for both afternoon and evening. Fifth floor.

Gloves for fall are soft and elegant, particularly longer gloves of finer kidskin—like "Trefousse"—"first" French make since 1727—"first" fall mode of 1922. First floor.

"Trefousse" mousquetaire gloves of French kid, 16-button, overseam sewn, emb'd, 6.75.

BABIES' clothes, too, are from Paris—as the illustration proves. Coat of white cloky silk with monkey fur, $50; hat to match, 22.50. Third floor.

Coat of green broadcloth with shirred brown velvet ribbon, $50; hat, 22.50.

Also many imported frocks and trouser suits.

Blouses distinctly and interestingly express the autumn mode. New fabrics and colorings, individual embellishments and designing enhance three favorite types:

Renee, Jaquette, Jupe

Crushed satin, satin crepe, georgette, canton crepe are prominent: embroidery, tinsel, braiding, beading, appliqued motifs, sleeves and necklines boast of "French atmosphere." Third floor.

PROLOGUE.

We left Red Miller on the quivering edge of his most momentous interview . . . it was all right to be engaged to Mamie; engagements, after all, are harmless amusements—but actually getting married and talking to the father of the girl about it . . . leases and dining room suites and parlor lamps and kitchen cabinets and having the gas turned on and getting a milkman and ice cards and a name in the letter box . . . the mere thought of all these little dumbbell details and the responsibilities they represent fill Red with disquietude and congeal his innards with alarm . . . and now he must sit down and talk all this over in cold blood with Pa Potter . . . why didn't he live in an age when you rapped them over the head with a club—the females quick to guide the club if you seemed nervous—and if the father objected you rapped him over the head also, only harder and with more intense feeling . . . perhaps the Pa Potters wouldn't mind one last wallop on the fontanelle if that would surely end it all. . .

Scene—The Potter Dining Room.

Pa is reading the evening papers . . . he takes one of them to get the conservative side of the industrial controversies and the other to get the progressive side . . . reading both every evening leaves him in a marvelous state of complete confusion . . . it is in this rather suspicious mood that Red finds Pa to talk to him about Mamie . . . the subject of all this stress and strain hovering in the background with her ears delicately distended to catch the slightest vibration . . .

RED (bravely):
Good evening, Mr. Potter.

PA:
Hello, there, Red.

RED (confused):
Goo' evening, Mr. Potter.

PA (genially):
Hello, I said.

RED (more confused—let's see, well, there's the weather . . . that's always good for an opener):
Aren't the evenings getting cool?
They're usually warmer as a rule.

(That won't get him any place. He'd better speed up.)

PA (oracularly):
I see by the papers the trappers say
There's a long hard winter on the way.

RED (anxious to make good impression):
They can tell because the animals grow thicker pelts when there's gonna be a hard winter. Isn't that it?

PA:
Yes. I wish we could do it, too. We might save on the coal bills. Ha! ha!

RED (for whom the coal bill has conjured up new visions of domesticity):
I . . . I . . . I guess I'll have to be worrying about coal bills myself soon now.

PA (who has seen this coming, now begins to get more nervous than Red):
How do you mean?

RED (hurriedly):
You know, coal bills . . . furnace . . . home . . . er, er . . . er.

PA (not a bit of help):
Yeh, thass right. They usually go together.

RED:
And I thought . . . maybe . . . perhaps . . . when Mamie and me . . . (stuck).

PA:
Mamie and you? Yes?

RED (struggling):
We've been engaged, you know, and I thought maybe . . . perhaps.

PA (nervously):
Maybe, perhaps?

RED (desperately):
Maybe . . . perhaps . . .

PA (desperately):
Maybe . . . perhaps . . . yes?

(From behind Pa Mamie now signals encouragement to Red, who obviously needs it, if an agitated adam's apple is any index.)

RED (with a superhuman effort):
It's like this. Mamie and me we're gonna get married. That is, if you . . . if you . . .

PA (terribly embarrassed and nervous):
Married, er . . . er . . . you mean married?

RED (gulping):
Yes, married. That is, if you don't care.

PA (desperately grappling with the situation now that it has finally arrived):
But your prospects? Your job? You're a what is it? A life guard, isn't it?

RED (confused):
No. You see, the beach is closed now.

PA (gradually getting assurance):
Then you're an ex-life guard. Surely there isn't much future in that. How can you support a wife on it?

RED (with bravado):
But I have a good job practically cinched. It's in an advertising agency and my father knows one of the directors very well. He's a personal friend. And he knows me, too, so I'd get in on the ground floor.

PA (with the wisdom of experience):
I've discovered that fellows who get in on the ground floor usually finish up in the basement.

RED (eagerly):
But this is different. Besides, the advertising game is easy to learn. It must be, there's so many in it.

PA (judicially):
But you certainly don't expect to get married on the prospect of a job which you might get because your father knows a director in a business in which you have no experience. Maybe you have something saved up?

"How can you support a wife?"

(A college boy who has something saved up! Pa is an unconscious humorist.)

RED (defensively):
No, I haven't anything saved, but I can work and both of us can save together. Others have done it; why can't we?

MAMIE (who has stayed out of proceedings as long as she can):
Of course, we can.

PA (with hesitant deliberation):
I don't believe in young folks getting married on a shoestring. They have so much trouble the first year making both ends meet that they're too worried to be nice to each other. And then the first thing you know they're scrapping and, blooie! goes another marriage on the rocks.

MAMIE (proudly):
O, but we'll be different, won't we, Red? And I can help so much, can't I, Red?

RED (proudly):
You bet you can.

PA (to himself):
Well, that's news. I wish your mother could hear that. (To Red): I don't want my daughter to marry a man she has to help.

MAMIE (rushing to the defense):
How about Ma helping you? That's all right, isn't it?

PA (baffled):
That's different. When we were married things were different. It didn't cost so much to live in those days. Why, you could rent a mighty nice place for $10 a month and eggs were 15 cents a dozen.

MAMIE (with feminine logic):
I don't like eggs anyway. Do you, Red?

RED (helplessly):
No, I hate 'em.

PA (enjoying this brief moment of authority . . . gradually realizing this is the first time he has ever been consulted seriously on a family matter . . . assumes dictatorial attitude):
Young man, let me give you a little advice.

MAMIE (to herself):
Piffle! (To Pa): Now, Pa.

PA (brusquely):
Just a minute, please! Young man, I don't believe you realize the importance of this step.

(No man ever does, or he would never take it.)

You ask to take this little girl whom we have raised and cherished and guarded so tenderly (begins to convince himself and grows sentimental)—you ask to take her away from her home out into the world to struggle and battle for a . . . for a . . . well, to struggle and battle.

RED (interrupting):
We're not gonna battle.

PA (waving him aside, intent on finishing his oration):
To struggle and battle out in the world away from her home and her loved ones, who have cherished and guarded her so tenderly (realizes he has somehow got back to where he started, so he desperately makes another start). I . . . well . . . I don't believe you realize what you are asking me.

MAMIE (practically):
Of course, he does. Don't you, Red? Besides, we love each other and what's the use of talking about rent and the price of eggs and all those silly things? They'll take care of themselves, won't they, Red?

PA (rising with dramatic gesture):
(Oh, they will, will they? That is news, indeed.)
I am sorry, young man, but before you can get my consent to marrying my daughter you must show you are capable of providing for her in the manner to which she is accustomed.

(Pauses dramatically and exits with a stately tread . . . this has been an historic occasion for Pa, and he secretly regrets having to withdraw from the center of the stage . . . realizes vaguely that the only special attention he can hope to get from now on in his routine existence is when the elevator stops for him.)

(Curtain.)

EPILOGUE.

(In the hall Mamie and Red are saying good-night, Mamie in tears and

"You leave your father to me."

Red patting her awkwardly and trying to console her. Ma Potter, who listened in on Red's interview with Pa—how do I know where she was standing?—she listened in, anyway . . . well, Ma has managed to elude Pa and arrive in the hall at this momentous moment.)

RED (soothingly):
There, there, honey. That's all right. I'll get that job and show him what's what.

MAMIE (sniffling):
He might . . . he might (sniffle) have shown a little consideration for me (sniffle) anyway.

MA (putting a comforting arm around Mamie's shoulder):
There, now, don't you worry your little head about it for a moment. I've got something to say about this, too. You leave your father to me.

RED (gratefully):
There, honey, see?

MAMIE (brightening up):
Can you make him listen to reason, Ma?

MA (enigmatically):
Well, I can make him listen.

MAMIE (eagerly):
When will you talk to him?

MA (with the seraphic cunning of the sex):
Some time tomorrow when he isn't feeling . . . so . . . important.

MAMIE (tenderly):
O, Red, darling! (An adequate pause, suitably employed.)

RED (tenderly):
Sweetheart!

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

Practical and Fancy Needlework

BY CLOTILDE

EMBROIDERING of any kind is doubtless one of the most attractive forms of needlework; and a beautifully embroidered initial or monogram will lend distinction to anything on which it is put.

Monogram making is in some ways more difficult than doing a single letter; but the result makes the work worth while. The design will have to be distinctly marked on the material, so that not a single line is indistinct, and when that is accomplished the outlining is next in order.

Darning cotton is good for this as well as the padding. In outlining be careful to follow exactly the way the lines cross over and under one another and take small, even stitches, making them as short as possible on the wrong side and decidedly short on the right.

The padding stitches should run the length of the letters. Be careful to choose a needle that will go through the material easily. Some use a simple darning stitch for the padding, making short stitches on the wrong side and longer ones on the right, and some use the chain stitch. Whichever is decided upon, make the padding heavier through the center of each section and lighter towards the outer edges. Much of the beauty of the finished work depends upon these preliminary stitches.

Embroidery hoops are necessary and should be used for the padding also. The embroidery stitch is an over and over—taken evenly and close together—always running at right angles to the padding, and taken as close together as is possible without lapping.

A monogram should hardly be attempted before a certain degree of perfection has been reached in embroidering a single letter. Patience and practice will be worth while, and it is delightful to watch the work grow under one's fingers.

Monogramming is always an added beauty to all kinds of household linen, and there has been a vogue lately for putting some sort of monogram on one's blouses. Sometimes these are inclosed in a circle or diamond shaped outline, and sometimes not. If one chooses, parts of these letters may have a center part filled with seed stitches, and the effect is excellent.

Answer to Sewing Questions.

MRS. L. S. E.—Yes, skirts are going to be longer this fall—four inches from the floor or ankle length will be worn. If your suit is going to seem a little out of date, why don't you make the skirt over by setting it onto a long waisted upper part of silk or satin? While many skirts are a little wider than formerly, the slender silhouette is the thing, and suit skirts at least will still be narrow at the bottom.

My Vacation Adventures

What was the most thrilling moment in your vacation? Was it on a boat or motor ride on a lovely night with the only one? Was it at a dance? Was it a kiss in the moonlight? Or was it a tug at the hook by a big fish? Or a close call when your canoe upset? Write your most thrilling experience and send it to Vacation Editor, The Sunday Tribune. One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

Waiting for Daylight.

While camping on the shore of a lake a friend and I decided to try night fishing. We rowed out into the lake and by 11 o'clock had landed a good string. We decided to call it a night and go back to camp. Both of us stood up at the same time, and my friend picked up the lantern and attempted to step over a seat.

A small row boat is unsteady any time, but on a dark night, with a waving lantern casting shadows about, it is doubly so. I stepped on the slippery side of one of the fish and went over the side backwards.

When I came up everything was black, the lantern having gone to the bottom. I swam about a moment, then caught a gleam I thought was a firefly. I swam towards it for want of any definite direction, and a few strokes brought me to the side of my companion clinging to the overturned boat and puffing at a cigaret, the gleam of which had guided me. He had caught the side of the boat as it went over, and kept his head above water.

We got the boat to shore, but the oars were gone, so we could not reach camp. Our matches being wet, we had no means of making a fire. We took off our wet clothes, but the mosquitoes forced us to put them on again. Waiting for daylight with wet clothes in a dark swamp proved the longest night of my life. C. S.

At Their Feet.

It was at a summer hotel, and as usual young men were completely invisible to the naked eye. All the girls were, consequently, getting extremely bored.

Then news came that a group of young men from a nearby camp was coming to dinner. Accordingly we donned our best, determined to find some degree of favor in the masculine eyes.

As I came downstairs I stopped to peer over the bannister. Ah! There they were gathered in the lobby. My heart beat madly, and beat still more madly when my high heel caught, and down I went.

I arrived in a breathless heap and was assisted to my feet by the various guests. No one laughed. I am now engaged to one of the young men.

HERE'S A REAL BEAUTY MAKER

Pimples, Blotches, Blackheads, Boils, Muddiness and Redness Disappear When You Use Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

If your ambition is to have the loveliest of complexions here is a real beauty secret:—use Stuart's Calcium Wafers. It is no secret, however, to thousands of pretty girls all over the U. S. who have relied upon these wonder wafers to keep their complexions perfectly beautiful instead of wasting time with cosmetics. These wafers go directly after those embarrassing pimples, blackheads and other such blemishes. It is not a round-about way. You get results every minute. You are sure of it in a few hours. They clear the blood, they drive from the system the impurities that cause pimples. The calcium goes to the skin, acts as a tonic, stimulates the tiny nerves, pores, and blood vessels to renewed activity, and lo! before you realise it the skin is peachy, firm, clear and the picture of a sweet, rosy complexion. Get a 60 cent box today of Stuart's Calcium Wafers in any drug store and you will have a real beauty maker to clear your skin of pimples, redness, roughness and such destroyers of beauty.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Novelties displayed in the showrooms of New York decorators are so fascinating that we are irresistibly tempted to cast aside our small embellishments of yesteryear (which seem to have become unbearably wearisome) and innovate our homes by bringing into them some of these new articles.

Among the loveliest of this season's decorative touches are bunches of flowers made entirely of shells. Each petal is a separate shell. A number of these are fastened together to make a complete flower and then the flowers are grouped into bunches of whatever size may be desired. They are tinted with soft pink, yellow, blue, or lavender. We saw some of these, in a porcelain vase, placed on a living room table, and the delicate tracery of their fine line was as delightful to behold as is the pattern of the most exquisite piece of antique lace.

In a dining room, which has been done in Adam period furnishings, the center chandelier has glass drops, some pear shaped, some long and pointed. These, instead of being cut from clear crystal, are of deep emerald green glass! The light, as it is caught by these drops, is scattered about the room, in a profusion of fairy lanterns. The color is repeated in the satin damask upholstery of the chair seats and in the deeper toned velour carpet.

A set of side lights and chandelier, which prove to be of great interest, are made of wrought iron. The large globular chandelier is composed of stems with leaves. The side lights are exactly like the chandelier, split into halves, so that they may be attached to the wall. The coloring is quite unique. All of the stems are painted olive green, and the leaves are saffron pink. Deep turquoise green silk shields are used on the lights.

An interesting pair of candlesticks, which we saw on a hall table, was made entirely of glass. Two stems, with green leaves, intertwined from the base to a height of about eight inches, suddenly branch outwards at each side. On either of these branches there sits a gayly colored glass parrot with a candle holder on its head.

Easy to make and pleasing in effect are two lamp shades which are used in the same bedroom. One of these has a foundation of white silk, shirred on to the wire frame. Applied to the silk, at intervals of about one and a half inches, are little ruffles of deep rose [almost red] lace about a half an inch wide. When the light is turned on, the silhouetted pattern of the lace appears to be black. The other shade has an underbody of rose colored silk, stretched tight and smooth. On to this, rose colored tulle, in double thickness, is gathered full. The tulle, being cut about three inches wider than the shade, is left unedged, in a sort of ruffle, or ruche, at top and bottom. A light, airy impression is produced.

Beads, strung on fine wires, so that they may be bent into various shapes, are being put to use in many curious ways. Highly decorative bead flowers, arranged in a low glass bowl, on a little table, give an interesting note to a French bedroom. Some of these flowers are of strings of small pearls, twisted into loop shaped petals. Some are larger beads—crystal, amethyst, and amber, with lines of smaller beads running crosswards to fill in the loops. The stems of these flowers are wound with dull green worsted, and the tiny wired leaves are covered with green taffeta. A pair of side lights is covered with greenish crystal beads, also strung on wire. The bulbs, with their beaded covers, turn downwards from the fixtures, and have the appearance, when lighted, of big, effervescent soap bubbles.

Hanging in the entrance hall of a well known New York decorator's studio is a lantern which nearly every one admires and covets. Brass hoops, one and a half inches wide, band the top and bottom, which are of the same diameter, about eight or nine inches. Between the hoops there are uprights of clear glass, an inch wide, separated by narrow spaces. Winding in and out around the whole are tendrils of ivy, made of brass. These mount and intertwine, above the lantern, into the point by which it is suspended.

Unusual, indeed, is the pair of beds illustrated here. Head and foot ends are upholstered in an excellent chintz. The small amount of wood which is left exposed is painted Wedgwood green, to match the background of the chintz, and edged with dull, rubbed gold. The pillow slips and bed covers, which fall over the sides in deep ruffles, are of the same chintz. Above the dressing table hangs an old fashioned mirror, divided into two parts, the upper being filled in with a French print, corresponding, in character, to the other prints in the room. The heavy plate glass of the table top frames a cover of chintz, matching that used on the bed. From this top, reaching to the floor, is a double ruffle, of changeable French blue and sage green taffeta. The ruffle has an opening down the center, and is fastened at each side of this, across the top, to a piece of wood which is hinged at the corner. This arrangement permits of the ruffles being swung to the sides, to disclose a number of drawers in which the toilet perquisites are kept when not in use.

Dull gold is greatly in evidence in New York decorations. A set of curtains which is worthy of some attention is on display in a conservative show room. The side drapes are dull gold colored casement cloth. Oyster green silk gauze is used for the glass curtains, and the straight lambrequin is made of a piece of linen, embroidered in an inventive pattern of colorful flowers and leaves.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

I was greeting an old friend who had returned to our city for the summer and who was accompanied by her daughter.

After the mother had replied that she was feeling "just fine," Martha held up her hand for me to shake and said, "I'se just fine, too." B. K.

Jimmy had a new baby brother.

His uncle asked him if he wasn't happy now that he had some one to play with.

Glancing at the tiny brother, he said, "Well, he's all right, but it is going to be a long time before he is playable." J. W.

Mabel mounted the platform to speak a piece the kindergarten teacher had taught her. The whole school and the children's parents were there.

Making a pretty bow she stood still, looking smilingly about.

Suddenly, pointing into the audience, she screamed delightedly: "O, I see my mamma! I see my papa, too!"

Her recitation entirely forgotten, father had to carry her from the platform. M. J. S

Recently our nephew went with his mother and father on an auto trip to Chicago. When they returned home we asked him how he liked Chicago, and the boy said, "O! I didn't like it. It's too popular." P. W.

One of the neighbors asked Jackie if she could have his new little brother and he said: "You can have Kafalleen"—his sister, a year older—"but you can't have our new baby, because we haven't used him yet." A. H.

Verona gave her aunty a handkerchief for her birthday and she said: "You are a little dear to think of me. Here's a dime."

"But, Aunt Annie," said the child, "the handkerchief cost 20 cents." A. R.

Dandruff troubles end

YOU cannot have thick, healthy, luxuriant hair and dandruff too. The hair simply will not grow vigorously where the scalp is coated and caked with dandruff scales. They clog the pores and choke hair growth. One application of Sergeant's Mange Medicine will give instant relief. Sergeant's is a scientific dissolvent of dandruff crusts; it helps to kill the dandruff germ. It promotes scalp health, stops itching, checks falling hair caused by "flu" or fever, and gives the hair every chance to grow. Sergeant's has a 41-year record of medical efficiency. Use it once a week, and you will see a wonderful change in the growth of your hair—in its thickness and beautiful luster.

Doctors endorse Sergeant's; Barbers apply it. Take a bottle home today—satisfaction guaranteed, or money back.

She had a new dress for 40¢

A new dress worn a few times said the color "crocked" off under the arms. The cleaner asked $7.50 to redye it and refused to guarantee the results. "Try RIT" suggested a friend. One package of White RIT to take the color out and three cakes of Black RIT made a perfect dyeing result. For 40c she had a new dress, saved the cleaner's charge and was better satisfied.

If you don't know RIT, profit by this experience (name on application).

RIT comes in 31 colors (7 dark colors require boiling). White RIT removes the old colors. Try RIT today.

Cranberries Again
The New Crop of Fresh Crisp Fruit Now Selling

Nature's Appetizer!

This delicious and healthful fruit should be on the table every day.

Buy cranberries for the most appetizing—most economical sauce, jelly, pies, puddings and ices.

Buy them for preserving—the price is reasonable.

Try these recipes:

Cranberry Jelly

Cook until soft the desired quantity of cranberries with 1½ pints of water for each two quarts of berries. Strain the juice through a jelly bag. Measure the juice and heat it to the boiling point. Add one cup of sugar for every two cups of juice; stir until the sugar is dissolved; boil briskly for five minutes; skim and pour into glass tumblers, porcelain or crockery molds.

Cranberry Sauce

One quart cranberries, two cups boiling water, 1½ to 2 cups sugar. Boil sugar and water together for five minutes; skim; add the cranberries and boil without stirring (five minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins are broken. Remove from the fire when the popping stops.

Cranberry Pie

Have ready a partly baked pastry shell. Pour in sauce when cold, made by the above sauce recipe, put strips of pastry over the top, and finish baking in a moderate oven.

Cook cranberries in porcelain-lined, enameled or aluminum vessels—never in tin.

Pompeian Day Cream

Both were young and one was beautiful

HIS eyes followed one, lingering on the smooth velvet of her cheek, her warm color, his senses delighting in the elusive fragrance that floated near.

The other was forgotten—yet she, too, was young.

"How can I acquire it now—today—a soft, white skin with rich color glowing in the cheeks?"

First, a touch of fragrant Pompeian DAY Cream (vanishing). It softens the skin and holds the powder. Work the cream well into the skin so the powder adheres evenly. Then apply Pompeian BEAUTY Powder. It makes the skin beautifully fair and adds the charm of delicate fragrance. Now a touch of Pompeian BLOOM for youthful color. Do you know that a bit of color in the cheeks makes the eyes sparkle with a new beauty? Lastly, dust over again with the powder in order to subdue the Bloom. Presto! The face is beautified and youthified in an instant! (Above 3 preparations may be used separately or together. At all druggists, 60c each.)

TRY NEW POWDER SHADES. The correct powder shade is more important than the color of dress you wear. Our new NATURELLE shade is a more delicate tone than our Flesh shade, and blends exquisitely with a medium complexion. Our new RACHEL shade is a rich cream tone for brunettes.

Curls, Smiles, Pouts, Pep—Miss May Has All of These

"UP AND AT 'EM."

Produced by Robertson-Cole. Directed by William A. Seiter. Presented at the State-Lake.

THE CAST:

Barbara ..... Doris May
Bob ..... Hallam Cooley
Crook ..... J. Herbert Frank
Father ..... Otis Harlan

By Mae Tinee.

DORIS MAY is a great little entertainer. Nothing stingy about her. She gives all that there is of herself to her rôle—big eyes, curly hair, pouts, smiles, and pep—with the result that you usually have a good time at her parties whether you like the rest of the party or not.

"Up and at 'Em" is a merry comedy drama. It discovers a young woman who has wished for excitement having her wish fulfilled. It has a fairly mild start, but gains momentum rapidly. You are carried through wax works, police courts, and heaven knows where else with the heroine who has constituted herself a detective, and finds that properly to pursue her chosen duty speed must be her middle name.

DORIS MAY.
[Evans Photo.]

Early in the game, however, Fate has decreed that she meet the One and Only man. He is either just before or just behind her in all her excited meanderings, which, at the same time, makes things more simple and more complicated.

Notice, by the way, the name of the leading man, Hallam Cooley. Yanked bodily from the dark haunts of villaindum which he has been compelled to—haunt—there's another word, but I can't think of it—he now steps forth a man and a hero, hell bent on getting the goods on other souls who sin even as he has sinned throughout his journeyings across the silver sheet. A pleasing actor, Mr. Cooley, whether good or bad.

The person who tries to tell the plot of a musical comedy or a film comedy piece is wasting a lot of time. Of course, the plot is there, but it's so mixed up with perpetual motion that you don't really ever get to know much about it. "Up and at 'Em" has to do with the disappearance of valuable paintings and their recovery.

The production is nicely staged, well directed, and has moments that wring great hilarity from the optience. It didn't set out to be anything wonderful—and it isn't. DID aim to entertain—and it does.

DECLARATION OF DEPENDENCE

When, in the course of human events, it seems to become necessary for one comedian, admittedly the best in his line, to dissolve, apparently, the risible bands that have connected him with screen optiences, and to assume, among the powers of earth, a position from which he apparently asserts that he will make no more comedies, a decent respect for the fans who have made him requires that he should declare the causes why he should be so upstage.

Fans admit this truth to be self-evident: that all comedians are NOT created equal. The market has been overflooded with a lot of bum comedies that make a laughter loving public hick to their tummies.

THEREFORE, the representative motion picture optiences do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these optiences, solemnly publish and declare that they want at least one GOOD Chaplin comedy every three years, and will not kick if he makes several bum ones in between, so long as his feet and his mustache stay the same and he has not forgotten the fine art of kicking and flourishing a cane.

After which Declaration of Dependence, Mr. Chaplin, have a heart! Bless

Berkshire Chamber Music Festival Offers Novelties

By Edward Moore.

PREPARATIONS are completed for the annual Berkshire Chamber Music festival at Pittsfield, Mass., under the auspices of Mrs. F. S. Coolidge. It will take place this week, Sept. 28, 29, and 30.

A prize winning composition of one combination or another is always a feature at these festivals. This year the work is a string quartet—Leo Weiner is the winning composer—and it will be played on the last program of the series by the Wendling quartet of Stuttgart, Germany. This organization has come ever especially for the occasion and will play the first as well as the last concert. One number of the first will be the first performance in America of Reger's quintet for strings and clarinet.

Among the other interesting items is a Brahms program, which includes the trio for piano, clarinet and cello, Opus 114; songs for contralto, viola, and piano, Opus 91; the cello and piano sonata, Opus 38; and a set of songs for vocal quartet with four-hand piano accompaniment. The participants will be Edith Bennett, soprano; Mabel Beddoe, contralto; George Hamlin, tenor; Boris Saslavski, baritone; Mrs. F. S. Coolidge and Ernest Hutcheson, pianists; Felix Salmond, cellist; Georges Grisez, clarinet; and Hugo Kortschak, viola.

The New York trio—Clarence Adler, pianist; Scipione Guidi, violinist; and Cornelius Van Vliet, cellist—also schedules a first American performance, that of Gabriel Pierné's trio in C minor, Opus 45. A string quartet from San Francisco which has Louis Persinger as first violin and Walter Ferner, formerly of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, as cello, will combine with some half dozen wood wind players to give a program that includes Schübert's octet, Ravel's string quintet, and Berscia's quintet for wood winds, the last an original performance of a work dedicated to Mrs. Coolidge.

Music and the Movies.

While estimating the extent of the field for promising young soloists, of voice or instruments, the movies once again invite your kind attention. Without advertising it particularly, they have developed into a large and constantly growing market, quite outside of the other market represented by their orchestral players. They draw from the rosters of opera companies, even of the two major companies of Chicago and New York, even preferably these to the lesser, wandering organizations.

It was not always thus. Not so many years ago music of the movies consisted chiefly of a piano, always out of tune, and a brass throated warbler of popular ditties. In course of time some of the more far sighted of the screen impresarios began to raise their standards of music as well as those of the films. It worked. The public responded. A new field was opened.

Now in the first class houses you can frequently witness a carefully staged and lighted scene from an opera, or an operetta scene in miniature, or a soloist of high degree accompanied by a good orchestra, rather better usually than the same sort of thing in vaudeville, which used to prefer its claims to good music. It would seem to be attractive all around; the pay is good, the audiences large and appreciative, and the orchestral accompaniments better than can be found anywhere except by symphonic and high grade operatic organizations.

That the financial returns are adequate is best evidenced by an example that came to attention a few weeks ago. Walter Pontius, tenor, took a vacation of one week this summer, the first he had had for eighty-one successive weeks. During that whole time he was in employment in Chicago in the circuit of moving picture houses represented by the Chicago, Riviera, Central Park, and Tivoli theaters. When he had finished his seven days' rest he went back to the same circuit, and is still there.

He is not the only case of remunerative employment by any means. There have been plenty of others in Chicago and New York. All that is demanded is that the artist shall be able to register with the audiences. For the reverse side of the picture, there have been instances where singers came with all the glamour of grand opera, condescended to the audiences, did not please, and went back quickly.

You do not always hear them under their true names. Just as in the old days with the actors in making films there are some musicians who consider, or have their managers consider for them, that their reputations will be lowered by singing for the movies. The salary, however, is a potent lure, and a number have taken other names for the purpose.

Here is a partial list of singers who have appeared in the film theaters in

"Seeing Things at Night;" New Star Gleams in Broadway's Skies

By Heywood Broun.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The most exciting thing which can happen to a critic in the theater is to discover, or think he has discovered, a new star. Possibly each reviewer is looking ahead to his old age and realizes that when those days come his sole claim to fame may rest upon the fact that he recognized talent, even though it happened to be hidden in a small rôle. From his seat in the chimney corner he may command attention by pointing out that thirty years ago he realized the genius of Miss Katherine Tush, even though when he last saw her she did no more than come on as a maid to say, "Anything else, ma'am?"

There must be something like that to his credit or he can hardly endure to be reminded of the fact that he dismissed some standard classic of the stage contemptuously or hazarded the opinion that somebody, who later became unquestionably great, would never amount to anything as an actor.

Jim Ford, for instance, was present when Lillian Russell made her debut, and wrote a review in which he said that the young woman was personable enough, but that she certainly had no voice and could never get far in comic opera. This rested on his conscience until he wrote a book ("Forty Odd Years in the Literary Shop") and explained that his slighting remarks about Miss Russell's voice were written at the advice of a musical friend who happened to attend the first night with him.

Either Mistake Is Disconcerting.

Several of the current New York reviewers dislike to be reminded that they said "Peter Pan" had no chance of success when it was first produced in New York. Among the generation of critics who are gone were many who dismissed Ibsen and Shaw lightly as pretenders who could hardly endure beyond the tether of a temporary fad.

Still there are like dangers in praise. It is disconcerting to announce that a youngster is going to shake New York to its foundations by his acting, only to have him drop completely out of sight within a couple of seasons. And four years ago a critic selected an almost unknown actor as the coming genius of the American theater, whereupon the player immediately went into a nervous breakdown from the excitement and had to retire for two years.

Comes Up to Expectations.

The most sensational debut of the season has been that of Miss Helen Gahagan (pronounced Gaygan) in "Dreams for Sale," by Owen Davis. Here the virtue of discovery can hardly be claimed entirely by the critics. The judgment of a manager came first. Miss Gahagan was in Barnard college last year, and during the summer appeared in a semi-professional production of a play by Harry Gribble called "Shoot!" John Cromwell liked her work and gave her a small part in "Manhattan." In this she received almost no critical attention, although this reviewer is prepared to lead anybody to the back files and point out that he said she was "promising."

The impression of ability which she made on William A. Brady was much stronger than that, for after a month in "Manhattan" she was taken out of the cast and the leading rôle of "Dreams for Sale" was assigned to her. When Mr. Brady was asked just why he felt such confidence in the acting capacity of the young woman he found it hard to justify his hunch except by explaining that she looked so much like Ethel Barrymore. "Dreams for Sale" is a negligible play in spite of an excellent first act, but the rôle intrusted to Miss Gahagan has excellent opportunities, and it is long and difficult enough to enlist the attention of a star.

There was some interest in theatrical circles before the production because of the fact that an actress so little known was to appear in a leading rôle. Most of the preliminary reports which leaked out during rehearsals were not encouraging. The confidence of the management was shaken. Miss Gahagan seemed listless. However, the first night in New York disclosed the fact that she had availed herself of a veteran's privilege of saving up her best performance for the opening. Indeed, the most surprising thing about her work when the test came was her entire self-possession and assurance.

At one point in the play a rather ridiculous piece of business assigned to one of the other characters set the first nighters to snickering. With all the ease and presence of mind of a person long versed in the ways of the theater, Miss Gahagan acted straight into the laugh and crushed the snicker in a

Mr. Maugham Flings a Jest at Some of Our Solemnities

By Sheppard Butler.

THIS god Momus, the faultfinder, must have chuckled a bit last Monday evening when Mr. John Drew stepped out of his character in Somerset Maugham's "The Circle" to give assurance that the new Selwyn theater, then being dedicated, will house nothing that is not "praiseworthy, worth while, good, and clean."

Well, well, we live and learn. That "The Circle" is praiseworthy and worth while will not, perhaps, be denied by many who have savored its keen ironies or observed the intelligent acting bestowed upon it by Mr. Drew and Mrs. Carter. But that it is good and clean—in "The Green Goddess," due next Saturday at the Great Northern.

GEORGIE ARLISS
[Abbe Photo.]

Here is a play as fantastically immoral as any you are likely to encounter. Tender and wise one moment, it steps aside the next to mock at its own tenderness and wisdom. It treats the conventions with an amused tolerance and finds its most spirited fun in the spectacle of their overthrow. Its hero is a homebreaker; its most ridiculous figure a pillar of the virtues. Its lesson is that wives will leave their husbands, and that what one generation learns about the matter benefits the next not at all. Its final curtain falls on three old sinners in the throes of merriment, one of them because he thinks he has upheld rectitude by deceit, the others because they know he hasn't.

A fine jumble of motives, as you see, and quite depraved in its moralism. What shall we do about it? Why, I think we had better go and see it. It is an airy and delectable feat at some of our most cherished solemnities, and will do no one any harm. Let Momus chuckle if he wants to.

Kind Words for the Decadent Present.

To the Olympic tomorrow comes Fritz Leiber, erstwhile Chicagoan, bringing Shakespearean measures and salutary reassurance as to the well being of our latter day stage. Many there be, I am told, who suspect that the world is too much with us behind the footlights—that the Wynns and the Jolsons, the Bats and the Cats and the Canaries, are receiving a disproportionate amount of our attention and our hard earned money. It may be so; we like what we like.

FRITZ LEIBER
as Macbeth—tomorrow evening at the Olympic.

Still, the plaint is not a new one. Talk of the good old days and the decadence of the present is as old as the human mind. With advancing years there comes, it seems, a pleasant discontent, made pensive by thoughts of the roseate past. It is quite true that Booth and Barrett will not live again, and it is well, perhaps, to mourn their passing. But are we so completely in the hands of the Philistines?

Let us see. Here is Mr. Leiber, faithfully and persistently adhering to the traditions of Stratford-on-Avon. Elsewhere Mr. Warfield prepares to play Shylock and realize Mr. Belasco's dream of a new and stately envisagement for "The Merchant of Venice." John Barrymore turns to "Hamlet," with "Richard III." to come later. Miss Ethel Barrymore launches a season of thoughtfully considered repertoire—Hauptmann, Sudermann, and Shakespeare.

Walter Hampden, full of plans for an epoch making "Othello," announces his further intention of reviving Philip Massinger's "A New Way to Pay Old Debts," giving us our first glimpse of Sir Giles Overreach since E. L. Davenport acted the part in 1874. The New York Theater guild promises fine things for the flaming Joseph Schildkraut—"Peer Gynt" first, "Romeo and Juliet" later. James K. Hackett wins unexampled plaudits in England and France for his "Macbeth," and may bring it to these shores when he comes home. Robert Mantell still bears the torch aloft, with some

Here! Now! The New Nash Sedan
See It Today

Now we can disclose the newest member of the beautifully built Nash enclosed car series.

It is a Sedan, roomily arranged for five passengers, powered by the Nash Six perfected valve-in-head motor, and swung smartly low to the road.

All the latest ideas in automobile design, all the newest niceties of appointment, are embodied in this richly distinctive car.

The body is finished in a lustrous, deep blue; choicest mohair forms the upholstery; there are silvered door handles; barrelled headlights; heavily nickeled dash instruments; and attractive silken shades.

A new-type cowl ventilator is placed just forward of the windshield; a stalwart bar anchors the side members of the chassis at the front and prevents the frame distorting or weaving.

Oil kipp equipment is also added. Just give the kipp a push and oil is fed to the steering knuckles and steering tie rod.

An exclusive Nash device enables you to adjust the new headlamps quickly to any angle. And a new steering mechanism is sure to attract your interest.

Come in right away. We'll only have a limited number of these models.

Gossip of the Players.

Henry Baron, producer of "The Rubicon," has taken the Central theater with a view to presenting Miss Estelle Winwood, a fine actress, in something other than the shabby play in which she has been appearing at the Olympic. "The Rubicon's" disturbing intimacies will be continued for a while; then there is thought of offering Georges de Porto-Riches' "Amoreuse," which was played in New York by Miss Winwood and Charles Cherry as "The Tyranny of Love," and perhaps John Galsworthy's "The Fugitive" and Arnold Bennett's "The Love Match." If the venture goes well, the theater may be named the Winwood. Plans for installing a company of Russians at the Central in October have been deferred.

Anders de Wahl, known in Europe as one of the greatest of Swedish actors, is in Chicago and will give lyrical readings at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Kimball hall. . . . Another noteworthy event for this afternoon is the Ed Kockrill benefit at the Cort, to be presided over by Frank Bacon and participated in by most of the players now in town. . . . E. M. Newman announces that his travel talks for the new season will have to do with Africa and will begin at Orchestra hall on Oct. 11. . . . Rowland Buckstone, the veteran comedian associated for many seasons with Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe, is dead in London.

THEATER NOTES

Those of us who have been dating Miss Helen Hayes' Chicago career back only so far as April of last year and the run of "Bab" in the Blackstone are in error. As Helen Hayes Brown, it is revealed, she was the tot with whom Lew Fields cavorted entertainingly in one of his post-Weberfield pieces, "Old Dutch," in the Garrick. The blithe star of "To the Ladies!" spent three of her scarce collection of years with Mr. Fields in the costly, busy seasons when he sought to convince the American theatergoer that his mission on earth was to do something else than choke Joe Weber on a bet while William Collier looked on as referee.

Miss Carol Kohl, who will appear with Fritz Leiber at the Olympic, comes from one of Chicago's most prominent theatrical families. She is the daughter of Mrs. Caroline L. Kohl, vice president of the Orpheum circuit, and said to be one of the wealthiest women holders of theatrical property in the United States. Her father was the late Charles E. Kohl, who, as head of the firm of Kohl and Castle, at one time controlled seven Chicago theaters, and she is a niece of Julia Arthur, the actress. Miss Kohl's visit to the Olympic will mark her debut in Chicago in Shakespearean rôles.

George Arliss returned from his visit to England on Friday and immediately will begin rehearsals for "The Green Goddess," in which he will open his season at the Great Northern next Saturday night. The company has been rehearsing for three weeks without Mr. Arliss, who having acted the rôle of the Raja for 445 consecutive performances in New York and eleven weeks in Boston, may be relied upon to know what the play is all about.

A London production of "The Cat and the Canary" is in preparation with George Grossmith, one of the producers, announced for the rôle so amusingly acted here by Ralph Morgan.

Avery Hopwood permits the New York Times this morning to publish a list of thirteen of his plays from which, he says, he has received a total of $1,437,000. "The Bat" heads the roster, having yielded its author thus far $339,000.

The New Plays

OPENING TOMORROW NIGHT.

Shakespearean repertoire (Olympic)—Fritz Leiber and his company in productions of six plays, beginning with "Macbeth."

OPENING SATURDAY NIGHT.

"The Green Goddess" (Great Northern)—George Arliss' long deferred Chicago engagement in William Archer's effective melodrama of adventure in central Asia.

IMPENDING JOYS.

"Six-Cylinder Love" (Harris, Oct. 2)—William Anthony McGuire's amusing comedy of indigent motorists, with Ernest Truex and Miss June Walker in the leading rôles.

"Under False Pretenses" (La Salle, Oct. 2)—Leo Ditrichstein in his new play by Ben Hecht.

those who love you and curse those who have despitefully knocked you by getting back on the job.

BROWSING BACKWARD

Dear Miss Tinée: In browsing back among the old ones, I fail to see any mention made of "The Escape" which was in my opinion one of the best picture ever produced. Mae Marsh did some of her finest work in that, as well as Robert Harron, Blanch Sweet, Owen Moore and the rest. BEATRICE.

Dear Miss Tinée: Every Sunday we read your column through and through, my hubby and I, and we think it's great. But when I come to your Browsing Backwards my interest doubles, for it takes me right back to Judge Wheeler's little old nickel shooter somewhere down in the backwoods of southeastern Ohio. There, as a kid, I saw 'em—the first real thrillers! Chewing gum and clinging to a dirty bag of hard candy, right down in the frontest seat!

Who remembers Dante's "Inferno," that terrible picturization of hell? How fervent my prayers were several nights after seeing that—how terrorized of death I was, for even the tiniest fibs—O boy! what Dante saw done to those who told 'em!

And I wept copious tears over the "Passion Play"—beautiful forever that picture shall be in my memory. Then I remember "Quincy Adams Sawyer," which stands boldly out in old time pictures. Somewhere back in those days, too, I remember Vera Sisson and Jack Kerrigan (O, here of my youthful dreams), in the lovely little story poem, "Little Meg and I."

Then there were the 101 Bisons—"War on the Plains" and "them" kind, where the Injuns were really truly and the cowboys shot to kill! How I used to grab my chair and gasp in terror!

Then, more recent, are "Over the Hill," "Tol'able David," "Smilin' Through," "Forever," and last but not least, "Blood and Sand" (O, Rudie), and "Kindred of the Dust."

Of course there are many lovely in betweeners that I enjoyed, but these somehow stand out more. Excuse my lengthiness, but ever since childhood movies have been my hobby.

LITTLE MIKE.

KICK KORNER

My dear Miss Tinée: I have been a constant reader of your column ever since my arrival in the windy city, a matter of a year or so ago. During that time I have grown to like and respect your views and I am taking this opportunity to thank you for the unbiased criticisms that you have given us. I like them because you view pictures through clear eyes, and are free of the mawkish sentimentalism that seems to infest most people in your profession.

Talking about mawkish sentiments—

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

All He Remembers Is His Visit to the Stockyards

By Mme. X.

IT is a good thing to see ourselves occasionally as others see us, though only occasionally. To do so often would disturb our peace of mind and keep us awake nights. For instance, here is J. C. Squire of England, a gentleman and a scholar, who came to Chicago last winter for a visit. He brought letters of introduction to various local celebrities, people of acknowledged culture and charm, who entertained him with dinners and the opera. But did he carry away with him pleasant memories of the Horace Martins, of Mary Garden in "Le Jongleur," of Lake Michigan in its many and varied phases? He did not.

All that remained with him, if one may judge from a long, rhymeless, meterfull moan in a summer number of the London Mercury (of which, by the way, I believe he is editor), entitled "The Stockyard: Chicago, A Poem," is a nightmare memory of slaughter, blood, and stench. He admits that he is a meat eater, therefore responsible in a measure for the murder of animals for food. He must know that even in England there is no pleasant lethal chamber for cows and pigs. If he brought any faculty of observation to bear in his visit to the stockyards he must have seen that these institutions are a marvel of organization whose achievement has been to place the eating of meat and meat products within the reach of millions of people who formerly had to deny themselves this form of nourishment.

Pages of Walls.

Before the days of the Chicago stockyards it was only the better off classes who had meat on their daily bill of fare. Today sees all that changed and an enlarged (and enlarging) diet is within reach of many besides the well fed class to which Mr. Squire undoubtedly belongs.

Yet he fills six large pages of blank verse with a howl about the Chicago stockyards, and gives all his English readers who may not be otherwise acquainted with our burg the impression that we walk in blood; that the smell of slaughter is constantly in our nostrils; that the lowing of the murdered kine often interrupts the chorus of our grand opera; that even in our merriest moments we are conscious of the reign of death which is Chicago's constant state.

It is to laugh!

Why did he go to see the horror the sight of which he was so little able to endure? His own inner consciousness warned him not to, speaking in his ear thus:

You have come to see the filthiest thing in the world;
Why have you come to a thing so loathe-
  some,
To ask trite questions and act indifference
As now you are doing before you have started
To stroll through the filthiest place in the world?

After seeing all that there was to see, "pigs atrociously naked," where "The wheels of death were grinding, death at each stroke," "Life pouring down a shoot (we'd spell it shute) to the dark Pit," a place "all dewy with death, Old death soaked in" and so on, he went out into the rest of Chicago, visiting clubs, shops, drawing rooms, streets and courts. It was of no avail: the haunting stockyards pursued him everywhere:

In streets and courts, at the edge of the ruffled gray lake,
My nostrils were suddenly filled with the scent from the suburbs,
A sickening, pungent, invisible reek blowing in Over miles of roofs. I set my teeth to my retching.

On he goes:

The odour of death that hangs always over Chicago.
Chicago lives always in the breath from the caverns of Death,
And her people walk always knowing it,
  trying to forget it;
Buying and selling and playing, fringed
  by that horror,
They smell it and do not speak.

But it is when he is a guest at the opera, our splendid grand opera, where we go and are supposed to know surcease and relief for a few hours from our burdens of blood and death, a load we carry for the benefit of a meat eating world, it is, as I say, when Mr. Squire attends what we consider our "chef d'œuvre," Mary Garden in "Le Jongleur," that this master of blank verse is at his most eloquent:

They saw a pageant of white cowled monks who chanted,
Feigned worship and grief, a woman
  dressed as a boy;
They were fired and lifted, comforted
  and saddened, delighted.
By chains of pearly song, deep organ-
  like choruses . . .
Across that circle of thousands
At the summit of civilization
In a pause of the music
Like the boding voice of disaster
I heard a desolate lowing.
They were happy in song and colour,
Flushed and tender and yearning:
But wanning the air a cloud came over,
A poisonous breath that choked my nostrils.

The "they" of this epic undoubtedly refers to the audience. One line of this description will bring cheer to the hearts of the Friends of Opera, that one in which he speaks of "Bare armed women and quiet white fronted men." It has taken years of training to produce those quiet white fronted men. In the first years of opera many a husband was brought, as his wife expressed it, "kicking and screaming," to the Auditorium.

It Seems Inconsistent.

So that's the way we appear to Mr. J. C. Squire of England! We're a smelly, noisome, blood splashed folk. Let us not hope to disguise our shame by a top dressing of culture, wide boulevards, excellent music, up to date art galleries, great universities, lively literary clubs, and our many sided social life. Perhaps it would be as well to insist after this that enlightened foreigners who want to visit our great meat industry, which nourishes the world, should be asked to pass a simple examination. The morbidly imaginative should be gently but firmly restrained from going to those scenes of slaughter until we have devised a system of killing that is entirely bloodless and painless. This change in methods we hope will come before the next British poet is permitted to cross the threshold of what is indeed a chamber of death and blood. But let it not be forgotten that the English are probably the greatest meat eaters in the world today.

As we cannot yet afford to give up one of our chief industries, why can't the job of counteracting the effects of the slaughter houses be handed over to such capable institutions as the Civic Dwellers or the Little Roomers? They cannot wash out the blood or offer a perfume as strong as the stench of the stockyards, but they can provide such antidotes as gatherings of clever, witty, and wise people and give the wandering poets a chance to blow off their steam without committing it to paper and disseminating such imperfect and incomplete pictures about our city by the lake as are contained in this tuneless ditty.

Lea with the Kiplings.

A recently returned Chicago couple, who spent four months or so in England and France, bring back interesting accounts of well known people whom they met. Among these were Mr. and Mrs. Rudyard Kipling, old friends of the wandering Chicagoans. The Kiplings live in a quaint old manor house built in the time of Queen Elizabeth by an ironmaster, a celebrated one in his day, as he cast the heavy iron cannon balls with which Sir Francis Drake, Sir Walter Raleigh, and other adventurers fitted out their ships of war. It is situated in a remote, inaccessible corner in Sussex. It is built of hoary gray stone and the oaken beams inside are black with age. Kipling has never been in first class health since our custom house officers kept him and his family waiting an interminable time on a bitter cold night on the docks at New York. One of his sons caught pneumonia from the exposure and died. Kipling himself also was very ill with the same malady and except for the Hymn of the Recessional, "Lest We Forget," never again wrote anything quite up to his previous mark, though he has published many books since then, probably because he had a family to support.

Mrs. Kipling received the visitors. She had known them from her childhood in Brattleboro, Vt. She was cordial and interesting, but made no mention of her husband until the tea tray was brought in, an enormous Indian brass affair with a richly carved turned-up edge, when she said that she had promised to wake him up at that time. He came in blinking his eyes and holding in his hand a small inch square book.

After greeting his guests he showed them the tiny volume, saying: "I've nearly lost my eyesight over this. It is to be put in a little playhouse that Eyiton is making for Queen Alexandra and to which all the famous people of the empire today are to contribute something."

A Doll House for a Queen.

He himself was composing and writing with his own hand an appropriate poem to go into this volume of poetry. He told of others who were contributing of their specialties. The most noted surgeon in England was writing an anatomy of dolls, describing how their joints are formed, what the normal sawdust pressure is, and giving as one statistic that female dolls outnumber the male dolls twelve to one.

Later the Chicago travelers went to see our popular and well known former Chicago belle, Lady Lavery, and she showed them two full length portraits, four or five inches in height, and fully framed, of the late King Edward and Dowager Queen Alexandra, which Sir John had painted as his contribution to the doll house.

It is not the first of its kind to be presented to British royalty. In the South Kensington museum earlier examples of this quaint art are on exhibition today, doll houses that were once presented to other queens, Queen Anne, Queen Mary, and some of the wives of the Georges. They are not works of art; merely curios evidencing the patience and devotion of subjects to whom it is a privilege to touch the fringe of royal robes.

It was a lively delegation of well known women who departed on Friday in a special car to take part in the women's national amateur golf tournament, which is held the coming week at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Not only are they all good golf players, but they are also fine bridgeites, and it seems probable that, after the days on the soft green golf links, which were laid out by Charles B. McDonald, they will spend the evenings around the festive card tables.

Those going on this pleasure jaunt are the Mesdames George A. McKinlock, D. Mark Cummings, Frank Wilhelm, George McLaughlin, Leander McCormick, Oscar Johnson, J. E. Baum, Austin Niblack, Fred Letts, James Minotte, and the Misses Edith Cummings and Harriet McLaughlin.

These older women, all champions on the north shore golf courses, will have to look out for their laurels; 16 year old Virginia Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Wilson of Lake Forest, made the first nine holes at Shore Acres, considered the most difficult course in this neighborhood, in 43 in the women's weekly tournament last Monday.

Our wandering Chicagoans are returning to the fold. Mrs. Albert Dick, who, with her husband and sons, went abroad last February, arrives today. Mr. Dick sailed for home two months ago, and has spent the latter part of the summer at his camp in northern Michigan.

Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson sailed yesterday from France, where she has been for two months acquiring rare old French furniture for her house on Astor street, which is nearing completion. To the average woman there is nothing so exhilarating as buying furniture abroad. Mrs. Marshall Field III. has been ransacking England for choice pieces of old furniture for her two houses, one in New York and one on Long Island. In consequence of this search, the price of walnut tables, chairs, consoles, and beds has reached a fabulous height.

En Route to Montreal.

Count Bolognesi, formerly Italian consul general of this part of the country, with headquarters in Chicago, was in the city for a day or two last week on his way to pick up his wife and children at Delavan lake and take them to his new post at Montreal. Having just returned from Sarajevo, in Jugo-Slavia, the city made famous by the assassination of the crown prince of Austria in June, 1914, he had many interesting things to tell the guests at a little dinner at Mr. and Mrs. William P. Martin's of Lake Forest, given in his honor last Monday.

We seem to chronicle every week some change of domicile. Now it is A. B. Dick Jr., who has bought the charming colonial house on the Green Bay road in Lake Forest, originally built by Hugh McBirney Johnston, later sold to and remodeled by Miss Mary and Miss Clara Cudahy. The tendency of people along the north shore seems to be to play a great game of "Stage residences marks the restlessness and prosperity of the inhabitants of that part of the country.

Magnificent Polychrome Mirrors

Seventh Floor—Dearborn Street

Only 200 of these beautiful mirrors; be on time.

Just the mirror for over console, tables or mantels.

Magnificent is not too strong a word to describe these mirrors; indeed, such mirrors are rarely offered in a special selling event for the reason that they are a "quality" rather than "quantity" article.

They are mounted in 2½ inch beautifully gold burnished, or various hued polychrome frames, with ornate tops, and fitted with a flawless panel of polished plate glass mirror.

The size is 53x16 inches. Just 200 mirrors could be obtained to be offered at so very low a figure; while they last, tomorrow, you can choose a $22 mirror for..... 12.75

THE ANNUAL October Sale of Silks

Second Floor—State Street

Manifestly the Annual October Sale of Silks has carved a place for itself within the thoughts of all feminine Chicago—that is "the backbone of the Sale," for this place in the thoughts of all feminine Chicago has been attained only by service—the service of not only providing the newest silks as well as the staple silks, but providing them in a lavish manner—at the time when they are most in demand—for this Great Silk Event is served by Europe as attentively as by the foremost mills in America. All the new silks are here first—all the new colorings await your inspection here first—and still the most careful comparison of values finds them best here. The huge volume of our sales makes that possible—sales that increase day by day, year by year. Just now when crepe weaves are most in vogue they are here for your choosing in over a score of distinctive weavings and in endless styles, priced in each instance lower than equal qualities can be had for elsewhere. Silks owe their popularity to their beauty, and surely they were never more beautiful, more attractive, more irresistible than they are for Autumn. To tell the story of the October Sale adequately in the newspapers is difficult indeed, and so we ask you to let these few items suffice—enough for you to judge the economies by.

Canton Crepes All silk, fine heavy quality, the most popular of all fall silks, at a lower price than has ever been offered; 40 inches wide, in black, white, cocoa, brown, camel's hair, navy, copen, tangerine, jade, bobolink; in fact, all the latest light and dark shades to choose from; the usual $3.50 quality, for the October Sale Monday at, yard 2.29

THE WEEK WE FEATURE
The Corset of the Hour

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

For almost a month past our corset fitting rooms have been busy practically every moment of the day, with numerous requests by our customers that our corsetieres bring their figures back to their former symmetrical proportions, which in most instances meant the use of the Nemo Wonderlift corset, called by one customer the corset of the hour, and aptly so, for we have found that some one of the ten models of

is the ideal corset for the woman who has already seen the need of regaining the lines of her figure, lost through poor or careless corseting or through the use of no corset at all; its hygienic style service is so great, if scientifically applied, that the demand for them has grown over thirty per cent recently—each of our staff of expert corsetieres is a graduate of the "N. H. F. I. of New York"—the supervisor of our corps of corsetieres and the specialist in charge of the Medicanical Health Station maintained in our corset store are all at your service without extra charge to advise you which model is actually best for your individual figure, which can bring it the fashionable, long symmetrical lines with both health and comfort.

The Hygienic-Style Service of Wonderlift Corsets

The invention of the Wonderlift corset marked a distinct advance in the science of corsetry, and is now fully recognized by the medical profession. The greatest medical authority of international fame, Professor Adolf Lorenz, of the University of Vienna, founder of bloodless surgery, made the following remarks after examining the Wonderlift corset:

"I especially recommend these ingeniously constructed corsets for women who have stretched and weak abdominal muscles. It seems to me that these corsets are particularly beneficial to women who are actively engaged in work which requires much physical exertion. Other devices in Nemo corsets are of immeasurable value to the stout woman with an abnormally large abdomen."

In preventing physical weaknesses, the Wonderlift corset is essential to all women, and it is indispensable to those who have ailments to which almost all women are subject. The Wonderlift bandlet is its most remarkable feature. It is placed underneath the corset-skirt and when adjusted has great uplifting and reducing power. This makes the figure smaller and more symmetrical. The fundamental purpose of the Wonderlift corset is to render hygienic-style service which cannot be had in any other corset. The result is a perfect combination of the preservation of health and the creation of a symmetrical figure. To choose from there are

Ten Models at $6.50 to $13.00

The Hygienic-Style Service of Self-Reducing, Kop-Service And Other Nemo Specialties

The Nemo self-reducing has been the stout woman's corset for a quarter of a century. It needs no special introduction. Thousands of women have worn and still wear it. The hygienic-style service of the self-reducing corset is based on common sense principles. The reduction and reshaping of the abdomen are accomplished by eliminating excess fatty tissue which accumulates on the abdomen and in the groin section. This elimination is accomplished by the self-reducing straps which support and reduce the abdomen most effectively. Without exception, every stout woman can be fitted in the self-reducing corset. In 1897 the celebrated Dr. Egbert Guernsey added his indorsement to the Nemo Self-Reducing Corsets. There are

Twenty Self-Reducing Models

at $4.00 to $9.00

Kop-Service Corsets and Other Nemo Corset Specialties Represent Features of Necessity and Utility

Each corset accomplishes a complete service, and the majority of models in the Kop-Service line are devoted to taking care of over-developed hips and thighs. The Nemo "bridge"; the new Flatning-back; the Juspul; the difram-reducing and the maternity are all of invaluable service in the reconstruction and reshaping of the figure, which has become a crying need to most women.

Included in these services are thirty-two models at $4.00 to $13.50

Do You Wear a Circlet?

Every woman who wears a brassiere will find the circlet far more convenient, also the circlet can aid you in bringing back your figure, for it is self-adjusting and reduces the upper part of the figure to harmonize with the lower. It is made in twenty-two models at

Health Restored By Radium

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious health-giving substance have in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment which offers so much relief from suffering and disease.

Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio-active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send our appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble, or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co., 373 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

Modern Hot Water Service in Chicago's Fine Homes

Ultra-modern hot water service is included among the many comforts found in the Sheridan Road residence of Mr. J. B. Edwards, president of the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply Company. This service is economically provided by a Royal Automatic Storage Gas Water Heater. Hot water service in many of Chicago's beautifully appointed homes is provided by a Royal.

THE Royal automatic
Storage Gas Water Heater

In choosing the Royal the owners of these homes are guided by the opinion of the country's foremost heating engineers who agree that the best and most economical way of providing hot water is by the storage method as perfected in the Royal Automatic. Hot water must be stored for service that is truly instantaneous—for service that is absolutely dependable—and for service adequate to meet all hot water needs at all times. Besides which, hot water supplied the storage way requires far less gas in heating.

Learn what modern, automatic hot water service really is and how much comfort it will bring to your home by seeing the Royal in actual operation at our

MUSIC AND THE MUSICIANS

Chicago and New York within the last few years. It was furnished by a conductor who has directed in both cities. You will be able to recognize several names of the Chicago and Metropolitan opera companies. It includes Anna Roselle, Greek Evans, Alys Mychot, Wilhelm Beck, Carl Jorn, Henrietta Wakefield, Mario Chamlee, Carl Bitterl, Phillins Falco, Irene Williams, Vincente field, Mario Chamlee, Carl Bitterl, Phillina Falco, Irene Williams, Vincente Ballester, Desire Defrere, and Emanuel List. The last named at present has a prominent position in the opera at Vienna. Some, as I have said, concealed their identities under other names, but the conductor who gave me the information assures me that it is correct.

F. Wight Neumann, newly returned from a vacation spent on the Pacific coast, announces that he has leased the Studebaker theater and the Playhouse for every Sunday afternoon during the coming season and has rented the Auditorium theater for ten Sunday afternoons. His concert season at the Studebaker will be opened on Oct. 8 by Rosa Ponselle, dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan opera; on the same date Glenn Dillard Gunn will appear in a piano recital at the Playhouse.

Among the artists who will appear under Mr. Neumann's management during the season are Mme. Frances Alda, prima donna soprano, Metropolitan opera; Harold Bauer, pianist; Pablo Casals, cellist; Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist and conductor Detroit Symphony orchestra; Benamino Gigli, tenor, Metropolitan opera, New York; Elena Gerhardt, liedersinger; Rudolph Ganz, pianist and conductor St. Louis Symphony orchestra; Mme. Frieda Hempel, coloratura soprano; Jascha Heifetz, violinist; Josef Hofmann, pianist; Maria Jeritza, prima donna soprano, Metropolitan opera; Fritz Kreisler, violinist; Florence MacBeth, coloratura soprano; Sergei Rachmaninoff, pianist; Titta Ruffo, baritone, Metropolitan opera; Jacques Thibaud, French violinist; as well as Bertha Freeman Ashberry, pianist; Viola Cole Audet, pianist; Herbert Butler, violinist; Lyell Barber, pianist; Edward Collins, pianist; Viola Ehrmann, soprano; Dorothy Denham Eichenlaub, pianist; Raymond Havens, pianist; Pansy Jacobs Liberfarb, pianist; Leone Kruse, soprano; Dorothy Lindenbaum, pianist; Meta Lustgarten, soprano; Mabel Lyons, pianist; Heniot Levy, pianist; Kathryn Meisle, contralto; Ralph Michaelis, violinist; Marie Novello, pianist; Fritz Renk, violinist; Carolyn Willard, pianist; Marie Sidenius Zendt, soprano; the Irish Regiment band of Toronto, and a joint recital by Harold Bauer and Pablo Casals and Marcel Dupre, organist of Notre Dame de Paris, which recital will take place at the St. James Episcopal church.

Alexander Akimoff, Russian basso cantante, will be heard in recital at Orchestra hall Sunday afternoon, Oct. 8. M. Akimoff was one of the principal bassos at the Petrograd Royal opera, where he sang for eight years. He will be assisted by Daphne Edwards, pianist, and Isaac Van Grove, accompanist.

INA BOURSKAYA.
[Moffett Photo.]
Mme. Bourskaya is a new mezzo soprano of the Civic Opera company. She was heard in three guest performances at Ravinia last summer.

* *

With the announcements of sailing dates for stars of the Chicago Civic Opera company, who are not already in this country and with the recent arrival of several of them in Chicago, the enthusiasm of opera fans receives an impetus. Tryouts for the opera ballet are now under way in the school of Adolph Bolm at 624 South Michigan avenue, and, although the entire ballet has not yet been selected and applicants the still coming and are welcome, preliminary rehearsals are beginning. Mr. Bolm will not only create the various ballets but will dance in many of them himself. One of these will be in Rimsky-Korsakov's opera, "Snow Maiden," which is to be staged with the special scenery designed by the famous Russian colorist, Nicholas Roerich, whose exhibition at the Art institute last year created a sensation.

* *

A number of the stars in the Chicago opera firmament are planning short concert tours before the opening of the opera season. Among them are Rosa Raisa, Mary Garden, Ina Bourskaya, Claudia Muzio, Cyrena Van Gordon, Irene Pavloska, Tita Schipa, and Feodor Challapin, who is now singing concerts in England before sailing for the United States in early October.

"Seeing Things at Night," Notably a Brand New Star

second. It so happens that the newest of Broadway's potential stars is exceedingly beautiful, but that is not exactly an asset, particularly in a light comedy rôle. Critics are apt to say "personable" of such a player and let it go at that. Miss Gahagan's beauty was quite a secondary feature of the evening. She was able to impress the audience with the fact that she could move readily from one mood to another, that her voice was agreeable and flexible, and that in addition to a marked gift for comedy she could make even the somewhat spurious emotional scenes of Owen Davis take on a semblance of reality.

Davis has begun in a pleasant vein of light comedy concerning a spoiled and self willed young miss who has just been expelled from her third college. It is such a part and such an act as Tarkington might have written. With the end of the first act the vein is allowed to lapse. The play becomes serious and theatrical. We have great north woods, never too convincing on the stage, and a duel between two warring capitalists as to which shall be the first to build a pulp mill. In the end the good and righteous capitalist succeeds in blowing up the motor truck of his rival which is carrying the necessary machinery for the completion of the plant. The noise of the explosion unites four estranged couples with a suddenness which was ludicrous even to so naive a gathering as a Broadway first night audience.

So far the season has been far more impressive in players than plays. Arthur Richman's new comedy, "The Awful Truth," is an agreeable, light waisted, short weight little entertainment, but in the skillful hands of Ina Claire and Bruce McRae it seems much better than that. The piece has authentic wit, but it also has moments in which the story would sag confoundedly if it were not for the briskness and charm of a perfectly coördinated cast. Miss Claire excels in establishing and maintaining a mood of wistful mockery. She is by all odds the actress best fitted to play a rôle in which the heroine is supposed to be a little sentimental and cynical at the same time. In "The Awful Truth" she never allows the lines or the situations of Arthur Richman's play to become bogged in stickiness. Just when one fears that something will be much too sweet Ina Claire swings the mood to mockery and the self-respect of everybody is saved.

The plot of the piece concerns a young woman named Lucy who calls upon her divorced husband to give her a good character to her fiancé. There have been rumors that she was involved in an affair. Indeed, the first husband is firmly of the opinion that she was, but he lies like a gentleman, and even more ably. The second suitor is convinced, but the marriage never takes place. Lucy decides that it is her first husband whom she loves.

Most of the complications in the play center around Lucy's efforts to prove that all the suspicions about her are groundless. As the play was originally written, we are told, Lucy was not innocent at all. That was the point of the piece, but the author has been obliging enough to sacrifice his heroine to complete respectability because New York audiences will not have their heroine otherwise except in farces or tragedies.

"Me and Martha" at the GARRICK by Voorhees

Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

A LOVESOME THOUGHT.

It is a sweet and noble thought
When with enthusiasm fraught
The college lads can aid their team
By rising with a mighty scream
And volleying raucous cheer on cheer
Composed of sundry words and queer:

Eeph-a-soph-a-lophus,
Eeph-a-soph-a-lah,
Bite 'em on the ankle,
Swat 'em on the craw,
ONE-gazip, TWO-gazip, THREE-gazip,
R-A-H!

But wouldn't it be a lovesome thing
If we encouragement could bring
To others who upon life's way
Are struggling bravely day by day?
When crossing cops are moved to cuss
How sweet 'twould be to cheer them thus:

WOT thahel d'ye think ya doin'?
WHO d'ye think ya are?
WHERE thahel d'ye think yure goin'?
RAR! RAR! RARRRR!

[Note: Apologies to Eddie Guest for the use of the rhyme "way-day."]

Removing Ugly Hairs—Entirely New Method

(Actually Removes the Roots)

The question is often asked whether a really permanently efficacious hair-remover exists, and the answer has here-tofore been very unsatisfactory. Fortunately, there's a new and remarkable process that really removes every hair entire, root and all! It is different from and far better than electricity, depilatories, the razor, or any other method. If you'd like to try it, just get a stick of Phelactine from your druggist, follow the simple instructions—and with your own eyes see the hair roots come out! Roots are removed quickly, easily, leaving the skin perfectly smooth and hair-free.

Phelactine is non-irritating, odorless, and so harmless you could eat it!

The Movie Fans' Kick Korner

Miss Tinée, have you seen "Blood and Sand"? And if so, were you hit square between the eyes by this poster on the outside of the theater? "Nita Naldi: the sullen mood of a dark velvet rose—" I won't quote the rest of it, because I do not remember it verbatim, and even if I did, I wouldn't, because it certainly was awful. Bah! And again Bah! I can't imagine what those writers are thinking of when they write stuff like that.

And another thing—why won't they learn a language before they use it? Is "Blood and Sand" I noticed that the term "querida" was used quite often. Now, the word itself is all right; it means dear. But there is a certain way of using it. It is generally prefixed before a name; for instance—querida Maria, or querida Anita; but it is never [in good families at least] used by itself. The reason for this is that the word used by itself means a man's mistress. I am wondering whether they made that farm up or whether my esteemed compatriot, Señor Ybanez, is responsible for it. I am inclined to think that the author had nothing to do with the titles and so we will lay the blame at the feet of the continuity writers.

Permit me to thank you again, gracious lady, and please keep up the good work of giving us the kind of criticisms that you have, and we assure you that they are and always will be—deeply appreciated.

A GRATEFUL READER.

[Editor's note: It seems that "Blood and Sand" was in crying need of a Spanish teacher.]

Dear Miss Tinée: Over West Madison street way last night I dropped in to see a movie called "Male and Female," and I want to register a protest. The show featured Thomas Meighan and Gloria Swanson, and also Theodore Roberts, a good old time actor, and that's where my protest comes in.

I'll bet it has cost me $35 in the last two years to go into picture shows and look at Theodore Roberts chew up cigars. I can chew up cigars myself—but I don't—I smoke 'em.

I have seen Mr. Roberts, who is a good old time legit actor, do some good acting in days gone by [in the spoken drama], and it gives me a pain to see him make most of his act a cigar chewing contest. He might as well be an acrobat or a sleight of hand performer—wot?

Don't say anything to Theodore about this, as he might quit chewing them, and then I wouldn't have a leg to stand on. LUKE MCLUKE.

[Editor's note: Maybe he does it under doctor's orders. Or maybe he has an interest in a cigar factory and believes in advertising.]

Dear Miss Tinée: Here's something for your Kick Korner, directed at the producers. Why, whenever they want to depict a young woman as being catty, old maidish, and all that sort of thing, do they have said young person wear rubber tired glasses? Unfortunately I wear glasses at the movies and when at work, and I always take it as a personal insult. It hurts my feelings terribly as I am sure it does every one so afflicted. They never make fun of a person with a wooden leg or arm or other deformity. I am sure no one wears glasses for effect. You tell 'em, Mae. You know how.

M. F.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

MI QUERIDA: You quit picking on Elba! The best of us make mistakes. Of course you are interested in Ralph Graves—but watch your step. He's married—to Marjorie Seaman—and she's a mighty pretty girl. Thanks for all the pleasant things you said in your letter.

STONY HEART: O, well, things have a habit of getting worse before they get better. If you'll notice, a run of punk pictures is usually followed by a deluge of good ones. It may be true, as somebody has said, that the silver lining is what makes the clouds wear so well, but—anyhow—don't give up hope.

WALLACE: I think Mr. MacDonald would be glad to give you his picture. Send a quarter with your request—to pay for the expense of mailing, etc. No, this department has none either to give or sell. Sorry.

A. A.: Both toreadors and matadors fight bulls. A toreador, however, is, I believe, usually mounted. Yes, I think your favorite a good actor. So they say. Fat? Search me. Never saw the gentleman.

PATRICK: That was a good line. Did you think of it yourself?

"My brother is very alert."

"In what way?"

"Last week he sat down on a tack."

"How does that prove he's alert?"

"He never misses a point."

"I feel like fifty cents."

"You mean like thirty cents."

"No, like fifty cents; everything has been marked up."

"What's the meaning of 'giving comfort to the enemy'?"

"Paying alimony."

"My mother has sent me a mince pie without raisins in it."

"Attach an electric battery to the pie."

"What for?"

"That will give you a few currents."

"I want to sweep the cobwebs from my brain."

"Why not use a vacuum cleaner?"

"Yesterday I couldn't get a five dollar bill changed in this whole town."

"Didn't any one have the change?"

"Yes, but I didn't have the five dollars."

"My best girl calls me lightning."

"Why so?"

"She says I don't know how to conduct myself."

"Did you hear of the fright I had at the restaurant yesterday?"

"I thought your wife ate all her meals at home."

A STAR AT LARGE

By Mae Tinée.

INSTALLMENT 1.

GODFREY GOOFUS leaped faunlike up the six flights of stairs that led to the rear of his humble abode. Joy sang in his heart. His lithe form palpitated with enthusiasm. Excitement glittered in the brilliant eyes of periwinkle blue that swam behind tangled eyelashes. Something was most undoubtedly UP!

At the kitchen door, however, he paused and cocked an ear. Something told him to go right back down again the way he had come and return with police protection. For his Maria had not been kind that morning. She had got out of her system a number of things that had long been rankling that had to do with full grown men who could never keep a job. She had held up the butcher, rotund and unmarried, as a shining example of what a man should be. Godfrey had left the house to the accompaniment of breaking dishes and screaming offspring. (Twins.)

Now, after many hours had passed—? ? ? He started to take off his shoes with the idea of beating a hasty retreat. But fate willed not so. Maria had heard him.

The door opened suddenly. Maria, utterly hopeless and unmistakably mad, stood before him, beef to the heel. She surveyed his sheiklike form with wifely disgust.

"So!" she said. "SO!"

"Remember them nights down by the lake front?" asked Jumbo, thinking fast. "You were as wonderful as this cabbage I have brought for dinner. SO——" he proffered a parcel. "Happy day! Now we have cabbage every day. Fortune has grinned."

Maria grabbed the parcel. "Swiped it?" she queried scathingly.

"Bought it," returned Godfrey proudly. "See—I got a job. I got some advance pay."

Maria sniffed—but she listened. Godfrey entered the kitchen. He leaned nonchalantly against the sink and said nothing.

"Go ON!" shrieked Maria. "Open your mouth! SAY something!"

Godfrey held up a warning finger. "I can't," he answered. "I can't really tell you nothing. Only it is honest work and good money. You are not to believe anything you hear and if you see anything that looks funny—why, it's your eyes. And if anybody says anything to you, you don't understand, look wise and keep your mouth shut. From now on as far as me goes, I'm a stranger."

Maria gasped. Godfrey rolled a cigaret.

"I go and take my shirt off," he said. "Wash it. Do a good job. I take off my suit and go to bed for a while. Press it with sharp creases." He ruffled his chestnut pompadour.

"Don't ask me NOTHING. I am a mystery," he said.

"You got yourself wrong. You are a mistake," growled his Maria, setting the wash boiler on the stove.

Woman Finds a Way.

Dorothy and her mother were visiting Uncle William, who was wealthy.

Dorothy was interested in heathens, so one morning she said, "Uncle, dear, will you please give me something for my missionary box?"

Uncle William playfully threw on the table a dime, two quarters, and a five dollar bill, saying, "There! You may have which you like of the three."

The child studied the money for a few moments. Then she said, "Mother always tells me not to be greedy, so I'll take the littlest one, but please wrap it up in that crinkly bit of paper, uncle, so I shan't lose it." C. D.

BABEL

By Guy Lee.

When the carpenter and the plumber cease;
When the yodeling peddler's mournful howl
Is stilled; does the war of noise decrease?
It does like. The yard cats yowl,
The amateur Paderewski pounds;
The budding Caruso starts to sing.
Always and always the home of sounds,
An apartment house is an awful thing.

When the wailing infant is heard no more;
When the screechy soprano gives us a rest;
When the loud feet kids on the upper floor
Are finally tucked in their slumber nest;
When the party laughs its last yap laugh;
When the scrappy maids bawl their good-night fling;
Then some nut drags out the phonograph—
An apartment house is an awful thing.

Away past midnight when the flats
Achieve a sort of a silence, and
There's only a smatter of family spats
Drifting out on the breezes grand;
When all is quiet (almost) next door,
And sleep to the eyelid tries to cling;
Then a neighbor lets loose his buzz-saw snore—
An apartment house is an awful thing.

Peace is a dream, far, far away;
There is not a chance that hope can bring;
Forever, yesterday and today,
An apartment house is an awful thing!

ASTRONOMY

SPEED OF LIGHT.

By S. F. Maxwell.

A spiral nebula. The universe is a spiral like this. It requires light 300,000 years to cross from side to side.

LIGHT does not flash everywhere at the same instant. You have, no doubt, often seen the steam from a distant whistle jet up and then, several second after, hear the note. Sound is carried by waves in the air. It travels a little over 1,000 feet per second, or slower than most bullets fly. Light is also a vibration, but it travels so fast that a beam would shoot a distance of over seven times around the world in a second. The speed of such rapid moving vibrations is naturally most difficult to learn.

In former years the velocity of light was determined by watching the moons of the planet Jupiter. This far off world has four satellites circling about him. Some of them are eclipsed in his shadow or pass between the earth and him almost every night. Astronomers made tables showing when eclipses should occur, much like the tables in an almanac. But Jupiter's moons for a long time wouldn't keep to their schedules. This greatly puzzled the scientists, until at last they realized that light itself does not flash here and on Jupiter at the same instant.

When the planet was farthest away the eclipses began and ended 16 minutes and 16 seconds late. This quarter of an hour was evidently the time required for light to cross the earth's orbit.

The light time between here and the sun is 8 minutes 8 seconds, and as the distance is 93,000,000 miles, we find that light travels 186,000 miles per second.

Celestial distances are commonly measured in light years, or the number of miles that light will move over in one year of time. Miles, and even millions of miles, are far too insigning on the problem. Light beams from a narrow source are permitted to shine on a mirror set on a wheel, from whence they are reflected to a second more distant mirror set as far away as possible. From this second glass the waves retrace their course, are reflected by the mirror on the wheel a second time, pass through the source and into the eye of the observer. When the apparatus is standing still the eye sees the source and its reflected image as one.

Then the wheel is set in motion. As the mirror turns it cuts the beam up into many separate flashes, only a few of which may reach the mirror farther on. Let us trace one of these flashes as it flies.

The waves race to the farther mirror, they explain. "We went at our normal rate, but we could not be at the wheel, at the far mirror, and back all at once; while we were out there the wheel moved and made us skid sideways."

The faster the wheel turns the greater becomes the distance between the source and its image. Scientists, conducting this experiment with a many sided wheel mirror, find that light travels 186,345 miles per second, with a possible error of some thirty miles in the tens place.

GEOLOGY

SINKING INTO THE WATER.

THE eastern continent edge of North America stands 150 miles or more east of the present shore. Maine, Massachusetts, Long Island, New Jersey, and the eastern peninsula of Maryland are not the limits of the United States, strictly speaking. The limit is far out to sea. Our coasts are sinking. Places that were formerly dry land are now beneath the waters of the Atlantic ocean. The characters of a sinking coast are easy to see. There are marks that any eye can read. Drowned valleys, deep embayments, jutting capes, and sometimes rocky headlands are sure signs that the land is dipping beneath the sea.

The Hudson river is now drowned for a great part of its length. The land has subsided, and lowered the river bed below sea level. Careful soundings south of Long Island reveal a former river channel, winding along on what is now the bed of the ocean. The water shelves out gradually to 100 fathoms, then plunges sharply down as the edge of the continent is reached.

CHEMISTRY

MAKING DIAMONDS.

THE lead in a lead pencil is not lead at all, but carbon. Carbon exists in three forms, charcoal or soot, graphite and diamond. Organic carbon is a soft, black powder; graphite is harder, gray and more lustrous, while diamond is crystalline and when pure is quite transparent.

Small diamonds can be made from graphite. A quantity of the latter substance is dissolved in molten iron, a metal that has a special affinity for carbon. The blazing crucible is then plunged into cold water. The iron cools suddenly on the outside and exerts a tremendous pressure on its still molten interior. Carbon is thrown out of solution as the iron harders, but because of the pressure it comes out not as graphite but as diamond. The iron is dissolved away by acid. Diamond crystals then separate and can be recovered.

Your Hot Bath Always Ready

Just Turn the Faucet and Step In Any Hour of the Day or Night

ABOUT the most enjoyable feature of a bath is its timeliness. Having it when you want it—not when some slow-moving contraption down cellar finally decides to let you have your stingy quota of hot water. A bath is your own affair—you want it when you want it.

You may like a bath the first thing when you get up in the morning. You may like one when you get home from work. Or the last thing before you go to bed at night. Or maybe you like to skip around—now one time, now another. In any case you can have it just the way you like it when you're depending on a

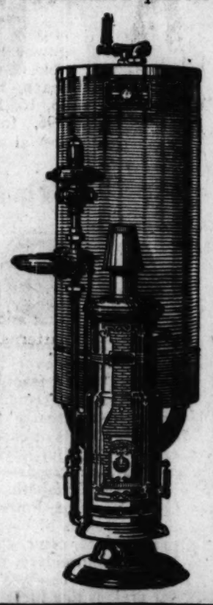
HUMPHREY
TRADE MARK
GUARANTEED

Automatic Storage System

With a Humphrey Automatic Hot Water Storage System in your home you know there's always a bath waiting for you. And you don't have to do a thing about it. It's utterly free from all human effort or care. Entirely and dependably automatic. No fire to build, no burner to light. Humphrey does it all for you—everything but turn the faucet. Always enough hot water—no scrimping. A whole tankful—clean, clear and piping hot.

If you live where the gas pressure or water pressure is low, we especially recommend the Humphrey Automatic Storage System. There is no other water heating system that compares with it under those conditions.

You'll find the gas cost much lower—due to perfections developed through more than a quarter of a century. And the Humphrey is manufactured with such elaborate care that its useful life is practically everlasting. If you think for the future as well as the present, you'll take care you get a Humphrey.



Be Sure it's a Humphrey

There are on the market low-cost storage heaters whose after-cost in gas consumption and repairs more than eat up the difference between their purchase price and that of the Humphrey in a very short time. The loss in heat from a poorly insulated boiler alone is a steady drain that more than offsets the original cheap price.

What you want is a constant, dependable hot water supply through the years to come. And that's just what you get from a Humphrey. Our line is complete—there's a type and size just made for your needs—and at the right price.

Let us mail you a copy of our booklet that tells all about Humphrey Hot Water Heaters.

Now a greater joy for every phonograph owner

SCIENCE has at last made possible perfect reproduction from phonograph records. The same full sweetness of tone, the same perfect clarity and thrilling volume as though the original artist was personally before you is now yours if your phonograph is equipped with the

Violin Spruce Reproducer

Like a violin, the reproducer improves with use. For centuries violin spruce has been recognized as the only perfect resonator. The sweetest toned violin the world has ever known was carved from it by Stradivari. And now, after years of experimental work by noted phonograph specialists, it has been successfully adopted for phonograph reproducer diaphragms.

Try a violin Spruce Reproducer in your own home—on your own phonograph—with your own records; hear how clearly and distinctly it brings out each note. Convince yourself by actual trial that it eliminates all metallic vibrations, even in notes of intense volume. Hear it reproduce a piano from a record without that "panny" sound. Enjoy all that the original artist has put into the record with no annoying "scratch," "scrape" or "sing" to mar your pleasure.

We Invite a Ten Day Trial

The retail price is $7.50; send us your check or money order. If after ten days you are willing to be without the reproducer, the full purchase price will be returned to you, when the reproducer is returned to us.

Give name and style of your phonograph; we have reproducers for ALL standard instruments.

BEST SELLERS OF THE AGES - By JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT

Fortieth Paper—"The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," By Mark Twain.

WHY is it that grown men take up this incomparable book every four or five years and reread it with a zest that familiarity cannot blur and lose themselves in it with a completeness upon which for a little while the cares of life cannot intrude? A few days ago (in last Wednesday's Daily News) we had the interesting spectacle of a Chicago man of business—a man of really colossal affairs—one of the great retail merchandisers of the world, I suppose—confessing to grave doubts as between this "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" and its companion book, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer." In making out a list of "fifty books worth having" for the newspaper Mr. James Simpson confidently enough popped in this and that and the other sterling volume, but when he came to No. 33—"'Huckleberry Finn,' by Mark Twain"—he added this note: "I hesitated a long time between 'Huckleberry Finn' and 'Tom Sawyer.'"

Now, Mr. Simpson is a Scot, a Presbyterian, nearly 50 years old, and has two blocks of stores more or less on his mind, and I think that—considering his Glasgow origin—the picture of him dropping work to "hesitate a long time" about Huck and his adventures is a picture not without interest. It would have pleased Mark Twain.

What, then, is the spell of the book? I think it is the richness and vividness of the detail. We all know the machinery of the story by heart now. We men of 50 or thereabouts, I mean, for we learned that readily enough back in 1884 when we were boys of 14, and the book was new. 'Tis not the lure of the plot that draws us back after all those years and then draws us on and on until we have read all our favorite chapters over again.

'Tis in part this kind of thing that does it—this grand somnolent river scene, at once so majestic and so homely, which comes at the start of chapter XIX., just after the thrilling one about the tragic end of the Grangerford-Shepherdson feud and just before Huck and Nigger Jim meet up with the extravaganza king and duke: the river is a mile and a half wide now and Huck and Jim are "lazying along":

> A little smoke couldn't be noticed now, so we would take some fish off of the lines and cook up a hot breakfast. And afterwards we would watch the lonesomeness of the river, and kind of lazy along, and by and by lazy off to sleep. Wake up by and by, and look to see what done it, and maybe see a steamboat coughing along up-stream, so far off towards the other side you couldn't tell nothing about her only whether she was a stern-wheel or side-wheel; then for about an hour there wouldn't be nothing to hear nor nothing to see—just solid lonesomeness. Next you'd see a raft sliding by, away off yonder, and maybe a galoot on it chopping, because they're most always doing it on a raft; you'd see the ax flash and come down—you don't hear nothing; you see that ax go up again, and by the time it's above the man's head then you hear the k'chunk!—it had took all that time to come over the water. So we would put in the day, lazying around, listening to the stillness. Once there was a thick fog, and the rafts and things that went by was beating tin pans so the steamboats wouldn't run over them. A scow or a raft went by so close we could hear them talking and cussing and laughing—heard them plain; but we couldn't see no sign of them; it made you feel crawly; it was like spirits carrying on that way in the air. Jim said he believed it was spirits; but I says:
> "No; spirits wouldn't say, 'Dern the dern fog.'"
> 'Tis witchery—that's what it is; homely witchery!

If you have moved about much in foreign parts you will know that there are only seven Americans of fiction—seven of your countrymen of the world of the imagination—who are known abroad as Ulysses and Hamlet and Faust and Don Quixote are known. Two of those Americans are out of this book—Tom and his friend Huck. as it were, is that, coupled with The other five are Rip Van Winkle, witchery with which their story is unLeatherstocking, Uncle Tom, Uncle folded, is an enormous reality. The Remus, and Benjamin Franklin's Poor hero of the book is the realest thing Richard. Now the reason why Tom on this continent—the Mississippi and Huck have become world-citizens, river. The humans of the tale are its children, its wisps and straws that it plays with as it pleases and bears whither it will. Upon this current, so mighty, so whimsical, so ruthless, now so ugly and now so beautiful that it fairly bewitches boys and men, Mark Twain sets drifting a white lad of 14 years (Huck) and a Negro slave (Jim), who purposes to slip over to the Illinois shore and freedom, intending to work in the north until he has saved money enough to buy the liberty of his wife and child. The period is one summer in the decade 1834-'44—probably nearer '44 than '34. The scene is 1,100 miles of river and bordering villages and plantations in Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, and Mississippi. That is the colossal scheme of the story. To grasp its epic scale, study the map. To set a boy and a servant adrift on 1,100 miles of one of the world's great rivers; to cast them now and again ashore in half a dozen vast commonwealths that in any other land would be premier kingdoms; to have them encounter gentry and harlequins, and gamesters, and boatmen, and wastrels, and drunkards, and feudists, and good women; to make them face peril with a good heart and absurdities with a quiet and philosophizing mien and meet with fortitude hard tests of honor and loyalty, and finally to have them wind up their voyage with a madcap bit of burlesque gravely directed by their friend Tom Sawyer—such is the far flung scheme of the "Adventures."

Mark Twain printed a warning "Notice" on a prefatory page of his story. It was this:

> Persons attempting to find a motive in this narrative will be prosecuted; persons attempting to find a moral in it will be banished; persons attempting to find a plot in it will be shot.

And still the tale is close compact of motive, moral, and plot. The motive is the exaltation of the new spirit of a new empire in the world—the spirit of what has been called Mark's "sound, breezy Mississippi valley Americanism"; the moral is the preciousness and beauty of loyalty, and the plot is the old, old one which, touched ever to new meanings and fresh eloquence by the magic of poets and tellers of tales, shows men how other men in hard straits have failed or have succeeded with moral issues, have got safe ashore or have come to shipwreck and shame. Most valid of all is the moral of this book that meddling, nincing librarians in presumably rational American communities used to bar from their shelves. Huck is an emblem of untutored loyalty, breeder of the kind of American that leads forlorn hopes, breeder of our Starks and Custers and Hobsons; the kind that says, "Dern the dern fog," and presses right on—not despising the rattle of tin pans if it will make for either exhilaration or for safety; no heroics in Huck, but a very true and beautiful heroism, inarticulate withal. Loyalty! that most comprehensive of the virtues because, in the perfect practice of it, it must of necessity take in most of the others—the virtue that alike honors him who possesses it and him who benefits by it! Huck has it, and Huck's great decision is one of the sublime things in our literature. He wrestles with the angel over his four line note to Miss Watson that is going to send Jim back into slavery—as every good white boy in ante-bellum Missouri was bound to send him. He wrestles for three agonising pages—"I wore my head sore 'n—" the more I studied about this the more my conscience got to grinding me"—"here was the plain hand of Providence slapping me in the face"—"it made me shiver"—"lost and going to hell."

Then the great decision:

> It was a close place. I took it up [the note to Miss Watson] and held it in my hand. I was a-trembling, because I'd got to decide, forever, betwixt two things, and I knowed it. I studied a minute, sort of holding my breath, and then says to myself:
>
> "All right, then, I'll go to hell"—and tore it up.
> It was awful thoughts and awful words, but they was said. And I let them stay said; and never thought no more about reforming. I shoved the whole thing out of my head, and said I would take up wickedness again, which was in my line, being brung up to it, and the other warn't. And for a starter I would go to work and steal Jim out of slavery again; and if I could think up anything worse, I would do that, too, because as long as I was in, and in for good, I might as well go the whole hog.

This river rat steps in with the immortals of fiction—and of reality—forthwith. John Bunyan never fought a harder fight in Bedford gaol—or a better. This power and this sublime uncouthness have not been surpassed in American literature.

In a friendly note Mr. William E. Kelly of the Public-Utility Relations points out the fact that in last Sunday's article on Franklin's "Autobiography" Baron Turgot's great tribute to Franklin, "Eripuit coelo fulmen, sceptrumque tyrannis," which is one of the best epigrams ever composed, was credited to Frederic Harrison. It was a blunder, and I have no alibi. In sorting out a mass of tributes I got my credits confused. The Franklin tribute that should have been credited to Mr. Harrison was, "The typical republican citizen."

W. L. George's New Novel
HER UNWELCOME HUSBAND
She was beautiful, talented, ambitious. She won success for the man she loved. Then the husband who had deserted her eight years before came back. Her standards of conduct were her own, and she stood by them, in the face of criticism and attack from her friends, husband and lover. Against all she had but one weapon. Courage! This story of a woman's heart is as sharply penetrating as Ursula Trent.
$2.00
Harper & Brothers Established 1817 New York

"How wicked we are!" murmured Patty, whose lips had just been laid on those of him who reclined by her side, and whose arm encircled her waist. Then she turned her beautiful head and saw her husband.

AFTERNOON in front of a fashionable New York boarding house on Broadway, just below the city hall—in 1837. Patty, seventeen and beautiful, comes screaming "Marry me, Mist' RoBards!" He does, and together they drive to his home in White Plains. Wonderful, wondering love is theirs; then the young lawyer must return to the city.

New York, already destined to be great, is in its first growing pains. There is love of rum and lack of water. Elegance and excesses prevail. Then pestilence and fire. A respite comes to RoBards and he turns joyfully toward home. Back to Patty, to whom have come children—and Harry Chalender. Chalender, the engineer, with knowledge of culverts and protection-walls, and women.

. . . . . .

A city changes; so do its customs and its costumes. But its people remain at heart the same. Strong and weak, willing and willful. Because this amazing story is the true story of people, it is the true story of their city, any city. And any four walls may house Love, Hate, Faith and Deceit.

. . . . . .

Realizing this RoBards stands dumbly in the doorway. He tries to speak, and cannot; he tries desperately to think; and the only thought that will come is "how beautiful she is!" It is one of the scenes you seem not to read of, or even to witness; Rupert Hughes' novel, "Within These Walls" puts you in the action of it in the October issue of The Red Book Magazine with fifteen other remarkable stories and features.

Books are like imprisoned souls until someone takes them down from the shelf and reads them.—SAMUEL BUTLER (1835-1902).

BOOKS

He that loveth a book will never want a faithful friend, a wholesome counsellor, a cheerful companion, an effectual comforter.—ISAAC BARROW (1630-1677).

By Fanny Butcher.

KATHLEEN NORRIS has written a book which the most cynical critic cannot wholly disregard, "Certain People of Importance."

For years Mrs. Norris has been writing the popular kind of thing that is typified in "Mother" for its appeal to the sentimentality of her readers and in "The Story of Julia Page" for its appeal to their natural interest in a good story of a woman's life.

She numbers, I doubt not, her devotees by the hundreds of thousands. She has written since 1911 eleven novels, and practically every one of them has been serialized before it appeared in book form. She receives a fortune for the serial rights to a novel. She writes entertainingly, but she has never been, even by the most eager of the young critics, who feel that the public can't be entirely wrong and that any book which sells in the hundreds of thousands must be great—she has never been, even by those over zealous youths, hailed as a great writer. She has been accepted as a hard working writer, a pillar of the writing business, a gilt edged security for publishers of magazines and books, a craftsman, but never a great artist.

Her books have been better than most of the usual "popular" fiction. She has celebrated the virtues of poverty and sentiment—which, we must all admit, are more universal than great riches of either mind or matter and of torrential love. She has established herself so firmly by each book after the other that a Kathleen Norris image is built in the minds of readers and critics.

And now she writes a book that is unlike her other books, that doesn't agree with that image in any of its lines and that can't possibly be dismissed as just another Kathleen Norris novel. For the first time for many years she hasn't allowed her novel to be serialized. She refused, I was told, the sum of $50,000 for the rights, determined to be unhampered by the demands of serialization, which may be unconscious, but which are undoubtedly powerful. She hasn't written a novel that comes right for everybody. She hasn't written a "happy" novel. She hasn't—but perhaps it is better to tell what she has done.

"Certain People of Importance" is a novel of three generations of an American family, a very long one, an intimate one, but a most dispassionate one. It is concerned mostly with the third generation, although its pictures of the two preceding families are as fine as any of the group growing year by year less important. It starts in the comparatively dark ages of our civilization, in 1760, with the marriage of Reuben Crabtree, a wheel maker of Mendon, Mass., to Hannah Pratt of Bridgewater, Conn.

It sounds like chapter 1 of the gospel according to St. Mark for part of the first chapter, until we see a son moving his family to Crabtree's Crossing, gambling away his large holdings of land, and a son of his setting out to San Francisco, married to a girl who, even in those days, was poor white trash. Although the little picture of the patient, unsmiling Crabtree mother at Crabtree's Crossing is one of the unforgettable spots in the book, the story doesn't really begin until the young Reuben Crabtree and his very pretty wife and her pretty sister reach San Francisco and become certain people of importance—Reuben with his country store, which grows into a large wholesale house for spices, and his sister-in-law with her boarding house, which she gives up while she is still young enough to enjoy life and the small fortune it provided her with.

The bulk of the book concerns that little group, and the next generation of Reuben's two daughters and two sons and their children. If there weren't a genealogical plate in the front of the book we might sometimes be confused by the size of the canvas and the figures with which Mrs. Norris has filled both foreground and background.

When I was a little girl I remember being taken to see an exhibition of paintings by Vershchagen which was hung in the Art institute. They were huge things, some of them almost as big as the wall upon which they were hung. They were simply teeming with figures. I have never forgotten them. They fascinated me the way that a kaleidoscope has always fascinated me. Every time I looked at a picture I saw something I hadn't seen before—not a spiritual thing, but an actual physical group of lines. All great pictures hold spiritual surprises for any one with searching eyes. They literally "grow" upon one's consciousness. That's as self-evident a fact as never to be talked about any more. But these Vershchagen things were not thesauruses. They were simply so packed with subjects that no person could possibly distinguish their detail in one look or in a dozen.

"Certain People of Importance" reminded me of the way I had felt about those pictures. It will take its place in my mind beside them—a book as full of people as any that I have ever read. When you read it you will wonder how she kept them all apart, kept their characteristics from getting mixed up, and you will have to grant that not only has she attempted one of the hardest things in novel writing, but she has succeeded at her most difficult task.

The special feeling with which "Certain People of Importance" leaves one is, I am sure, one of unquestioning faith that the author has told the absolute and uncompromising truth about her characters. They are not interesting people. Nothing either thrilling or exciting ever happens to them. Their lives are as stupid as yours and mine, and every one else's—except the very few who somehow fly straight into the sun of adventure. Every one knows that life is neither thrilling nor stimulating externally; that the spark is within, and that nine out of every ten million never let it kindle their lives into flame, only into a sort of comfortable fire for a family hearth.

Mrs. Norris has written an absolutely true story about the nine million. She has done an extremely rare thing—she has made a dull life of externalities as interesting as most writers make the seething eagernesses of the mind. Many have written of characters groping for the light through the dusty windows of a life that is dull and stupid. Mrs. Norris has written of characters who accept the dustiness as part of life. In all of the succession of marrying and begetting there is but one really liltingly happy marriage, and even that is a serene union rather than a glowing one. And yet —somehow—she doesn't leave you with the feeling of scorn for her characters that they accept life that isn't endurable. She leaves you, rather, with a sense of respect for them.

One might write on for columns about it because it has no theme to be condensed in a paragraph, no hero to be done up in a sentence, no heroine to be sketched in a phrase. It is simply a panorama of life, done with utter sincerity, dull now and then, as life is dull, but with a strange fascination about it. There isn't one of us, no matter how scornful we are of people en masse, who isn't intrigued with men and women individually, with the "story" of their lives. Mrs. Norris has written the "story" of each one of the lives in her book and, therefore, it is a strangely real book.

The Short Story—a Textbook.

A new kind of textbook for the study of the short story has been devised by Raymond Woodbury Pence of De Pauw university, a comprehensive and valuable volume. He groups his stories first into those of plot, character, setting, theme, and mood—and then divides his groups carefully, as, for instance, stories of plot into those based on dramatic incident, detective and mystery tales, stores of ingenuity and surprise, and the plot problem story.

He gives at least one example of each type, printing the story in its entirety, and at the end of each section he gives a reading list of some fifty or more stories which are of the same type and which may have been written by Prosper Mérimée or Alexander Pushkin or Booth Tarkington or Jay Gelzer—which are, I mean to say, not confined either to the classics or to the modern collections of short stories, or even to our own language, although he has suggested nothing which can not be read in English.

There are eighteen complete stories in the book, no conversation by the editor except in a short preface, notes about the writers, and bibliographical lists, including volumes on the history and criticism of the short story, the technique of the short story, and twenty-one pages of volumes of short stories. Yes, comprehensive and valuable, those are the adjectives for it.

Somebody's Sister.

"Sea Wrack" is a novel by one Vere Hutchinson which is getting more than the ordinary boutonnieres which are bestowed upon first novels. Do you want to know a secret about the author? It's a lady. Does her name sound familiar? Uh huh, sister, though nobody is supposed to know.

Jaunted off to London to carve out a career for herself, on a pound a week. Almost as adventurous as Rosalie. Her "freedom," however, doesn't seem to have brought disaster upon her, though, of course, she hasn't tried being married and all that yet.

Incidentally, I wonder if Mr. Hutchinson realizes how he dulled the force of his argument for the mother's knee method of child culture by making so odious the family brought up so carefully at Rosalie's mother's knee—one daughter a suicide because life was so desperately unfair, another daughter a hateful creature making disgusting fun of her older sister with "She'll have to ask the pope," a son whose selfishness almost beamed upon the world. Despite the ultimate tragedy of Rosalie's failure as a mother, her children were never more odious than her brothers and sisters.

More Memoirs.

"Memoirs of the Memorable" is what Sir James Denham has called his reminiscences. There must be something in the English mind that demands that it reminisce at a certain age. Practically every Englishman whose circle of friends is greater than the parish rector and the village squire feels called upon to write about the men and women he has known. It's a sort of national point of honor, like their own bitter complaints about their public men and their passionate championship of them if a foreigner attacks them. He has had the privilege of being friendly with Lord Muzzleboots and Lady Cholmondeley, and he owes it to his country to share that privilege with the lower classes.

Sir James Denham talked with Disraeli, Gladstone, Swinburne, Robert Browning, and, as they say, alia. He remembered Kitchener, the Empress Eugenie, Sir Henry Irving, Lord Curzon, Sir Herbert Tree, et alia. He tells about them with exactly that flourish which is in the first paragraph of his book:

"It was happy Eastertide, rising from the earth of all glad things. The sun crept across the Campagna and it was morn in Rome."

Sweet, I calls it.

Football Photos.

Did you know that during every football game on the fall schedule the Harvard University Athletic association keeps two photographers busy making records of plays? That doesn't mean the newspaper photographers, the movie man, and weekly review snapshooters. The athletic association is preserving the photographs for reference. Forty of the best of the pictures they have on file have been put into a book, "Football and How to Watch It," by Percy D. Haughton. The pictures are printed the full size of the page and a full page description faces each one of them. Those who know say it's a remarkable photographic record of tense moments. Speaking of tense moments, the new rule ought to add a few thrills to the game.

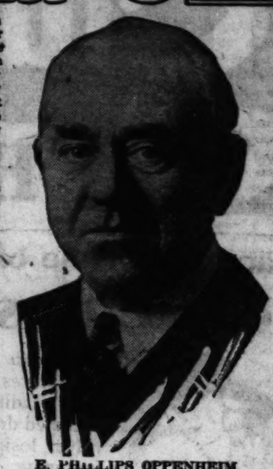
The Message to Garcia.

Do you remember Elbert Hubbard's "The Message to Garcia"? Who doesn't? Do you remember that Lieut. Rowan, who carried that message a quarter of a century ago, was only in June of this year, rewarded for that service by the most distinguished decoration authorized by congress—a decoration pinned on assorted gentlemen of the late unpleasantness before they had time to get a set of civvies from their tailors. Gen. Miles said that Lieut. Rowan's achievement was "one of the most hazardous and heroic deeds in military warfare." That lieutenant, now a colonel, has written a little pamphlet about "How I Carried the Message to Garcia," which is undoubtedly his first literary effort, but which contains so much of real adventure that the words don't count.

KATHLEEN NORRIS.
[Charlotte Fairchild photo.]

Kathleen Norris has written in "Certain People of Importance" a fictional history of an American family from its roots in 1760 to its many branched arms of a few years ago, a novel which is strangely real and which lifts Mrs. Norris from her niche as a "popular" writer and places her among certain people of literary importance.



E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM.

He's done it again. E. Phillips Oppenheim has written another thriller that's creepy and exciting and full of moments when you think the jig's up. "The Evil Shepherd," this one is called, and he's the father of the heroine of the book. It's this way: The hero, a London barrister of 35, after doing a wonderful job of getting his client judged not guilty, learns to his dismay from the man's wife that he was really guilty. But affection doesn't entirely blind him when the husband of his beloved suddenly dies most mysteriously. He's afraid that she had what might be called a controlling interest in the demise. And that's when the Evil Shepherd comes in.

FLOWING GOLD

By

REX BEACH

The Tribune reviewer says further: "Mr. Beach has forgotten nothing. He knew how to turn out a lively, colorful, full-blooded story of frontier life. He had gusto, as if he enjoyed writing; and he could communicate it to his readers. All these gifts are still his, as evidenced by Flowing Gold. He has chosen the Texas oil fields for his scene, for the same reason that made him years ago not only write of the Klondike, but go to the Klondike before he wrote at all. The material suits his talent. It is both dramatic and realistic."

ART AND ARTISTS

Viennese Crafts in Rare Setting at Institute

By Eleanor Jewett.

BARELY before has as unusual an exhibition opened the season of art as that which last Tuesday started the new year in the east galleries of the Art institute. A little of the more personal history of this exhibit was told last Sunday, but no history, however autobiographical in character, could do justice to the reality of the present display. It does not seem to matter, face to face with the color and fascination of the exhibit, that the various parts of it are but tender shoots on the parental boughs of a growing Viennese organization, called the Wiener Werkstaette.

Nor does it seem of vital importance that a young architect, Josef Hofmann, should have fathered the society, or that another Viennese artist, Joseph Urban, should have been the prime factor in bringing the society's work to America. None of the historical data retains interest, subjected to the comparative presence of that to which the history relates.

At the first glimpse of the startling loveliness of the exhibition, all but it itself fades away. There is not room in one's mind for more than wonder at the success of the event, nor breath in one's mouth for more than ejaculations of congratulation, appreciation, and surprise.

The rooms have been dressed for the occasion. With all the skill of that famous deviser of dramatic settings, Joseph Urban, the institute galleries have been altered almost beyond recognition. Even the floors are metamorphosed. Instead of plain, uncolored, blank spaces on which our noiseless footsteps generally fall there is a sequence of pattern, here curved, there shallowed, and there again hollowed like the boundary of a bowl, shaded in black and gray and putty, that instantly proclaims the festivity for which we are gathered. Something almost circuslike in character rises in gray, twisting, joyous mist from the floor.

The bravado of the circus is here. The breath of the land-of-things-not-so lulls one into an acceptance of the Viennese wonders without question. For instance, the leather elephant. It is brown, carved, enchanting—and mysterious. Within its bulk is space for love letters, poisons, or magic draughts of the elixir of youth. There is no logical reason for its existence at all, in a practical world, but in this land-of-things-not-so there is every reason for its being.

The artist who made it said: "If we do not practice making beautiful things and give people a chance to see them there will be no beautiful things for any one. So I will make this elephant and send him away and sell him; then will I have money for more material with which to make other figures of beauty."

It would be heresy to suggest the elephant is not beautiful. The beast is handsome in an awkward way, but the workmanship expended on it is beyond words wonderful. The leather has been beautifully worked. This is a piece of art to be taken into the cold bosom of a museum and there placed on exhibit as an example of one of its kind sufficiency.

But there are other things. Lovely paintings, for one, and most attractive lamps. Books, exquisitely bound; little figures that enchant one by their delicate grace. There are bowls, too, and jars, and plates, and laces of cobweb fineness, laces that resemble nothing so much as filmy fairy weaves spread out on the morning grass, in the sparkle of the summer dew.

"Decorative Figure," by Josef Hofmann, the leader in the Wiener Werkstaette, the movement to bring art into the home, which opened an exhibit in the Art institute on Tuesday.

But all this, this stringing of words to convey impressions, carries none of the instantaneous thrill with which the startling setting of the exhibit enhances its charm. Mr. Urban has succeeded in bringing handicrafts to life. The galleries with their separate identities in black and white, or green and white, or brown and white, are so many stages upon which the artists of the Wiener Werkstaette play their part. The installation of this exhibition is something to gloat over, enthuse upon, and remember against the future. It is the kind of rare setting such crafts need to show their best in, and it is the kind which doubles the beauty of that which it sets off. If for nothing but its setting yet would this exhibit be long remembered.

Among the artists whose work helps in creating the impression of unfading charm that one feels so strongly in these galleries are Josef Hofmann, Maria Likarz, Mathilde Floegel, Dagobert Peche, Viktor Lurge, Dr. Oscar Strnad, Hugo Gorge, Max Linschak, Arnold Neihowsky, and Franz von Zuelow.

In the further rooms of the east wing have been installed a number of paintings from the collection of modern art owned by the late Arthur J. Eddy. This exhibit has its interesting sides, too, but space forbids further mention of it until next week.

An admirable gift made recently to the Art institute is the bequest of $20,000 received from the estate of Helen Minerva Galloway, the income of which is to be used for the purchase of books for the library. It is divided into two funds of $10,000 each, to be known as the Mark Kimball memorial fund and the Mrs. Mark Kimball memorial fund.

Joseph Winterbotham has donated $3,200 for the purchase of an oil painting of a foreign subject by a foreign artist, eventually to be placed in the Winterbotham room.

A rather unusual gift, as recorded in the Art institute bulletin, is the collection of paintings valued at $20,000 from the Joseph G. Snydacker estate, donated to the institute to be sold and from the proceeds thereof to have created a fund to be known as the Joseph G. Snydacker fund to establish scholarships in the institute art school. The paintings include works by Blakelock, Wyant, Jacque, Israels, and Constable.

There opened yesterday in Gunsaulus hall an exhibit of early American quilts in the three forms of needlework popular during that time, pieced, patched, and appliqué, from the collection of Mrs. Emma B. Hodge.

A member of the Chicago Society of Artists, Royal H. Milleson, has been occupied during the summer with painting scenes of Illinois landscape. Illinois has landscape as well as farms, we are only too glad to learn from his pictures.

Robert Eskridge has returned from a summer of visiting and sketching in Michigan.

Ernst F. Detterer and Howard K. Morse, instructors at the Art institute, are returning from a summer spent in painting abroad.

Newer Form of Iron a Blessing To Folks Who Are Weak, Sickly, Nervous or Run-down

Thousands of People Have Suffered From All Sorts of Alarming Symptoms and After Ailing, Complaining and Doctoring for Years Found That the Real Trouble Was Lack of Iron in Their Blood —Astonishing Results Often Shown in Two Short Weeks

"Six weeks ago I saw a special offer in the paper telling about the terrible devitalizing weakness caused by lack of iron in the blood, and how examinations by physicians had shown that three people out of every four you meet lack 100% iron in their blood. For years I had been all tired out with my work and never felt well a single day. For long periods I would have pains in my back and think I was getting kidney trouble. Then I had dizzy spells, pains and palpitations around my heart, and began to fear I was getting heart disease. I suffered from gas and my meals always upset me. Nothing I ate agreed with me or seemed to do me any good, and I could not get any strength out of my food.

I have been taking Nuxated Iron for two weeks. The results are simply astounding. I can work twice as long without tiring and I feel myself getting stronger every day. All my alarming symptoms have disappeared and I can conscientiously say that more iron in my blood has tremendously increased my strength, energy and endurance."

The above is a typical hypothetical case showing the results that have been achieved by thousands of people since we started this "Satisfaction or Money Back" offer on Nuxated Iron. We will make you the same guarantee. If after taking two weeks treatment of Nuxated Iron you cannot walk twice as far or work twice as long without tiring, and you are not absolutely delighted with the results, we will promptly refund your money.

NOTE.—The above company is known to be thoroughly reliable. Over 4,000,000 packages of Nuxated Iron are sold annually, and it has been used and highly recommended by former U. S. Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts and many physicians. We are able to guarantee that if you do not obtain all and even greater benefits than you expect from Nuxated Iron, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money.

Hot Water without gas bills-this New Way

HAVE you heard about the SURE HOT Water Heater—the new way to get all the hot water you want, at practically no cost?

Sounds too good to be true, but it is true. You attach the SURE HOT to the outside of your steam boiler and have hot water on tap at all hours without cost or gas.

The SURE HOT utilizes the boiling water in your steam boiler for heating household service water. You will see in the diagram at the left how this simple but efficient heater operates.

Many people are replacing unsatisfactory fire box coils with the SURE HOT. They find the boiler has a better draught and consumes less coal. Your plumber can supply you with a SURE HOT. Do not accept a substitute. Insist on the genuine WHITLOCK SURE HOT. If your plumber does not carry them, write us and we will see that you are supplied.

SURE HOT WATER HEATER

Your children EAT But are they FED?

"The high iron content of egg yolk and its richness in fat-soluble A gives eggs a special value in the diet of young children."
—Caroline L. Hunt, Specialist in Food Preparation and use

It is not the quantity but the quality of food that counts; not how much but how nourishing.

Every housewife learns that Butter and Eggs are necessary to correctly balance the rations she serves. They are bountifully supplied with iron for the blood, tone for tissues—all the necessary elements for a sound mind in a sound body.

Under-fed, run-down folks of any age must not be stinted on Butter and Eggs. They are cheap now and they are going to be cheap all winter.

Brownie Butter will delight the youngsters

½ pound butter, yolks of 2 hard boiled eggs, 1 teaspoonful orange flower water, 2 tablespoonfuls powdered sugar. Beat eggs, orange water and sugar smooth, and add butter. Work the whole to a smooth paste. Squeeze through a piece of cheese cloth wrung out of ice water onto a cold plate. The odd shapes of the butter when it comes through the meshes will please the children, and it is very dainty with hot breads and biscuits.

When you leave out the Butter and Eggs you leave out the goodness.

There's no such thing as a "substitute" for BUTTER AND EGGS

Here is always to be found a good meal.

Whether you order a la carte or select our table de hote meals, you will be satisfied.

So many come here now, for dinner especially, that we invite telephone reservations, especially if you are bringing a large party and wish to order everything in advance. There are two or three especially pleasant tables in the alcove, off our Della Robia dining room, that we can set aside if you prefer.

Generally, folks can't quite understand how it is that the Rogers Park serves such unusually good meals for the little prices we charge—but, just the same, they keep on coming and bringing their friends. We invite, you, too.

MANY AMERICANS VISITING ORIENT THIS YEAR

Requests for information, now being received by railway and steamship agents, indicate an impending heavy exodus of Americans to the Orient during the coming fall and winter months.

The Canadian Pacific carries its trans-Pacific passengers from Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and intermediate points on splendidly equipped trains to Vancouver, British Columbia, the port from which sail, fortnightly, its own steamships of the Empress fleet—"Giants of the Pacific."

From Vancouver, Canadian Pacific Empresses reach Japan in only 10 days; China, 14 days, and Manila, 18 days—quickest time across the Pacific.

The Orient welcomes you with open arms to show you of its best: Japan—small but intense—age-old in art and beautiful in nature; China, huge, ancient and mysterious, reaching out for modern civilization; the Philippines—America abroad.

Full information can be had from Canadian Pacific steamship agents everywhere, or from R. S. Elworthy, General Agent, 40 No. Dearborn Street, Chicago. Telephone, Randolph 3625.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Chicago Federation Goal 40,000 New Members by Easter

By the Rev. W. B. Norton

THE Chicago Church federation, representing sixteen Protestant denominations, will launch tomorrow its evangelistic campaign which will be the first of several important undertakings for the year. Future gatherings will be the publicity conference, Oct. 31; all Chicago young people's rally, Nov. 21; normal training classes in February, and a missionary exposition in the Coliseum the last week in May.

The goal set by the commission on evangelism, which has charge of the meetings tomorrow beginning at 10:30, is 40,000 additions to the churches by next Easter, three-fourths of whom it is hoped, on confession of faith.

The meeting tomorrow will be backed by the Chicago Sunday School association. Following the program, which will be held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, 19 South La Salle street, there will be denominational luncheons at which Sunday school superintendents, pastors, and laymen will devise plans to carry through the evangelistic program. Last year the goal was 30,000 additions to the churches and the number reached was 37,000, so that this year's goal exceeds last year's attainment by only 3,000. The speakers tomorrow morning will be William T. Ellis, world traveler and expert in religious education, who speaks on "Building Together in the World's Best Business," and Hugh S. Magill, newly elected general secretary of the international council of religious education, formerly known as the international Sunday School association, who speaks on "The Christian for the Crisis."

The publicity conference will be held at the Hotel Morrison beginning at 10:30 a. m. At noon the annual meeting of the Chicago Church federation will be held in connection with a luncheon.

Among the speakers at the publicity conference will be Col. R. R. McCormick, THE TRIBUNE; John C. Shaffer, the Post; Edgar T. Cutter, Associated Press; Harry J. Smith, Chicago Daily News; Herman Groth, advertiser, and the following ministers, who have done special work in church publicity: Christian F. Reisner, New York, chairman church publicity department world's advertising association; Roy L. Smith, Minneapolis; William L. Stidger, Detroit; Claude R. Shaver, La Crosse; E. A. Rowsey, Toledo; Oliver Keve, Kearney; Peter Jacobs, Dexter, Ia., and Carl D. Case and William E. Barton, both of Oak Park.

THE REV. EDWARD G. SCHUTZ.

The Rev. Edward G. Schutz is pastor of the Euclid Avenue Methodist church, Euclid avenue and Washington boulevard, Oak Park, who will lead today in dedicating a new Bedford stone church edifice costing $125,000.

Bishop Thomas Nicholson will preach at 10:30; the Rev. Joshua Stansfield, pastor of Hyde Park church, will preach at 2:30, and the Rev. John Thompson, First church, Chicago, will preach at 7:30.

The dedication celebration will extend over next Sunday. Tomorrow evening will be community night, with the president of Oak Park and representatives of various organizations present. On Tuesday evening there will be an artists' recital with the dedication of the mothers' organ, so named because donors will have their mothers' names engraved on the organ. Wednesday evening there will be radio program and a devotional address by the pastor. On Friday evening there will be a banquet with addresses by former pastors. Next Sunday will be Sunday school day. A baptismal font will be dedicated.

Baptists are making an early start in getting their fall church activities under way. One of the first events scheduled throughout the territory of the northern Baptist convention is a series of conferences where Baptist church leaders are to face the facts in the present situation in the Baptist churches, to consider the world program for the year, and to prepare particularly for an aggressive campaign of stewardship during the month of October.

Illinois is to have one of these important conferences and Chicago has been chosen as the place. Sessions will be held morning, afternoon, and evening in the First Baptist church on Wednesday and Thursday.

The following speakers will be present in this city during these meetings: President Frederick E. Taylor, the Rev. Charles A. Brooks, D. D., the Rev. P. H. J. Lerrigo, D. D., and Mrs. Nathan R. Wood.

Frank Parker, director of music at the North Shore Baptist church, will give a talk on "Historic Hymns" at the church tonight. It will be illustrated by "The Crusaders' Hymn," "Luther's Hymn," and by hymns written by Watts [Congregational], Wesley [Methodist], Spurgeon [Baptist], Newman [Episcopal], Faber [Catholic], Bonar [Presbyterian], Bowring [Unitarian], and Whittier [Quaker], which will be sung by the choir, by the choir and congregation antiphonally, and by the congregation.

The Methodist Episcopal church in Princeton, Ill., where the Rock River conference will hold its sessions beginning Oct. 3, is 90 years old, having been organized in a farm house two years before Princeton was founded. It is the fourth church organized of the denomination in northern Illinois. The present church building was erected in 1908 and is the fourth building to be occupied by the congregation.

The Lutheran Theological seminary at Maywood will begin its thirty-first year, Oct. 5. Prof. Henry Schaeffer, S. T. M., and Prof. Martin Luther Stirewolt, D. D., will deliver their inaugural addresses at the opening session at 10 a. m.

Our Savior's Lutheran church, 138th street and Wabash avenue, the Rev. P. C. Wike, pastor, expects to have a new parsonage ready for occupancy by Thanksgiving day.

The South Shore Presbyterian church, South Shore drive and 76th street, the Rev. M. Verne Oggel, pastor, has begun the installation of a new pipe organ.

St. Mark's Episcopal church, 4427 Drexel boulevard, the Rev. Malcolm J. Van Zandt, rector, is having a campaign to raise $15,000. On Aug. 1 when the last report was made the total subscribed was $12,380 and the subscriptions are expected to continue until the full amount is reached.

Business Education —The Foundation of Success!
So many successes can be traced to good stenographic training! Young men and women become stenographers, then secretaries, and then executives. Or, bookkeepers, then accountants and then master accountants. Bryant & Stratton graduates hold big executive positions in Chicago today and they frequently call upon us to furnish trained young men and women to fill positions in their offices.
For competent training enroll in this oldest - established business college that has successfully taught over 100,000 graduates.

$10,500.00 for NINE DRAWINGS by artists trained the MEYER BOTH way.

You can have reproductions of some of these drawings in color together with our special book, "Your OPPORTUNITY," for half the cost of postage—4c in stamps.

We teach you Commercial ART

Make sure the school you select is actually engaged in today's commercial art field in a large way—for commercial art methods progress constantly. Make sure of the experience and abilities of your actual instructors. Good instruction is necessary—but experienced and thorough criticism is vital. In short, make sure you not only get what you pay for but that you will get a foundation and cooperation that will fit you for earning power when you graduate.

Get Facts Before You Enroll in Any School

The Meyer Both College—a department of the Meyer Both Company (the largest commercial art organization in the World—who sell over Ten Thousand drawings to advertisers) offers a training based upon their Twenty-two years' of success. Commercial Art is a highly paid, intensely interesting vocation, equally open to men and women. The right school is vitally important if you would succeed. The Meyer Both College has a definite sincerity of purpose—and is the only art school conducted as a part of a great advertising art organization. Send now—today—for this interesting special book "YOUR OPPORTUNITY" as offered above.

COMMERCE

The aim of the College of Commerce is to impart to students that exact and scientific training which today is required for success in the higher fields of business effort. The courses are designed to qualify men and women for high grade positions in the following branches of Commercial activity:

Accounting
Journalism
Salesmanship
Foreign Trade
Secretarial Work
Traffic Management
Insurance and Real Estate
Banking and Finance
Office Management
Advertising and Marketing
Commercial Teaching
Consular Service
Business Administration and Management

All courses in the College of Commerce are credited towards the B. C. S. degree.

LAW

It is the aim of the College of Law to give students adequate preparation for the practice of law in any state. The case system of instruction is employed in practically all subjects. All classes are divided into small sections to insure individual attention for every student. High school graduates eighteen years of age or over are admitted as candidates for the LL. B. degree. College graduates are admitted as candidates for the J. D. degree.

PREPARATORY

The Preparatory School is conducted for the benefit of students who have not completed a four-year high school course. Those who desire to enter some College or University or to prepare for state examinations in Accounting, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Nursing, etc., will find this a convenient school. All applicants must furnish evidence of sufficient maturity and intelligence to grasp principles readily and to cover the work rapidly. To such students is offered an opportunity to save considerable time in the completion of a high school course.

Bulletins of any of the above departments will be sent free upon request. Call, write or phone (Wab. 9389)

What a Shorthand Course Will Do for You

Our shorthand course opens the door to Opportunity. It has done it for hundreds of men and women; it will do it for you.

There never has been a time in our experience as a high class business school that we did not have more positions open to our graduates than there were graduates to fill them.

That means that we give the kind of training the business man demands. You can test this question easily by asking business men of Chicago whether our students "made good."

What will our shorthand course do for you? It will put you in a paying position, where your promotion is assured. It will make you a skilled, instead of an unskilled business worker. It will enable you to render a service for which there is always a demand.

The difference between the trained worker and the untrained lies primarily in earnings. But the really big difference is to be found in the chances for advancement.

Learn Accountancy

—"the best paid profession in the world"

"The accounting profession"—to quote from the Journal of Accountancy, the authoritative organ of the professional accountants of the United States—"is probably the best paid in the world. If there be a profession in which the average compensation is higher, it is not known to us."

As evidencing the success of LaSalle accountancy students in passing May, 1922, C. P. A. examinations, five states (all those using the American Institute examinations which have thus far reported) give the following figures: In Texas, 60% of the men who passed were LaSalle students—in Arkansas, 50%—in Indiana, 24%—in Nebraska, 60%—in North Dakota, 100%. LaSalle-trained Certified Public Accountants may be found in practically every state in the Union.

Our convenient downtown evening classes (also our home-study courses) afford a splendid opportunity to gain, outside of business hours, a thoro training in modern accountancy under the personal instruction of a large faculty of prominent Certified Public Accountants and accounting specialists. We also offer special coaching for advanced accountants who may desire to prepare for coming C. P. A. examinations in Illinois or other states. All text-books, lesson material, printed lectures, loose-leaf binders, etc., are included in the cost of tuition.

Classes now forming. As we can accommodate but a limited number in our resident classes, we urge early registration. Call or telephone Randolph 3528 for full particulars. Open until 9 P. M.

Comptometer Operators are in demand

DURING July and August we received more than 400 requests from owners for operators for permanent positions. Our training school is unable to meet this great demand.

A SHORT COURSE
5 TO 7 WEEKS

5 to 7 weeks' training will make you a specialist and immediately eligible for a pleasant position at a specialist's salary. We assist you to positions without charge.

Girls with 2 or 4 years' high school education preferred, but business experience is not necessary. The course is short and the work readily learned; the tuition fee is very small, and our graduates are in demand.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

BANDSMEN—ORCHESTRA PLAYERS. Why does the experienced musician want a Keefer sooner or later? There are distinctive reasons.

Keefer instruments give the player a big, solid tone.

Keefer's have a quick rotary change from B-flat to A. It eliminates the old time slide that often fails to work.

Keefer instruments have no screws to lose. Don't fail to see the "cabaret" trumpets and trombones. Saxophones. Banjos. Drums. Repairing. plating.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A HEALTH-ACCIDENT POLICY THAT'S DIFFERENT.
Something to Talk About.
A prominent business man says he can sell anything that is a little different—"Give me something to talk about."
This may be good salesmanship or merely lack of ability to put across something old—no matter how good it is.
Every man believes in carrying accident and health insurance—and some day he expects to buy such a policy—but he procrastinates, postpones, and sidesteps until some keen, clever salesman SELLS him a policy.
No insurance company has ever made a permanent success selling insurance by mail.
It takes the PERSONALITY, PEP, and PUNCH of an energetic salesman to get the name on the dotted line.
If you can devote your full or part time and have PERSONALITY, PUSH, AND PUNCH, you can make good selling our unrestricted new Dividend Policy in Chicago; openings throughout Ill.
It has more HIGH POINTS and good talking features than any commercial policy on the market, sold in city, semi, and annual basis.
All increases in amount every year in which no claim is paid and is eventually worth more by 50% than when issued.
LIFE, FIRE, CASUALTY. HAIL insurance men can sell them readily or any man in any occupation can secure life renewal commission contracts.
BANKERS' ACCIDENT INS. CO.,
243 S. Wabash-av.

A MONEY MAKER
FOR TAILORING SALESMEN.
Make $50 to $100 and up a week selling our virgin wool tailored to order suits and overcoats at $29.50. All one price. Large, rich fabric assortment. You need to build enormous personal trade with our co-operation backed by our guarantee. Hustlers make big money. We furnish everything. Write us collect and see our fine salesroom. Out of town men write. J. B. SIMPSON, INC., 831 W. Adams-st., Chicago.

A NEW ROGERS PARK SUBDIVISION.

OPEN LETTER TO UP-COMING SALESMEN, ULTIMATE EXECUTIVES.
Chicago, Sept. 20th, 1922.
Dear Sir. This letter assumes that you are a successful salesman wishing to change your line for reasons that satisfy, that you desire a position with more stability in life and some day be a sales executive, that you are not afraid of a commission basis, that you can sustain yourself for a short time at first, and that you believe that any good salesman can learn to sell any good line, no matter what he sold before.
Well, then—send us your name and address with as much about yourself as you care to tell as a basis for an interview to follow.
We are a national enterprise operating successfully in a tremendous market in several large cities in a pioneer idea, backed by a comprehensive advertising campaign in the metropolitan territory of establishing national headquarters in Chicago and carrying on a stirring local campaign. Our business is the ideal one.
Our best producers have first call for agencies in other most desirable cities. It should pay you to investigate.
Sincerely yours,
Address B A 245, Tribune.

AN INDEPENDENT HOME OWNER.
I am now completing 9 more of those right up to date, modern 6 room brick bungalows at 4722 to 4739 N. Harding-av.; built with best, radiant fireplace, built-in buffet and waterproof basement floor. Built for careful, conscientious, critical buyers and for those with the last of close inspection. No matter how many you may have seen, be sure to see these much superior ones—see different, so much better, that you will be more than pleased. You will not pay $12,000 values for $9,750 on terms to suit the purchaser.
L. C. TRYON, 4601 N. CRAWFORD-AV.

HOME, SWEET HOME.

YOU WILL BE PROUD TO LIVE IN HINSDALE.

"THE SUBURB BEAUTIFUL."

If you are seeking a choice, highly restricted home site or investment in a locality where you are absolutely protected against any undesirable element, where restrictions will assure you of desirable neighbors, then by all means see the beautiful estate you have just subdivided into large, choice, restricted homesites.

This estate is in Hinsdale, and is the very best property for sale in this attractive suburb. This estate is completely surrounded on all sides by large estates. Can you picture a more desirable place to live?

My prices are much lower than anything else in this suburb. Large restricted homesites 50x178 ft. can be had for as little as $420. I will arrange reasonable terms to responsible parties.

Hinsdale is located on the C., B. & Q. railroad, only 33 minutes to the loop, with over 70 trains a day. You can't equal this transportation.

I will arrange to show you this property at your convenience, without cost or obligation to you. Under no circumstances will you be asked, or will pressure be brought to bear upon you to buy. If you are satisfied that this is what you have prepared to buy, as there are only 40 lots left in this estate.

So that I can handle all parties interested, I will ask you to please mail your name and address to A V 72, Tribune.

HUDSON SUPER SIX TOURING. This car is in exceptionally fine mechanical condition and equipped with many extras, including 2 spring bumpers, good set of tires, spare and cover, etc. See this Hudson immediately if you are looking for a 7 passenger car at a price that makes it an exceptional value; $295.

MAIBOHM 1920 LIGHT 5 PASS. TOURING. Car is in excellent running condition; paint work and general appearance very good; is equipped with an excellent set of cord tires, lock, rear vision mirror, spare tire, tools, etc.; a fine appearing car with low sweeping lines, and promises many thousands of miles of dependable service, at the very reasonable price of $400.

OAKLAND SEDAN, 1920, LIGHT 6, LIGHT 5 PASS. In practically new car condition. Has been overhauled in our shops and refinished standard blue color; mechanically it is in first class condition; equipped with 5 good tires, motor, radiator, heater, locks, etc. It will satisfy the most exacting as to extreme comfort and flexibility. An unusual value for $675.

PATERSON 1920 TOURING CAR. Has been rebuilt in our shops and carries our standard used car warranty. Refinished deep Maroon color, with black trim, bright parts renickeled. Equipped with a good set of tires, 1 extra, lock, etc. Continental engine —quiet and smooth running. A particularly comfortable car with deep cushions, easy riding, and operates with little or no effort. We consider this one of the best fall bargains we show. Specially priced, $525.

DORT TOURING, 1921, LIGHT 5 PASS., 4 CYL. This car shows particularly fine care. The original paint, which is dark green, is very good, and mechanically it is absolutely A1. Top and upholstering are in fine condition. The Lycoming motor is smooth and quiet running. Well equipped with 5 good tires, spring bumper, motometer, spotlight, stoplight, wheel lock. A notably economical car. Reduced to $485.

OVERLAND SEDAN, 1921, LIGHT 4 CYL., LIGHT 5 PASS. Is the same as the current model; has only had a season's use and had particularly fine care. The original finish is very good and the interior is in excellent condition. Mechanically it is far above the average. Ready to go without any repair expense. Equipped with 5 wire wheels, good tires, spring bumper, motometer, wheel lock, cowl ventilator, trunk rack. Particularly easy riding and easy to operate. Bargain; $550.

PAIGE 6-51 TOURING CAR. Just been thoroughly overhauled in our shops; has been repainted recently; this high grade car with its dependable Continental engine and roomy, comfortable body, is the ideal family car; is easy riding car, easy to operate; well equipped; specially priced, $550.

HUDSON SUPER 6 TOURING, MODEL "M." In most excellent condition throughout. Newly repainted standard Hudson Blue, is equipped with Rex all-weather top, which makes it an ideal all year car. Equipped with 5 very good tires, spotlight, heater and motometer. This high grade car shows good care and the body, fenders, and general coach condition are perfect. We believe this will be the car to be the first man who takes a demonstration in it. Price $1,295.

PAIGE 6-55 SPORT. The paint, which is a Battleship Gray, is in exceptionally fine condition and the chassis has been entirely rebuilt in our shops, including reground cylinder block, etc. This is our low hung "Larchmont" roomy 4 passenger car, upholstered in brown pencil grained leather, with luxurious deep cushions and appointments. Has 5 good tires, bumper, stop lights, clock, cutout, built-in lock, cowl lamps, victoria rear curtain. A high grade 6 cylinder Sport car on a 127 inch wheelbase, that comes out exceptional. A car of this type, we believe, has never before been offered at so low a price as $875.

CHANDLER SEDAN, 7 PASS. This car was delivered to the original owner in the year of 1921 and has been driven only 6,360 miles; is an exceptionally "clean" job, well equipped, and has good tires. Car has been checked mechanically and refinished. $1,250

PAIGE, 6-66 SPORT, 1921. Rebuilt in our own shops and carries our standard used car guarantee. Completely equipped, spring bumper, motometer and cap, spotlight, sun visor, built-in lock, power tire pump, good set of Cord tires, etc. This car, with its powerful Continental engine, deep cushions, and 61 inch rear springs, is one of the smoothest operating and easiest riding cars Paige has ever manufactured. We advise an early inspection and demonstration, as this is an exceptional value. Price, $1,575.

SOUTH SIDE MOTOR CAR CO.,

12 E. Garfield-blvd.
55th-st., nr. State.

The following cars will be sold at below the market price in order to move our present stock of used automobiles. We will sell these cars for the best reasonable offer made. This is your opportunity to obtain a car at an unusually fair price. We guarantee clear title and you will find these cars to be in the condition reported.

HUDSON, MODEL M, 4 PASS. SPORT. One of the best looking, best running Hudsons we have ever taken in. In perfect mechanical condition, over $350 having just been spent in entirely overhauling the motor. Car was just recently refinished. It is most completely equipped with wind shield wings, 2 spotlights, bumper, 2 extra tires, etc. This is the famous Hudson 4 pass. sport, in the best of condition, and will give wonderful service.

BUICK H-40 TOUR. Has been thoroughly rebuilt in our own shops, even to the extent of new wheel bearings, new wrist pins, rings, cyl. block rebored, etc. Is equipped with 5 brand new cord tires and a new Ashtabula top. Refinished a dark Brewster green. Has all the appearance of new and is as nearly perfect as an automobile can be.

1916 DODGE TOUR. Has had wonderful care. The finish looks like new. It is in A1 mechanical shape; has many extras. An excellent buy for some one who desires this very popular car at a very low price.

1917 JORDAN 7 PASS. This car offers an opportunity to buy a 7 passenger car at a price that is unusually low. It is equipped with brand new top—1922 fenders and headlights, which gives it the appearance of a current model. Has 5 very good cord tires. Has been overhauled and is in excellent shape. The mechanical units are the best. The money can buy, including 40-N Continental motor. Timken axle front and rear, Borg & Beck clutch, Bosch D U 6 mag., etc. This car is a high grade looking car and represents unusual value.

1920 FRANKLIN SEDAN. For those who desire an air cooled, lightweight, economical 5 passenger sedan this is a bargain. Equipped with 5 wire wheels, practically brand new Goodrich cord tires. Interior of car is practically identical with a new Franklin sedan. In fact, this sedan has been so well used that is in such fine shape that it has the appearance of a new car. Has been thoroughly overhauled by the Franklin people and has a burnel off paint job, being refinished in a dark Brewster green and black.

1919 VELIE SEDAN. Refinished a dark blue. Has lines of current model Velie. Tires very good; motor has been thoroughly overhauled. It is equipped with bumper, spare tire, heater, etc. Has Springfield sedan model body, which opens up entirely for summer use.

1921 CHEVROLET, 5 pass. tour. This car has had unusually good care. Is well equipped and for some one who desires a lightweight car from time to time this will be a very low cost. This car will fill the bill.

BUICK H-49, 7 pass. tour. This car is equipped with winter sides and is unusually snug for winter driving. The tires are good and the finish from long exposure is dull, only thing this car needs is to be refinished. We are offering this car at a very low price for quick sale.

Terms can be arranged with responsible people practically to suit their convenience. We will take good light cars in trade on the majority of the above. We will also be glad to make demonstration of any of them. THE SOUTH SIDE MOTOR CAR CO. is not a used car establishment. We are dealers for JORDAN MOTOR CARS and have taken these used cars in trade. Our object is to sell used cars which are in such shape that the purchasers who later are in the market for a new car will come back to us and buy new Jordans.

DROP IN AND GET ACQUAINTED.

We are open every day in the week, including Sundays, until 9 p. m.

LINCOLN

LINCOLN 7 PASS. IMPERIAL SEDAN. This car was delivered to the owner last fall and has been used very little, now we have refinished it a beautiful Olive Green with Red wheels, which makes a wonderful combination. The mechanical condition can be guaranteed the same as a new car; in fact, the car cannot be classed as a used car. It is equipped with new tires, including spare, bumper, motometer and other extras. Priced at a great saving at $4,000.

PAIGE BROUGHAM COUPE, 5 PASS. 1921 MODEL 6-66. This car was used but very little and received by us in exchange on one of our Lincoln Sedans. We have refinished the car a beautiful Sazebrush Green. Has an excellent set of tires, including spare with tire cover and many extras. If you want an ideal winter car, this will surely satisfy. Price $1,850.

COLE 1921 AERO 8, 7 PASS. SEDAN. This car has also our hands in first class condition as the owner has given the car the best of care and used the car only 11 months. Car is unusually well equipping 2 Biflex bumpers, Westinghouse shock absorbers, heater and many other extras. We have refinished the body in Royal Gray with wagon wheel red wood wheels. It will be well worth your time to investigate this car. A real buy at $2,500.

PACKARD 3-35, 7 PASS. TOURING. This is one of the latest models and is a perfect California top. Has many extras and an excellent set of cord tires. Has been rebuilt and repainted standard Packard Blue with straw colored wheels. This is an ideal all year round car that cannot be duplicated at this price. $2,300.

MARMON, 1921, 7 PASS. TOURING. We have this car thoroughly and refinished the body in London Fox Gray and are offering one of the prettiest and snappiest looking cars on the streets today. It is not lacking in any detail to make a real class job; in fact, the car cannot be told from a new one. Must buy at $1,850.

PACKARD 2-25 TOURING CAR. 7 PASS. From a mechanical and coach condition standpoint this car is without doubt one of the best Second Series Packards in Chicago. Completely refinished in Packard Blue with cream colored wheels. Any one looking for a good serviceable high grade touring car cannot go wrong on this car. Price, $900.

CADILLAC MODEL 57 LIMOUSINE, 1919. Here is a limousine that is ideal for livery-men and one in which patrons would be happy to ride in. It is in such condition that it can immediately be put into active service. $1,000.

WINTON, 1920, 7 PASS. TOURING. Has 5 new cord tires and many extras. Perfect condition throughout. $1,500.

GOOD CARS PRICED RIGHT

Marmon 34, 1920, chummy roadster. This is one of the most stylish roadsters that has ever been put on the street. They are in great demand on account of their snappy appearance. This car has been thoroughly inspected, repainted, equipped with new tires, and carries our standard warranty. We have priced the price of this splendid car at $1,975.

Mercer, 22-72, 5 pass., touring. While this car is old in years, it is young in condition, as it has seen little service and is in good mechanical condition throughout, equipped with good tires, wire wheels, and cord covers. This sturdy automobile is capable of many years' hard service, and to one who is looking for a sporty looking car this car should appeal. Let us give you a demonstration and convince yourself that this is a real buy at $700.

Franklin Chummy, 9-B, 4 pass. Mechanical condition of this car is excellent. It is equipped with good tires and the body has seen very little mileage. Has just been repainted, and looks like a new car throughout. A car of this description that has been driven little since should give the best possible service for years to come. $700.

Peerless coupe, Model 56, 4 pass. This car is a 1920 model and in excellent mechanical condition. Equipment includes 4 cord tires, 2 rubbers, rear view vision mirror. The upholstery has every appearance of never having been used. The car is a genuine bargain at our price of $1,100.

Humpmobile, 1922, 5 pass., touring. This is practically a new car, only having been driven a little over 3,500 miles. The original owner of this car is now driving a Humpmobile that he purchased a new sedan. This is your opportunity to buy a real bargain in one of the most sturdy cars. $1,000.

Marmon 34, 7 pass., touring, 1920. This car is one of our renewed and guaranteed cars. By renewed we mean completely rebuilding the motor, replacing of all parts that should be replaced. If you are interested in securing the greatest value for your money we suggest that you look into a Marmon. We have had a number of Marmon value in any new car selling at a like price. $1,975.

Studebaker Sedan, 5 pass., late model. This is a model that is so popular, and in general condition of coach work is in fine shape. It is fully equipped in every detail, has bumper, windshield, motometer, cross bar, special lamp for parking lights, etc. See this car now. Special value, $1,050.

PIERCE ARROW '20
FRENCH TOWN CAR LIMOUSINE.

The culmination of over 20 years' of supreme effort to produce the world's finest motor cars is expressed in this superb 1920 dual valve 6-38 Pierce-Arrow French town car brougham.

This beautiful car has the narrow, low, smart lines, with all appointments in keeping, presents the appearance of new.

The few thousand miles of driving in the hands of an expert Pierce-Arrow chauffeur, has only served to increase the refinement action—and is so quiet that it is scarcely audible; standard new car guarantee. The cost was over $11,000, and we are offering it at considerable reduction. To interested parties we suggest prompt action. Cars like this are rarely offered.

Pierce-Arrow '20 NEW A RARE OFFERING
Connoisseurs of fine automobiles regard the 6-48 dual valve double Deleo 1920 Pierce-Arrow with cast aluminum body as the "Le Dernier Mot" in automobile perfection and is much sought after by those "who know."

We take pardonable pride in being able to offer the only one in the United States for sale. It is the last of these famous models. This very smart appearing car was obtained by us direct from a Pierce-Arrow dealer who purchased it new from the Pierce-Arrow factory and drove it with expert care just 2,353 miles. This model sold for over $8,000. We are offering it at a substantial reduction.

HAVE YOU AMPLE FUNDS AND A KNOTTY SALES PROBLEM?

A Consulting Sales Manager, now earning over $50,000 a year, is interested in finding a connection with a corporation, firm, or private individual who is interested in solving some really great sales problems.

The problem must be one of such magnitude as would challenge a master sales brain such as the national or world distribution of an automobile, the organization of a gigantic sales force, or the national distribution, by mail, of some article of merit.

This Consulting Sales Manager has magnetic personality, words of initiative, is a public speaker of national reputation, follows no beaten path, and has been successful in everything of a big sales nature that he has undertaken. He is a born leader of men, and as stated above, is now earning, in his own enterprises as Consulting Sales Manager, over $50,000 a year.

Replies to this ad., to receive any attention, must be from corporations, firms, or individuals with ample funds to put over in a larger way some gigantic undertaking where the type of man outlined above would fit in.

This Consulting Sales Manager has no money to invest, and is only seeking the highest type of connection, be that with a firm, corporation, or individual who has a knotty sales problem.

Address in his own character, integrity, and ability to consummate any project that he consents to undertake sufficient evidence will be given of the proper standing.

If interested, address E H 1, Tribune.

REALTORS TO VISIT DECATUR IN I. C. SPECIAL

'Moonshine Observation' Car Puzzles.

Several hundred realtors from the Chicago district are going to journey to Decatur on Oct. 19, 20 and 21 to attend the sixth annual convention of the Illinois Realtors' association, on a special train over the Illinois Central instead of by motor as originally planned.

N. J. UPHAM.

A fourteen or fifteen car solid Pullman train will pull out from the Roosevelt road station at 11 p. m. on Wednesday, Oct. 18, and attached to the end will be a mysterious "moonshine observation car." So far no one seems to be able to discover whether the word "moonshine" refers to lunar rays or looney booze. We haven't got an almanac handy so we can't say whether the moon shines on the night of Oct. 18 or not.

"But even if it does shine, who wants to sit out and watch it from an observation car," commented a realtor. "That word must refer to something else. I wonder!"

Sleep at Late as You Like.

Any way, the Moonshine special will pull into Decatur at 4:30 a. m. and realtors may snooze peacefully till they feel like going to the Orlando hotel for breakfast. All sessions will be held at the hotel. Briefly the program follows:

On Thursday, Oct. 19, the convention will be called to order. Reports of state officers and addresses will be made by the mayor of Decatur, president of Decatur real estate board, Charles N. Gorham, and President J. B. Whitehead of the state association.

At 1:15 p. m. Gov. Small will talk on good roads; N. J. Upham, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, will discuss "Our National Association"; Henry G. Zander will talk on the revenue section of the new constitution; Eugene H. Dupee will talk on zoning; David Blumrosen on the federal income tax; Mark Levy will discuss multiple listing, and Joseph K. Brittain will tell about the brokers' license law. There'll be a reception and dance in the evening.

Don Goss to Talk.

On Friday morning there'll be talks on subdivisions, the sales tax and other topics and in the afternoon Don Goss will discuss "Coöperative Advertising." Senator R. J. Barr and others will speak. The annual banquet will be held at 6 p. m.

Paul C. Loeber will tell how to organize appraisal committees and handle city, county and government appraisals at the Saturday morning session. John Lyle Vette will discuss real estate corporations and home financing and Newton C. Farr will talk on the Chicago Realtor. Then will come election of officers, etc., and final adjournment.

The special train will leave Decatur at 4 p. m., arriving in Chicago at 10:15 Saturday night.

Real Estate Man's Lament

Every little while some realtor bursts forth in verse about his pleasures or his woes and forwards his outburst to the Real Estate editor. Usually the R. E. editor forwards it to the waste basket. (Yes, we have waste baskets in THE TRIBUNE local room—an unusual feature in the newspaper world.) Below, however, is a bit of rhymed comment by A. J. Woodcock of 513 65th street, Wilmette, which we believe will be read with appreciation by other realtors and many a prospective customer. It's called:

A. J. WOODCOCK. [Whitney Bros. Photo.]

"THE REAL ESTATE MAN'S LAMENT."

Oh Mr. Cautious Lugubrious Blue
Spends his life shopping and never gets through.
It's either too early or too late in the fall
Because of the strike, or some other stall;
The lot is too shady or hasn't enough trees,
Or too far from the lake to enjoy the breeze;
It's too far from the train or too close to the "L,"
The particular lot that you're trying to sell.
We're approaching a panic, he suggests with a frown,
But not till he's seen every lot in the town,
Though you still hope to sell him, should the day ever come
When they give lots away with a package of gum,
For he comes to your office if your ad strikes his eye,
And you naturally think he's sure going to buy.
But don't be deceived, for the time's never ripe
To buy real estate in the eyes of old Tight,
For he'll find something wrong with each lot that you show,
And you'll find the main fault is his shortness of "dough."

Makes $500,000 Loan on the Plymouth Hotel Property

The ground floor of the Plymouth hotel at Broadway, Leland and Racine, is to be completely remodeled, increasing the number of stores. S. W. Straus & Co. have made a fifteen year 6½ per cent loan of $500,000 on the property. Albert E. Cook is mortgagor.

Glen Ellyn House to Go Round World

Above is a house which if present plans are carried out will become one of the best known residences in the world. C. A. Rehm, vice president of the Atlas Educational Film company, is building it at Glen Ellyn. Work on it began during the week. Movie photographers started grinding the minute ground was broken and will continue at intervals till Mr. Rehm moves in.

A scenario has been written and every problem that confronts the home builder will be shown when the picture and the house are completed. The investment feature, the choice of the lot, the architect, the contractor, choice of materials and furnishings will be shown. It is expected real estate boards throughout the country will exhibit the picture as an incentive to home building. A. B. Malcomm of Oak Park is architect. The house is being built on Crescent boulevard, a picturesque drive near Lake Ellyn, in Glen Ellyn.

Woman Pays $225,000 for Broadway Flat Building

Revenue stamps indicate that Catherine A. Bignal paid August Christensen $225,000, subject to a $120,000 mortgage, for the fifty-four apartment building at 4233 Broadway. The site is 120x240. Phillips & Co. represented both parties.

SELLS ONE STORY STORES.

Samuel Rubin paid a reported $55,000, subject to $25,000, to Henry C. Hyde, for the six one story stores at 4518 North Kedzie. Burke & Lynn and Johnson Bros. were brokers.

FOR SALE

LAND AND BUILDINGS OF URSUS MOTOR COMPANY

Excellent opportunity for a bargain purchase of factory, land and buildings is offered by Jacob Goldman, receiver, in the sale of the Ursus Motor Company property at 6601 West Grand Avenue. Sixteen and one-half acres of land, including railroad trackage, and the buildings constructed on the land (including one 50 by 320 foot brick structure) are offered for sale. The buildings are not over three years old and cost, including the land, $165,000.00.

The sale of the Ursus Motor Company property is according to an order entered in a suit pending in the Circuit Court of Cook County against the Company. Written bids on the property should be sent to Jacob Goldman on or before September 26, 1922, at 10 a. m. Bids will be opened on this date, and the sale held at the Real Estate Board of Chicago offices, 57 West Monroe Street, at 12 o'clock noon on September 28.

Terms of the sale are cash or such security as is readily marketed for cash, and the sale will be held subject to the approval of Judge George Fred Rush of the Circuit Court of Cook County.

For further particulars possible purchasers should apply to the receiver, Jacob Goldman. The property is open for inspection at any time, and blue prints may be examined at the office of the receiver.

SAYS BUILDING "BOOM" IS ONLY NORMAL GROWTH

F. E. Davidson Comments on Situation.

F. E. DAVIDSON.

"Notwithstanding all that has been written and said about the building situation in Chicago," says President F. E. Davidson of the Illinois Society of Architects, in that organization's monthly bulletin, of which he is the editor, "conditions are about what any student of economics would expect under similar circumstances.

"The costs of many building materials are somewhat higher than they were three months ago, and altogether it would appear as if the very great falling off in the number of permits issued is perhaps justifiable and will no doubt have a tendency to stabilize building costs at a lower level than exists today.

"Much has been heard about a building boom in Chicago, but a comparison of the figures of the number of building permits issued in Chicago, the total feet of frontage covered, and the estimated cost of buildings constructed for the last fifteen years would seem to indicate that the present year's construction work in Chicago is only about normal, when the changed purchasing power of the dollar of 1922 is compared to the purchasing power of the dollar in 1914 and previous years.

"The cause of the present high labor costs on building construction is not so much the present high cost of living as the scarcity of men. Even when the thousands of mechanics brought into the Chicago territory by the citizens' committee is added to the mechanics who were already here it will still be found that there are some 40,000 less mechanics available than in 1914."

Start Work on $300,000 West Side Motor Building

The Garage Service company has begun construction on a three story $300,000 building at 210 South Peoria, 70x130 lot, from plans by Architect Paul Gerhardt. It will be used for storage, repairing, etc., of trucks.

LEASES THREE STORY BUILDING.

The Commercial Auto Body company, now at 2540 South Wabash avenue, has leased from the Peacock Real Estate trust the three story building at 3546 Shields avenue, containing 55,000 square feet of floor space, for ten years from Jan. 1, 1923, at a term rental of $138,500, according to Louis Beardslee & Co., who represented the lessor. J. H. Van Vliesingen & Co. represented the lessee. The building just leased formerly was occupied by the United States Rubber company.

Local Display Advertising in Chicago Newspapers

January 1 to August 31, 1922, compared with same term in 1921

LOCAL advertisers rely more upon The Tribune than upon any other Chicago paper. Not only does The Tribune print a fifth more of this type of lineage than the second paper, but it is increasing its lead constantly, as shown by the figures charted above.

Great growth is also being recorded in the local circulation of The Daily Tribune. In Chicago and suburbs The Tribune now sells far more copies than any other paper—not only on Sunday but also on week days. During August The Tribune's week day circulation (exclusive of Sunday) was 524,746, net paid, of which 370,200 was in Chicago and suburbs.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

SEVERAL NEW SUBDIVISIONS FOR VILLA PARK

New Business Center Is Planned for Village.

BY AL CHASE.

Villa Park is called the "fastest growing suburb west of Chicago" in the attractive booklet issued by the Villa Park Plan commission and sanctioned by the president and board of trustees of the village. Of course, that's a claim advanced by so many towns west of the city "it doesn't mean anything," to quote Mr. Goldberg.

JOHN C. STERETT. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

But Villa Park apparently is all set for some real growing, for two big Chicago subdividers have outlined their plans to work in harmony in the developing of several big subdivisions in the Villa Park-Ardmore community.

Sterett Opens Subdivision.

John C. Sterett, a resident of Villa Park for several years and long activ in real estate matters in that community and now head of John C. Sterett & Co., is now opening a new subdivision he calls Ardvilla Highlands, a name, by the way, we'd suggest as a better one for the combined towns of Villa Park and Ardmore than the present one of Villa Park.

Mr. Sterett has under construction now between thirty and forty homes for buyers, who will move in as fast as they are finished. During the next two weeks he expects to excavate basements for fifty more homes and start work with the hope of finishing them for spring occupancy. Mr. Sterett's lots are mostly in built up sections.

Elmore to Open Two.

A neighbor of Mr. Sterett in the National Life building, John W. Elmore & Co., also is planning to open two big subdivisions in Villa Park.

Mr. Elmore will open an office today at St. Charles road and Ardmore avenue and begin selling lots in a 50 acre subdivision north of St. Charles road and east of Ardmore avenue. A second subdivision of 30 acres will be opened south of St. Charles road and a little east of the larger subdivision.

Calls 'Em "Parcels."

Mr. Elmore has originated a novel term, which will probably become common with subdividers. He intends to sell his lots in pairs and in some instances in triplets and call them "parcels." That means if you buy a "parcel" you'll get two 50 foot lots, or a piece of ground with 100 feet frontage and a depth of 150. "Parcels" will sell at $325 and up. This will include water, sidewalks, and graded streets, and the cost of planting trees.

Mr. Sterett also has a novel idea in house selling. He intends building a model house, close to the Third Rail station, which will be completely furnished from pantry to door mat, and prospective buyers may order their homes completely furnished if they like the model.

Incorporated Eight Years Ago.

Villa Park and Ardmore were incorporated as a village under the name of Villa Park eight years ago. It was laid out as a subdivision about fifteen years ago by the Ballinger & Pottinger company. Portions of the subdivision later reverted to Henry W. Austin, J. Calhoun, W. F. Woodruff, and C. C. Heisen, all of whom have been actively interested in building up the village.

The town has a large fireproof graded school and shares with Elmhurst in the $300,000 York community high school.

The residents do their commuting to Chicago via the Third Rail, which, by the way, is spending vast sums of money in new roadbed and equipment. Eventually, the Chicago and Northwestern is expected to wake up to the fact that it's overlooking several hundred perfectly good fares daily and reply to the petition already filed by Villa Park residents and build a station.

Plan New Business Center.

A new business center is contemplated at the Ardmore avenue and St. Charles road intersection, with a new state bank as the beginning. At present there are two small groupings of stores at the two Third Rail stations.

The town had 500 inhabitants in 1914, according to the village plan booklet. Now it's claimed to have around 2,000. So maybe it is "the fastest growing suburb, etc." after all.

BISHOP BORROWS $100,000.

McMahon & Roban have made a $100,000 loan for the Catholic Bishop of Chicago, through E. G. Krumrine & Co., for five years at 5½ per cent, secured by the ground and buildings of St. Brendan's parish, Marquette road and Racine avenue. The church owns all of the boulevard frontage except a small house, which it has tried to buy, but failed.

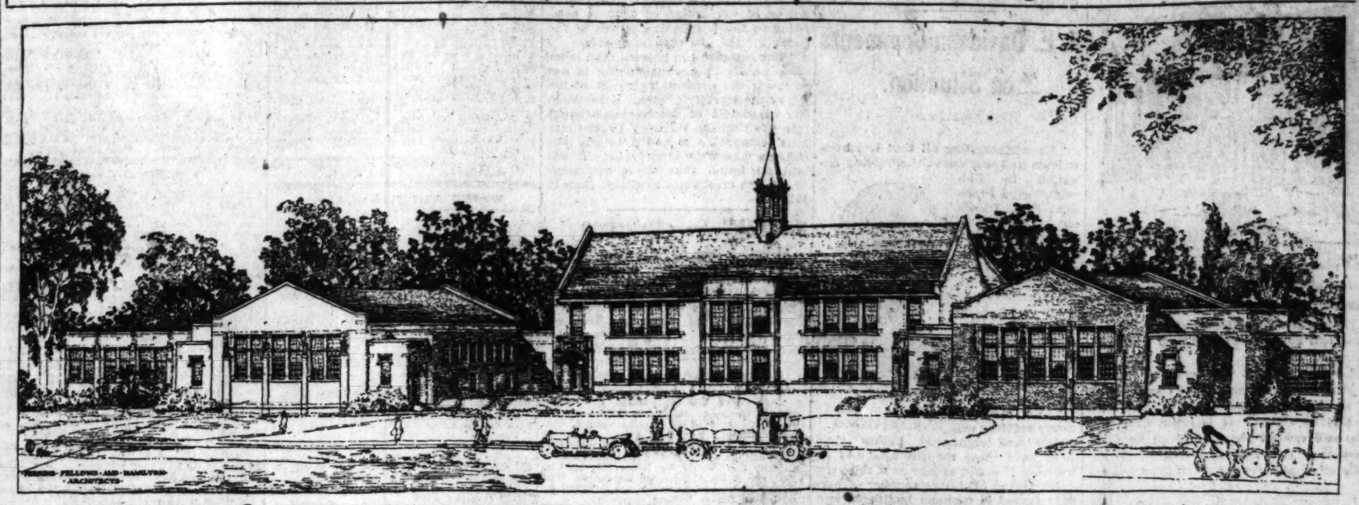
Wilmette's New Public School—on a 16 Acre Campus



Architects Perkins, Fellows & Hamilton have designed the above building for Wilmette's much discussed grade school, just approved by voters, to be erected on a sixteen acre campus bounded on the east by 17th street, by Ridge avenue on the west, the first alley south of Lake avenue on the north, and the alley just north of Washington avenue on the south. Only part of the building will be erected this year. This section will cost around $150,000 and will be completed in time for school in the fall of 1923. It will contain a two story central section of ten classrooms, office, doctor's and teachers' rooms, etc., and a south wing consisting of heating plant, domestic science rooms and a combined gymnasium and auditorium, with stage, balcony, etc., to accommodate 700. Later classroom units will be added, then a girls' gymnasium and a larger auditorium. J. R. Harper is secretary of the board of education and superintendent of schools. Members of the board are: Emma M. Bodie, Edith Whitehill, Clarence R. Hope, William M. Burns, Herbert B. Mulford, and Arthur Howard, president.

TRIO OF REALTORS TO BE SPEAKERS AT ARCHITECTS' MEETING

Three Chicago realtors will be speakers at the first fall meeting of the Illinois Society of Architects on Tuesday evening. B. M. Winston, Col. Gordon Strong, and Paul J. Loeber are scheduled to talk. There'll be a dinner at the Tip Top Inn at 6:30 with the meeting held at 8 p. m. in the auditoriums of the art institute. All architects and draughtsmen, whether members of the society or not, are invited to both the dinner, for which a charge of $1 is made, and to the meeting afterwards.

VOTED YET IN THE BIG $000,000 BEAUTY CONTEST?

With votes still being received by the real estate editor in the great $000,000 bathing beauty contest to determine whether Apollo John J. Ready Jr., of W. K. Young & Bro., or Adonis William P. Heyn, in business for himself, is the pony's pajamas so far as beauty is concerned, the final result cannot be announced till next Sunday. If it's a possible thing we'll secure a brand new photo of the winner and for "seven cents in the city, ten elsewhere," you can gaze at Chicago's most lovely realtor.

There isn't space to print but a few of the letters accompanying votes for our two heroes. And, by the way, there hasn't been a masculine vote received to date.

The first vote received was from Miss E. M. Joers, written on an office letterhead and signed "His Steno," and is brief and emphatic: "May I offer my vote of approval for Mr. Heyn's beauty?"

And then came the following on tinted and scented stationery: "Naturally the 'two little girls' would pick little Willie for the handsomest dog. But give me the high, intellectual forehead, the straight, well defined nose and—Oh, that Cupid's bow mouth of Johnnie Jr.! It seems to be fifty-fifty as to eyes, as they each have only one, showing probably some jealous cat gave Mr. Ready to extra dab of printers' ink just on purpose. But if that black eye is anything like as bright and snappy as the good eye, Oh, boy! give me Mr. John J. Ready Jr. every time!

"[Signed] A FEMALE—AN OLD ONE."

Here's one more: "A broker tells me that one of the beauties carried a comb in his bathing suit and dolled up on the pier just before the two little girls picked the winner. Well, if that's true, then I'll send in my vote for the other one—Mr. Heyn. Any way, I think he's nicest.

"[Signed] REALTORESS."

Ho, hum, it must be great to be a good looker.

J. R. Thompson Son-in-Law Buys Lake Forest House

John Griffith of Lake Forest, reports selling for Gen. Harding his place on Green Bay road, six acres, to W. David Owen, a son-in-law of John R. Thompson. Also for Miss Mary Cudahy the five acres and stone house, recently finished, to A. B. Dick Jr., for approximately $80,000.

APARTMENTS FOR NORTH RIDGEWAY.

Architect Jacob Lewis has drawn plans for an apartment building at 3358 North Ridgeway avenue for Frank J. Marquewits, to cost $18,000.

Brokers' Notes

The E. E. Stults Realty company has opened an office at 790 Elm street, Winnetka, the home of E. E. Stults. William N. Overton is sales manager. The main office is at 1901 Montrose avenue. A branch was recently opened at 1916 Central street, Evanston.

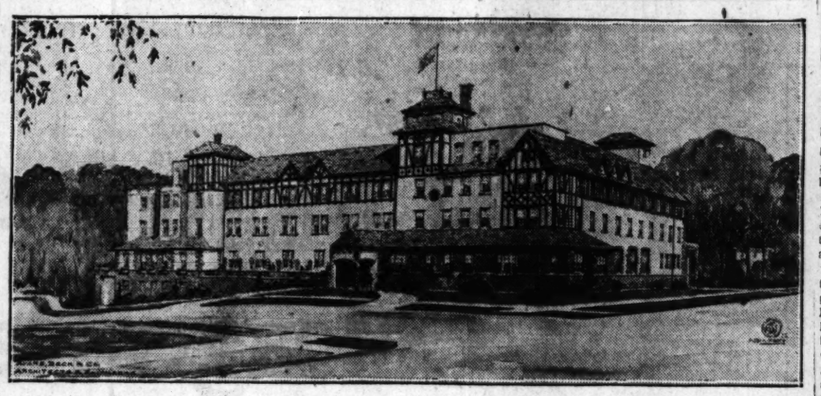
Robert E. L. Brooks announces that Ray J. Pfordresher, former manager of the Kenwood apartment hotel, is now associated with him in a general real estate business.

$500,000 DEERPATH INN AT LAKE FOREST



Ayars, Beck & Co. have designed the new $500,000 Deerpath inn, to supplant the famous old Lake Forest hostelry, owned and operated by Mrs. M. H. Patterson for the last twenty-two years, on East Deerpath. Mrs. Patterson will continue the present inn till the new one is open. She is the largest stockholder in the new corporation.

J. B. WHITEHEAD TO ADDRESS DU PAGE COUNTY REALTORS

J. B. Whitehead, president of the Illinois Realtors' association, will be guest of honor at the first monthly meeting since the summer vacation of the Du Page county real estate board tomorrow evening at Elmhurst in the office of L. W. Holle. Mr. Whitehead will tell about results accomplished during the last year by the state body.

J. B. WHITEHEAD.

E. M. Chase of Wheaton, secretary of the Du Page board, suggests that realtors bring their wives to tomorrow's meeting in order to make arrangements for the trip to the state realty convention at Decatur, where special entertainment features for the ladies will be provided.

Tomorrow evening's meeting will be held at 7:30 but those who wish to dine at Elmhurst are urged to meet in Mr. Holle's office at 6:30 and go from there to a neighboring café.

Plan New Subdivision at Milwaukee and Elston

Ten and a half acres in the irregular block bounded by Elston, Milwaukee, Mason, and Markham, are to be subdivided by the Moreland-McCabe Real Estate Improvement corporation. The property was purchased from Frank A. Randak by James C. Moreland and Leland J. McCabe for $50,000 cash, according to the revenue stamps. The buyers state that bungalows and small houses to sell at from $6,500 up will be built on portions of the tract in which improvements are in. Sewers, sidewalks, etc., will be installed on the remainder of the tract at once. There'll be seventy-five lots, those for residences being 30x125.

Building Permits

Twenty building permits for a total valuation of $648,000 were issued yesterday, among them being the following:

Jackson-blvd., W., 3236-42, one story brick public garage; Isokon Scene Co., owner; L. L. Russell, arch., $18,000

Pine Grove-av., 2816-28, six story brick apartment hotel; Robert Edelson and Ryland J. Paullin, owners; Loewenberg & Loewenberg, archs.; O. W. Rosenthal-Cornell Co., mas. and carp., $00,000

REILLY PLANS TO SUBDIVIDE ARMOUR TRACT

Frank K. Reilly & Co. and William J. Graham, who recently bought the eighty acre site in the south shore district originally intended for a new Armour institute, announce that the entire property will be subdivided and placed on sale Nov. 1. Mr. Reilly is following his usual custom and is training a corps of salesmen at a night school of subdivision selling.

Mr. Reilly is having plans drawn by Eric E. Hall for a $3,000,000 flat building to cover the entire block bounded by 77th, 78th, Phillips, and Essex. The rest of the tract will be sold but with restrictions barring bungalows. The entire eighty acres are bounded by 75th, 79th, Colfax, and Yates.

IRVING PARK LANDMARK SOLD.

One of the landmarks and former show places of Irving Park, the seventeen room residence at 4101 North Avers avenue, lot 240x125, has been sold by Herbert W. Gortemoller to Mrs. Anna Ritkowsky, through William C. Regelin, for a reported $25,000.

BOSTON STORE CHIEF SELLS TO RESTAURATEUR

Henry G. Hart, manager of the Boston store, has sold his residence at 5036 Ellis avenue to Louis Deutsch, restaurateur, for $42,000, and has moved to the Hotel Sisons, where he will live until his residence at Glencoe is completed late this fall. Holabird & Roche are architects of his now home, which will stand on two and one-half acres at Sheridan road and Ravine glade.

Trades Crown Point Farm for Oak Park Apartments

The twenty-four apartment building known as Maple Manor, on the north side of Washington boulevard in Oak Park, between Maple and Harlem avenues, has been traded by Max Zimmerman to John J. Ellsworth for a 475 acre farm at Crown Point, Ind. According to A. W. Johnson, who represented both parties, the selling price was $150,000, subject to $66,000.

TOM INGERSOLL'S SUCCESSOR VISITS NEW HOME TODAY

Herbert U. Nelson, formerly secretary of the Minneapolis Real Estate board, and who has just been appointed to fill the place left vacant by Tom Ingersoll as secretary of the National Association of Real Estate boards, will arrive in Chicago from Minnesota today and be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Nichols at 1436 Hyde Park boulevard. Mr. Nelson will make arrangements while in Chicago for living either in the city or suburbs permanently as soon as he can move his belongings here.

DIVERSEY PARKWAY LEASE.

The Fox Pharmacal company has leased the store at 814 Diversey parkway, 25x100, for ten years at a term rental reported by Michael Flicht & Co. to be $60,000.

Remember!

Hyde W. Perce, Chicago realtor, opened the Y. M. C. A. school of commerce real estate course on Tuesday evening, with a lecture in which he called particular attention to the necessity of the broker being scrupulously honest, fearless, and reliable. Following are some of the reminders he outlined to his audience, which if followed should bring success in the real estate business:

HYDE W. PERCE. [Wallinger Photo.]

"Remember that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points and the dotted line the shortest to a commission—but do it straight.

"Remember you have a living to make and so has the other fellow, so go sparingly with his time and he will with yours.

"Remember that a satisfied client is money well earned and the one commission is not the only one. Play the game for the other fellow, for a satisfied client has friends and they can be yours also.

"Remember, never to try to freeze out a fellow realtor, as two satisfied realtors bring double results.

"Remember that coöperation is the spirit of the times, so join a real estate board and become a realtor and thus enjoy the fun, knowledge, and prosperity which comes from association with good fellows of like profession.

"Remember there are no eight hour days in this profession and that the only union that counts is that of knowledge and experience with the concentration of purpose.

"Lastly, remember that if you like the game and play it square, the game will like you."

Charles E. Fox of J. J. Carroll & Co. will speak on "Office Organization and Equipment" next Tuesday evening.

Some Residence Sales

Dr. Frederick Mueller has sold his residence at 2332 Commonwealth avenue, lot 40x220, to Arthur Flanagan, president of A. Flanagan & Co., school supplies, for $38,000. Hedberg & Bistor represented the buyer and Harold Bradley & Co. the seller.

The ten room brick residence at 1136 East 48th has been bought by Mrs. Lucy C. Norton from the Strauss estate, through James J. Parker & Co. for $27,500. The lot is 90x165.

Says Farm Sales are 100% Ahead of September, 1921

P. L. Hawkins, manager of the central division of the E. A. Strout Farm agency, which claims to be the largest real estate organization in the world, states that sales of farms in this division so far this month are 100 per cent in excess of sales made in the entire month of September last year. The Strout illustrated catalog of 161 pages has just been published, and, according to Mr. Hawkins, is being sent out from the Chicago office alone in the Marquette building at the rate of 1,000 a week. It's an interesting mail order catalog.

LAKE FOREST TO HAVE $500,000 DEERPATH INN

New Hostelry to Supplant Famous Landmark.

Lake Forest's famous old Deerpath inn is to make way for a modern fireproof three story $500,000 structure on the site of the present landmark. Ayars, Beck & Co. have prepared plans for a building in the old English inn type of architecture to contain 100 rooms. The present Deerpath inn will not be torn down until the new building is completed.

Mrs. M. H. Patterson, who established Deerpath inn twenty-two years ago, and who has operated it ever since, will continue to manage it until C. L. Hayden, a hotel man, takes it in charge. Mrs. Patterson will continue to have an interest in the new Deerpath inn company, being its largest stockholder.

The syndicate, which recently secured an option on a large tract at Lake Forest, and announced plans for a huge hotel, much to the distress of Lake Foresters, is understood to have decided to abandon their project on account of the new Deerpath inn plans.

The present Deerpath inn was remodeled out of an old residence built seventy-five years ago by a southern colonel named Johnson. Twenty years ago Mrs. Patterson rejuvenated the property, but says it has never been large enough to care for the demand. The new inn will be completed next spring.

OAK PARK PLANS HOME EXHIBIT IN OCTOBER

"Your Home and What's in It," is the name of Oak Park's local event, your own home show to be staged by the Oak Park Real Estate board, of which William H. Wright is president, Oct. 9 to 14. It is for the entire community of Oak Park, the realtors only underwriting the project and doing the work. A new garage building at Clinton and Madison has been offered free and will be used for the exhibit. There will be room for about 100 booths and every exhibit must show some phase of home building, owning, decoration, etc.
